ESCAPE ROUTE —Approximately 100 Uruguayan guerrillas, led by the country's top guerrilla Raul Sendic, used this route to tunnel to freedom from a Montevideo prison early today. Police sources said the Tupamaros guerillas tunneled about 100 yards to a house near the prison in what is said to be the nation's largest jailbreak. Uruguayan authorities sealed off an area near Montevideo in an all-out search for the left-wing rebels. (UPI Telephoto)

Uruguay Terrorists In Mass Jail Break

Guerrillas, Leader Tunnel Out

MONTEVIDEO (UPI) — An estimated 100 left-wing Tupamaros terrorists, including Uruguay's top guerrilla leader, Raul Sendic, tunneled their way 100 yards to freedom today in the nation's biggest jailbreak, police sources said.

The mass escape of the terrorists followed by only five weeks a massive flight by 38 female members of the secret left-wing organization from a woman's jail.

Punta Carretas Prison Director Col. Pascual Cirilo refused to give details of the jailbreak, saying no information had to come from the Interior Ministry.

Asked the number of Tupamaros who fled, he replied, "I can't answer that."

A police spokesman said the tunnel apparently led to a house near the prison, which had been declared a "military zone" early this year.

Reporters and photographers were not allowed near the tunnel or the prison, located about two miles from downtown Montevideo.

Still unknown was the exact number of Tupamagos who fled, but one police sources estimated the number at 106.

Uruguayan authorities are currently building another prison on the Isla de Flores in Montevideo Bay, about 15 miles east of Montevideo.

The prison was started when authorities discovered a tunnel last February leading into Punta Carreta from the outside.

Police sources said later the entire Montevideo zone had been closed to traffic leading both inside and out.

The owner of the house where the tunnel was discovered, Billy Rial, told UPI that he had heard the Tupamaros say 120 had escaped.

He said the backup members outside used portable radios to keep in contact with the Tupamaros inside Punta Carretas.

Rial said the entire operation had taken nine hours and the tunnel had wound up in his living room.

During that time, Rial said, he and his family were held prisoner.

"They wouldn't even accept a cup of coffee, although I offered them some," Rial said. He added they had treated him and his family "correctly."

The Tupamaros, whose avowed aim is to overthrow the government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco, are currently holding five hostages, including British Ambassador Geodfrey Jackson, 56.

Jackson has been held for nine months, since last Jan. 8. No demands have been made for his release.

The other four hostages are Uruguayan businessmen who were captured after Jackson was kidnapped.

Sendic, 34, is the founder of the Tupamaros and was captured Aug. 7, 1970, shortly after the Tupamaros killed Dan A. Mitrione, a police adviser from Richmond, Ind. Mitrione was killed Aug. 1.

Another American kidnaped by the terrorists, Claude L. Fly of Ft. Collins, Colo., was held for months and then released after he suffered a heart attack.

SEALED OFF —Uruguayan authorities have sealed off the city of Montevideo and surrounding countryside to search for a band of 100 leftwing Tupamaros guerillas who escaped from a prison early today. The band, led by Raul Sendic, tunneled 100 yards from the maximum security institution to freedom. (UPI Telephoto)

Nixon Hails Economy Response

THURMONT, Md. (UPI — President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies Monday and appealed for revival of the competitive spirit and pride of workmanship that made America great.

The President's Labor Day address to the nation, broadcast by radio from a small cabin near the main lodge of the Camp David mountain retreat, was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later radio speech from Washington.

Meany blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of socialism for big business" and vowed that organized labor would press for rejection of his tax cut proposals when Congress returns from a summer recess Tuesday.

The President made only a passing, veiled reference to Meany's steady criticism in a 12-minute broadcast stressing widespread public support of his wage-price freeze and urging greater productivity to curb inflation and create more jobs.

"Of course there have been complaints, there have been counter-suggestions, there have been criticism by special interest groups," Nixon said. "But the most heartening reaction was the surge of national confidence, the reaffirmation of our competitive spirit, the willingness to make a personal sacrifice in pursuit of worthy goals by the man in the street, the worker on the job and the homemaker trying to balance the family budget."

The President called for new industrial investment, job training, improved business management and encouraging greater pride by workers in their jobs, to increase productivity and keep America foremost in world trade and leadership.

Rising productivity, he said, "means that the individual worker gets a real increase in his wages, most just a pay raise eaten away by inflation.

"It means that the consumer gets more for his money, the investor gets a greater return, and more money is available to help those who cannot help themselves."

Nixon declared: "Our success in rising to the challenge of peace will depend on the competitive spirit of the American people."

On the eve of Congress' return, and prompt tax cut hearings promised by the House Ways and Means Committee, Meany level5 a savage attack on Nixon's economic plans as weighted unfairly in favor of corporate interests.

Zeroing in on Nixon's proposed 10 per cent investment tax credit for new plants and machinery, Meany called it a "giant raid on the federal treasury that would transfer billions of dollars in public funds into the private treasuries of big business."

The labor federation chieftain said the tax credit, plus a previously ordered speedup in tax depreciation allowances, would enrich business by $70 billion in the next decade. He said the money ought to be poured instead into programs to provide better schoosl, hospitals, housing and transportation, a cleaner environment and more jobs.

Nixon, accompanied to Camp David by his wife and daughters Julie and Tricia and their husbands, spent the morning reviewing his speech, which aides said in advance would be "conciliatory" toward the labor movement.

Nixon was returning to the White House Monday night for a busy week highlighted by the return of Congress.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, said contrary to the President's claims that "our competitive free enterprise system is in deep trouble" because of a growing gap in profits between large and small corporations.

Proxmire said his committae would take a closer look at administration economic policy "as it affects medium-sized and small businesses" at a time when the government is extending huge job-saving assistance to such industrial giants as Penn Central, Lockheed, Boeing and major automakers.

Proxmire cited a Federal Trade Commission and Securities and Exchange Commission report showing that profits of manufacturers with assets of more than $1 billion rose 18.8 per cent in the first three months of the year, while businesses with assets of less than $1 million suffered a 40.4 per cent drop in profits.

Latin American Arms Sales Is Defended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird considers the military "the only cohesive group" in most Latin American countries but denies that the Pentagon is encouraging military takeovers through its training programs, congressional testimony revealed Monday.

At the same time, the Defense Department warns that the United States is losing and will continue to lose ground to European arms salesmen as long as U.S. arms sales to Latin America are limited by Congress.

These statements were made by top, Pentagon officials, including Laird, during secret hearings held last March by the House Appropriations Committee. A heavily censored transcript of these hearings was released Momday.

"I think it is important for us to bear in mind that the military is the only cohesive group if many of the countries of Latin America and that they are very important," Laird testified.

"No part of the U.S. training given Latin American officers is in any way related to overthrow of governments, but on the contrary is aimed at maintaining internal security and stability in order that economic progress can be achieved."

Laird said that the political

Boy Held After Spree With Rifle

A 14-year-old Los Angeles County boy has been booked into Marin Juvenile Hall on nine counts of assault with intent to commit murder.

Robert Washburn of Arcadia was arrested late Friday after he fired a .22-caliber rifle at persons near the Lucas Valley Community Center and later held off deputies for several minutes outside the center at 1201 Idleberry Drive, Marin sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies said witnesses told them they first observed Washburn about 10:30 p.m. Friday sitting in a park area behind the center.

About an hour later, he began cleaning a rifle, deputies said, and telling witnesses that he had killed a man in Los Angeles for "playing around with his sister."

He then began firing at persons near the center, but hit no one.

When deputies arrived, the boy aimed the rifle at them. A shot was fired by a deputy near Washburn's legs and he suffered small cuts on his left ankle from concrete shattered by the shot.

He was taken to Marin General Hospital, according to deputies, and later booked at juvenile hall.

Deputies said they believed the boy may have been under the influence of drugs.

Fog Hampers Searchers In Crash That Killed 111

JUNEAU, ALASKA (UPI)— Rescuers waited for a break in wet, foggy weather today to start bringing out the bodies of 111 persons killed in the worse single-plane airliner disaster in U.S. history.

"If we can finish up in three days, we'll be lucky with the weather the way it is," said Lt. Harry McLaughlin of the Alaska state Police, who was directing recovery operations.

"We have people at the site," he reported. "We've only moved up those we have shelter for. It's rainy, windy and cold up there."

The site was the side of a 3,500 foot mountain in the foothills of the rugged Chilkoot mountain range, where the Alaska Airlines Boeing 727 Tri-Jet smashed Saturday afternoon, killing all 104 passengers and seven crew members on board.

Helicopters slipped through a brief break in the bad weather Sunday afternoon to carry federal investigators to the site, 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

McLaughlin said five mountain climbers also had reached the 2,400 foot crash site after hiking up from a lower altitude base camp.

Rain and mist hampered recovery operations most of the day Sunday and it wasn't until late afternoon that the weather cleared long enough to make helicopter operations feasible.

The copters flew in from the Coast Guard cutter Sweetbrier, being used as a rescue base.

McLaughlin said a temporary mortuary had been set up in Juneau in preparation for removal of the bodies.

More People died in this crash than in any other in Alaska history. In 1963 the crash of a Northwest Airlines plane killed 101 persons.

The Jet's wreckage was scattered over two square miles in the rugged mountains surrounding Juneau. The crash was unexplained and the pilot had reported no trouble.

Part of the fuselage fell down a cliff and fire scorched much of the wreckage, which was broken into hundreds of pieces.

The air controller on duty at Juneau airport said the 727 was coming in from Uakutat in fog and drizzle. He said he gave the pilot a holding pattern because he was having difficulty communicating with another plane.

That was the last contact with the airliner, the controller said.

When the tower could not raise the plane by radio, a widespread search was undertaken. About four hours later the wreckage was spotted by a Coast Guard helicopter pilot.

The Juneau airport does not have an electronic instrument landing system to help pilots in bad weather because the surrounding geography does not permit the system currently in use.

Shots Fired At Berlin's Border Mars Atmosphere Of Inking Pact

BERLIN (UPI) —Communist East German border police fired six shots at a man who tried to escape across the Berlin Wall into West Berlin early today, police reported.

Police said the would-be refugee appeared to escape injury, but the border guards captured him. The incident took place around 2:00 a.m.

The shooting was the second at the Berlin Wall within 25 hours and marred the atmosphere of hope created by Friday's signing of the first phase of the four-power agreement on Berlin.

At 1:20 p.m. Sunday, East German police shot a man aged about 20 in the right leg as he trieb to flee across the wall. The shooting brought protests from the allied authorities in West Berlin and the city government.

In West Berlin and in Bonn representatives of the East and West German governments and the West Berlin City Council met in separate talks to hammer out details of the Berlin agreement.

In West Berlin, East German State Secretary Guenther Kohrt met West Berlin Senate Leader Ulgich Mueller to discuss arrangements for West Berliners to visit East Berlin under the same conditions as those applying to West Germans.

They also planned to discuss improved telephone links between the two parts of the divided city and improved arrangements for West Berlin encalves cut off from the main sectors of the city.

In Bonn Michael Kohl, state secretary in the East German foreign ministry, flew in at the head of a five-man delegation and met with a team led by West German State Secretary Egon Bahr.

Both sets of talks have been under way for some time. But this was the first occasion they met under the specific mandate offered by the Berlin accord.

The East German Communist party orgun Neues Deutschland offered a good augury for the talks. It said with good will on both sides both sets of talks should be completed quickly. It said the East German government for its part would do everything possible to insure a "positive outcome", enabling the agreement "to go into effect as soon as possible."

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt and Foreign Minister Walter Scheel were visiting West Berlin today for talks with city officials and political parties.

The Concorde made a triumphant swoop over Rio and then touched down to a perfect landing.

Shaheen Plans To Stay Home

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—San Francisco's top school administrator has canceled a scheduled vacation after enraged teachers demanded his resignation for "callous indifference" to the massive integration-busing program scheduled to begin next week.

Thomas A. Shaheen, city schools superintendent, said Sunday he will cancel the vacation, set for 11 days after public schools open.

"In view of the expressed concern of the community, of course, I am canceling my vacation which included a speaking engagement for the overseas dependent schools in Europe," Shaheen said.

"When this was first presented to the board, I did not anticipate the strong desires of the community that it be so important that I be here in San Francisco. I was confident that by Sept. 27, because of the dedicated preliminary work by so many competent staff members, the schools would be operating effectively."

The city is under federal court order to fully integrate its school system this fall. The order was unsuccessfully fought by parent organizations, including a powerful delegation from Chinatown.

Lee Dolson, president of the Classroom Teachers Association, had demanded that Shaheen resign after it was learned he was planning a vacation shortly after schools opened. Dolson said Shaheen was indifferent to the integration problems and was leaving the city at a critical time.

But Saturday, James Ballard, president of the rival teachers' union, said Dolson was not speaking for all San Francisco teachers and he had not obtained the backing of the Classroom Teachers Association before making the statement.

Saigon Troops Hit Red Supply Lines

SAIGON (UPI)—An armada of 200 U.S. helicopters ferried thousands of South Vietnamese troops into western Quang Tri province today in a major new operation to disrupt Communist supply lines below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), military sources said.

The sweep, involving at least three brigades of government troops, began at 6 a.m. in rugged country west of Cam Lo and not far from the abandoned Khe Sanh outpost. More than 2,000 American soldiers were moved back into the province to support the campaign, military sources said, including armored, artillery and infantry units.

U.S. B52 bomber crews struck six times overnight in the region, unloading nearly 500 tons of explosives to soften up in advance of the new government operation, field reports said. The drive was one of the biggest since the South Vietnamese incursion into Laos last spring.

Field reports said a South Vietnamese armored column rumbled down Highway 9 today and reopened the old Vandegrift Combat Base east of Khe Sanh. There were no reports of any contact with Communist forces, UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman reported from Quang Tri.

Military sources said the new drive was planned entirely by South Vietnamese commanders in the area, mainly by 1st Infantry Division commandant Maj. Gen. Pham Van Phu and his deputy, Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai.

Three Wounded In Cycle Fracas On Sonoma Coast

JENNER (UPI) —A shootout Sunday involving motorcycle gang members apparently angered over being refused service at a bar in this small resort town left two bike riders and a bartender wounded.

Sonoma County Sheriff's deputies said one motorcycle gang member, whose name was not released, was in critical condition at Community Hospital in Santa Rosa.

A sheriff's spokesman said about 200 motorcyclists converged around the town on the Sonoma County coast for the Labor Day weekend. Many were camping in surrounding beaches and parks.

The spokesman said the cyclists scattered after the shooting, but were surrounded in the Russian Gulch area by California Highway Patrol officers and sheriff's deputies who questioned each one before letting them leave.

The trouble started Saturday when Jerry Burg, owner of the Jenner by the Sea Bar, refused service to several cyclists, according to Ray McDermott, owner of the River's End Bar, also in Jenner.

When the cyclists returned Sunday, McDermott said, Burg again refused them service, and the shooting erupted. Burg was wounded in the leg and head and was taken to Santa Rosa General Hospital where he was reported in satisfactory condition. The other cyclist suffered minor gunshot wounds, deputies said.

Sgt. Robert Townsend, of the sheriff's office said the area around Jenner was sealed off after the incident. He said the cyclists were a "mixed group" of club members from the San Francisco Bay Area, and included members of the Hell's Angels.

"We don't know who shot whom or why at this time," he said, adding that law officers were not involved in the shooting.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Suspect Mum

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)–Suspect John G. Freeman, 41, has said nothing so far about the fatal shooting of seven members of a Phoenix family.

Freeman was under heavy guard at the jail ward of the Maricopa County Hospital where he was taken for treatment of superficial hand and leg wounds.

Seven murder charges were filed in justice court Saturday, accusing Freeman of killing Mrs. Novella Bentley, 43, her five children and her son-in-law. The shootings occurred Friday night at Mrs. Bentley's modest home here. Freeman was arrested by police as he scaled a fence behind the house.

Authorities said there was no indication when Freeman would be released from the hospital or make his first court appearance. The suspect has refused to talk with police since his arrest.

Storm Grows

SAN JUAN, P. R. (UPI) — A tropical depression from the Atlantic moved across the Windward Islands toward the Caribbean today, bearing showers and gale-force winds.

United States Navy reconnaissance aircraft were ordered to investigate the depression early today for any signs of intensification.

The National Weather Service said the depression was centered about 50 miles east of the island of Grenada at 10:30 p.m. EDT Sunday, and was moving westward at about 15 to 20 miles per hour.

A Weather Service bulletim said locally heavy showers and thundershowers were expected during the night in the Windward Islands and warned island residents to be alert for flash flooding.

Volvo Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader's Center for Auto Safety has charged Volvo, Inc., with a "monumentally" deceptive national advertising campaign on the merits of the Volvo automobile.

The center said a limited survey of Volvo owners and consumer complaint letters indicated the Swedish cars are susceptible to premature brake wear, poor gas mileage and difficult engine starts.

The company advertises that nine out of 10 volvos still are running in Sweden 10 years after their manufacture.

"It is our sincere belief that the expectations created by Volvo's national advertising campaign are monumentally misleading and deceptive when viewed against the often unpleasant realities of Volvo ownership," the center said in a letter to Volvo of America president Stigg Jansson.

Shooting Spree

LAFOLLETTE, Tenn. (UPI) —Three persons were killed and two others wounded in a shooting spree with a submachine gun at a home near here over the weekend.

Sheriff Rose Kitts of Campbell County said Richard Suttles apparently opened fire on a group of people visiting his home after someone threw a bottle during an argument. Suttles then apparently shot himself, the sheriff said.

Dead were Suttles, his brother-in-law Walter Rogers, and Rogers' son, Charlie. Injured were Mrs. Richard Suttles, shot through the back and apparently paralyzed, and Raymond Brantley, shot through the right leg and right arm.

Bikers Held

TALLADEGA, Ala. (UPI) — Two hundred members of a motorcycle gang called "The Outlaws," who arrived at Alabama International Motor Speedway with four van trucks, were arrested Sunday on charges of "assaulting and robbing" race fans.

The local sheriff speculated the group planned to use the trucks to haul off motorcycles belonging to spectators during a race.

"We've got them all in jail," said Walter L. Allen, Alabama public safety director. He said 160 were held at a state prison farm in Childersburg and 40 in other nearby jails on "25 or 30 various charges."

Fatal Bite

ADELAIDE, Australia (UPI) —A 52-year-old fisherman died of a heart attack Sunday after a small shark leaped into his boat and bit his shoulder, hospital officials said.

Talks Recess

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Striking West Coast longshoremen and their employers took a break in negotiations today—Labor Day—but both sides planned strategy for a joint meeting Tuesday.

A spokesman for the employer group said Sunday following a four-hour meeting that negotiations would resume Tuesday. He indicated both parties would meet separately during today's holiday.

Mass Murder, Suicide In Arkansas

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI)—A University of Arkansas coed Sunday said a mass murder and suicide during a reunion of an Ozark mountain family unfolded like a pantomime—unreal at first, then terrifyingly close.

Kris Anderson, 20, dark-haired and green-eyed, saw two persons shot down. Then she crouched with another woman in a cellar, pulling at the rusty door to keep it latched against the prowling murderer.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. George Basore gathered Saturday at the Basore's isolated farm in the Ozark mountains of northwestern Arkansas, near the community of Mount Olive.

Food had been spread on the table for the evening meal. Relatives who had not seen one another for months talked.

"It was a real nice Saturday afternoon. Everyone was just kind of sitting around," Miss Anderson said. She was sitting on the porch swing with her date, Chris Basore.

A car came up the hill and turned into the driveway. A woman got out. She was "very calm, cool and collected. She was dressed up like she was going to a party or something."

"Chris said it was his mother who just drove up. I thought 'well, I guess I'll get to meet her,'" Miss Anderson said. Chris' father and mother, Mrs. Elinore Basore, 45, of El Paso, Tex., had been separated for one year.

"Chris' grandmother came out to meet her. She (the woman) just walked up with a gun and shot her. Chris yelled, 'Mother,' and walked over to his grandmother's body. And she shot him." The grandmother, Mrs. George Basore, was killed. Chris was wounded critically.

"It just didn't look real. I thought I'd better just sit down and be quiet. She walked past me and went into the house. I heard a few shots," Miss Anderson said.

Then Miss Anderson walked into the house, quietly, a few minutes after the second volley of shots were fired.

"People were yelling. I figured this was for real. I left and went around to the side of the house. I found Chris' aunt, Mrs. Obie Harmon, and she was getting a little bit hysterical.

The two women found a storm cellar and hid there for 15 to 20 minutes. "The cellar door wouldn't stay closed and I had to hold it shut from the outside cause she was looking for people."

When police arrived they found six persons shot—only one—Chris—still alive.

"There was quite a bit of blood," said Arkansas State Trooper Quimby Johnson, one of the first to investigate the killings.

Sheriff Bill Long of Washington County said the woman used a 9-millimeter automatic pistol.

Dead were George Basore Sr., 71, his wife Wilma, 70; George Basore Jr., 49, of Fayetteville, and Obie Harmon, 49, of Oklahoma City, the Basore's son-in-law. Elinore Basore lay on the front porch steps where she had shot herself.

2 Booked In Suspicion Of Burglary

Two men were booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of burglary and conspiracy after police stopped a burglary at Montecito Shopping Center in San Rafael.

Arrested at 4:02 a.m. were Robert Lee Khier, 38, of San Francisco, and Henry Paredes, 39, of no known address. They were held to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

The men were arrested after police saw Khier running from the Montecito Self-Service Cleaners at 365 Third Street about 3 a.m., police said.

Paredes, trapped inside, crawled through a large vent into a subceiling where he hid for about 40 minutes before he fell through the ceiling, according to officers.

The cleaners and adjacent laundromat were ransacked, police said.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Mary Borgogna, 64, was in fair condition at Harbor General Hospital today after being shot in the chest with a crossbow bolt.

Childress was arrested on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder and investigation of insanity.

OAKLAND (UPI) — There were two unexplained explosions Sunday in Oakland—one at an advertising firm and the other at a school.

The blast at the Foster & Kleister billboard firm's office tore a hole in an outer wall.

More Time Will Be Asked On Annexation

The City of Tiburon will appear before the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission Wednesday night to ask for more time to process its annexation of more than a 1,000 acres on both sides of Tiburon Boulevard.

The LAFC meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. in the board of supervisors' chambers at the Civic Center.

Tiburon wants to annex 738 acres of the Strawberry Peninsula south of Tiburon Boulevard, including the Strawberry Shopping Center, and another 297 acres north of Tiburon Boulevard including Eagle Rock, Bayview Heights, and Bel Aire subdivisions.

On Sept. 16 last year, LAFC gave Tiburon a year's time to complete the annexation. Tiburon is now asking for an extension until Nov. 16. The annexation question is to voters of the areas to be annexed on Oct. 19.

In other items on the LAFC agenda, the City of Novato wants to annex 35 acres of land at San Marin Drive and Hill Road, where townhouses are planned, and Leland E. Stevenson, who owns 35 acres of land north of Muir Beach, wants to join the Muir Beach Community Services District so that he can get water supply for homes he plans to build.

Man, Mistaken For Policeman, Beaten

A 21-year-old San Rafael man was beaten up today at Carpenter's Hall after he apparently was mistaken for a Sausalito policeman, San Rafael police reported.

Mark B. Corey of 126 Filbert Street suffered large cuts and bruises on his back and face, black eyes, two broken teeth and scraped elbows at 2:34 a.m. He was treated at Marin General Hospital.

According to police, Corey went to Carpenter's Hall at 647 Lindaro Street in San Rafael to talk to a friend about parts for his car. A dance was in progress at the time.

Corey, who is white, said about a dozen black men jumped him when someone shouted, "He's a cop and he's a black belt."

Corey told police he was thrown to the ground and beaten with an auto wrench by one man while several others kicked and punched him.

Someone broke up the attack and Corey drove himself to the hospital, according to police.

Corey said he believes he was mistaken for a Sausalito policeman who drives the same kind of car he does, police reported.

Reagan Goes To Bat For Nixon

HOUSTON (UPI)—California Gov. Ronald Reagan asked the Young Americans for Freedom Sunday night to hold off on their rejection of President Nixon until the President has been given a chance to complete his proposed visit to Red China.

"We should remember that this same man stood in the glare of the television floodlights in a kitchen in Moscow and told Nikita Khrushchev that if he tried any rough stuff with this country, we'd kick the hell out of them," Reagan told the young conservatives.

The YAF withdrew its support of the Nixon administration Saturday, largely because of Nixon's new China policy. Reagan, speaking in a telephone address to the 1,600 delegates, said Democratic presidents had "disgraced" the nation in Vietnam, Cuba and Korea.

Hearing Set On Townhouses

The Corte Madera Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on the 630-unit Madera del Presidio townhouse development plan at 8 p.m. Thursday at the town hall council chambers.

The plan calls for the units to be constructed on 74 acres southeast of the H. Koch and Sons plant, between Highway 101 and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way.

Developer of the first phase, H. James Knuppe of Castro Valley, has proposed 154 units on the 16 acres closest to the Koch plant.

San Anselmo Man Arrested In Theft

A San Anselmo man was booked into Marin County Jail Saturday by Mill Valley police on suspicion of burglary and lewd lust for a child.

Thomas Joseph Messles of 153 Redwood Road was arrested on a warrant at 12:10 p.m. and held in lieu of $20,000 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow. Details of the arrest were not available.

Film Series Scheduled At New Campus

A 15-week film appreciation series will be the first community program presented by Indian Valley Colleges, new north campus for the Marin Community College District.

The series of historical, classical and contemporary films will begin at 7 p.m. Sept. 15 in Novato High School's lecture hall and will continue on Wednesdays until Dec. 22.

The same programs will be shown on Monday nights at College of Marin, beginning Sept. 13, but that course, given for credit, is almost full, college officials said.

Season tickets for the Novato series may be obtained by calling or writing College of Marin or at the first session. If there are extra seats, individual tickets will be sold, according to college officials.

The first film to be shown is "King of Hearts" to be followed by "La Strada" and "Rashomon." Other films in the series are "The Manchurian Candidate," "Divorce, Italian Style," "M," "Golddiggers of 1933" and "Top Hat."

The Philippines has 1,500 barrio village high schools with total enrollment of 160,000 students.

Year In Jail Handed Out For Burglary

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A Petaluma youth has been sentenced to a year in county jail by Judge Joseph R. Murphy Jr. of Sonoma Superior Court for burglarizing Wickes Lumber Co. in Petaluma on July 17.

Henry K. Ackerman, 19, had pleaded guilty to a charge of second degree burglary, a count that had been reduced from first degree burglary.

In sentencing Ackerman, Judge Murphy lifted a 10-month jail term imposed earlier in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court for violation of probation. When arrested, Ackerman was on probation as a result of a 1970 marijuana conviction.

Confrontation In The Jungle

BRASILIA (UPI)—When 100 Cacique Indians marched into a campsite in the Amazon region recently and demanded a bride for their chief, interpreters had a tough time explaining there were no women in the road-building camp, Brazilian Rep. Sinval Boaventura reported Sunday.

The Indians spotted a young topographer with long, blond hair and no beard.

"White man lie," said the Indian leader.

The young man finally had to strip. "White man don't lie," said the leader and the Indians disappeared back into the jungle, Boaventura said.

Editors To Get Peking Briefing

NEW YORK (UPI)—Distinguished experts on China and Japan will report to delegates attending the 1971 United Press International Editors and Publishers Conference (Edicon) in Honolulu, Oct. 3-6, it was announced yesterday.

The four-day meeting at the Ilikai Hotel will be devoted to an examination of the economic and political issues facing the nations of the Pacific, with emphasis on the China question and U.S. relations with Japan.

Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore has tentatively accepted an invitation to address the conference. President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Republic of the Philippines also has been invited to present his views on the major issues of the day.

The principal speaker on China will be Robert A. Scalapino, professor of political science at the University of California in Berkeley. Scalapino, era of the world's foremost authorities on China, will discuss the meaning and probable effects of Mainland China's new worldwide diplomatic offensive.

Other featured speakers will include Harlan Cleveland, president of the University of Hawaii and former U.S. diplomat; Adm. John S. McCain Jr., commander-in-chief of the U.S. forces in the Pacific; and Dr. Everett Kleinjans, chancellor of the East-West Center in Honolulu.

Advance registrations indicate that more than 350 newspaper executives and their wives will attend the conference, which will also include a full schedule of social activities.

"This is UPI's 12th annual Edicon," said UPI President Mims Thomason, "and the program that has been arranged with the help of our co-hosts, the Honolulu Advertiser and the Star-Bulletin, may be the most timely, important and provocative we have ever offered. It is designed to foster a deeper comprehension of the problems and issues that face the Asian nations and which both concern and involve the United States."

There will be four working sessions during the conference, with various authorities participating in panel meetings that will examine food and population problems throughout Asia in addition to the China and Japan equations.

Prof. Scalapino will keynote the session on the China question. Other speakers on the subject will include Lee Chia, veteran Tokyo correspondent for the Central News Agency of China, and Stephen Uhalley Jr., associate professor of history at the University of Hawaii and former officer of the Asia Foundation.

Another speaker will be Shintaro Fukushima, president of the Kyodo News Service and Japan Times. A former deputy secretary general of the Japanese cabinet, Fukushima is a member of Japan's delegation to the United Nations.

One of the conference sessions will be held in the Kennedy Theater at the East-West Center on the campus of the University of Hawaii. There, Dr. Kleinjans and his associates will discuss the progress of programs seeking solutions to critical food and population problems in Asian nations.

Briefings on various aspects of the UPI service will be delivered by H. L. Stevenson, managing editor; James F. Darr, director of communications; Julius Frandsen, vice president and Washington manager, and Wilbur G. Landrey, foreign editor.

Delegates also will hear from Mrs. Charles McDonald, a Honolulu resident who is an experienced writer and editor with very definite ideas on what readers want from their daily newspapers.

Presiding at the working sessions will be George Chaplin, editor of the Honolulu Advertiser; A. A. (Bud) Smyser, editor of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin; Robert Letts Jones, president, Copley Newspapers, La Jolla, Calif.; Ted Weegar, assistant managing editor, Los Angeles Times, and Roger Tatarian, UPI vice president and editor.

Social events will include a pre-conference reception and buffet aboard the American President Liner SS President Cleveland on Saturday, Oct. 2; a garden reception at the home of Gov. and Mrs. John A. Burns; a Hawaiian luau at the Makaha Inn; a picnic lunch on the grounds of the East-West Center; an afternoon cruise around Pearl Harbor, and a tour of private Hawaiian homes for the ladies.

The conference will close with the traditional banquet on Wednesday evening, Oct. 6, at the Ilikai Hotel.

Admiral Ponders Fleet's Future

By KIM WILLENSON

SAIGON (UPI)—Even though he took his flagship close to the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) a few days ago to fire her six-inch guns at Communist targets in the buffer strip, Vice Adm. William P. Mack is already thinking hard about what the U.S. Seventh Fleet should look like, and what it should do, after the war is over.

The subject that bothers him most right now is whether his fleet will be any match at all for the burgeoning Russian presence in Pacific and Indian waters, and the slowly growing Chinese Communist Navy, in the next three or four years.

The size of the Seventh Fleet, which he notes must represent the United States all the way from the Aleutian Islands to the East African coast, has declined 60 per cent, from 225 ships manned by 87,000 men in 1968 to 95 ships manned by 40,000 sailors today, as the Indochina war has begun to wind down.

At the same time the Soviet Pacific and Indian Ocean Fleet, operating off the Russian east coast ports of Vladivostok, Petropavlovsk and Sovetskaya Gavan, has grown to include more than 175 vessels, including 120 submarines, five cruisers and 25 destroyers —an awesome force that would easily outgun the Americans were it not for the U.S. aircraft carriers.

The Chinese Navy also has been growing, although as Mack admits, it so far has not chosen to venture outside China's territorial waters, and now includes 33 subs, four destroyers, 41 frigates and 380 missile armed gunboats.

The point of drawing all these comparisons, said Mack, is simply that the Navy is both the most flexible arm of the U.S. forces, and the one that does most of the representation of America's strength in time of peace.

"How do you influence a country as to whether she signs a treaty with you, or with someone else?" the 56-year-old admiral asked during an interview here this week. Then he shifted his lanky legs and answered his own question in a cool, precise voice.

"I'm thinking specifically of India," which recently signed a 20-year mutual defense treaty with the Soviet Union. "The Soviets do it by putting more ships in the area and visiting these countries more often.

"In the Orient, countries are influenced a lot more if you present yourself to them in a big, new guided missile cruiser than if you sail in with a little World War II destroyer."

Mack, who took over the Seventh Fleet about three months ago, and is described by his subordinates as "a breath of fresh air" in the Navy's crusty command structure, believes that Vietnam has severely limited the Seventh Fleet's ability to perform its major missions in the two oceans.

"We've only been doing about one-tenth of what we should have been doing," says Mack. "We've been too busy fighting the war."

Mack is deeply concerned by the cuts that have been made in the Navy's Pacific strength since President Nixon decided to wind down the war.

"I'm not saying we don't have adequate forces out here right now to do the job," he says. Even another incident like the capture of the intelligence ship Pueblo by the North Koreans two years ago could be handled. "That's why we have three carriers in the Pacific."

"But we see stretching ahead of us in the next three or four years a draw/down in the Pacific Fleet at the same time the Russians and the Chinese are building up. The position could be entirely different then."

Even now the fleet is somewhat smaller than it was before Vietnam began, although it has newer and better ships, particularly big aircraft carriers of the Forrestal class, and Mack says "actually I think we have a better force than we had" in the early 1960s.

The current level of activity off the Vietnam coast, where there are generally one or two aircraft carriers and three or four destroyers firing against shore targets, is not an overriding preoccupation, but it does keep the Navy from doing its job elsewhere, says Mack.

The Russians now keep a destroyer and two to three smaller ships on station in the Indian Ocean all the time, and their bigger cruisers and other vessels visit Indian and African ports frequently. "All we can put in there now is about one ship every other month," he says.

"If a serious contingency came up where we were required somewhere else, we'd leave tomorrow, of course," the admiral said. "But without the war we could take some of these ships and visit the Indian Ocean, Taiwan and other places where we ought to be showing the flag."

Bennett Blasts Phone 'Lobbying'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A consumer advocate has charged Pacific Telephone was "improper lobbying" with members of the state Public Utilities Commission in order to get a $143 million rate increase.

William M. Bennett, of Kentfield, a member of the state Board of Equalization who represents Consumers Arise Now, told the state Supreme Court that consumers "cannot get a fair hearing" before the present PUC.

Bennett addressed the high court in its review of the phone rate increase granted by the PUC—the largest in state history.

He asked the court to name an "independent hearing officer" to investigate into Pacific's alleged lobbying and to guarantee consumers a "fair hearing" in a new review of the rate increase.

Judge Orders Warrants In Creek Cases

Bench warrants have been issued for three persons who have failed to appear in Marin Municipal Court on charges stemming from a 1969 demonstration against the Tamalpais Creek Flood Control Project.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set bail at $250 Friday on warrants for Charles Ernest Wollard, John Henry Weber and John Dennis Ruchenski.

Warrants for the three, as well as for seven other persons arrested in the demonstration, were ordered Aug. 11 by Judge Peter Allen Smith of municipal court, but issuance of the warrants was held up to give the defendants a final chance to appear in court.

Five of the ten have since appeared in court.

Cranston Asks Off-Limits Areas

By BENJAMIN SHORE
I-J Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., has asked the National Park Service to declare certain marine life areas of Point Reyes National Seashore off limits to humans until a park master plan can be implemented.

Cranston, in a letter to Park Service Director George Hartzog, requested "immediate and forceful action" to keep marine life from being "collected out of existence."

Cranston's top aide, Roy Greenaway, who visited the park Aug. 11, said "high school biology classes are often the worst offenders."

Greenway conferred with Point Reyes officials and studied the investigation of Gordon Chan, head of the Marine Biology Department at the College of Marin.

Chan asserts that collectors and sightseers have completely destroyed Moss Landing from a marine biology point of view, and that Duxbury Reef west of Bolinas is half destroyed, Greenaway said.

In his letter to Hartzog, Cranston noted that the proposed Point Reyes master plan will establish "Research Natural Areas" that will protect marine life at Point Reyes Head, Double Point, and portions of Esteros and Tomales points.

But these ecologically fragile areas are in danger of destruction, Cranston said, because of drawn-out deliberations over the master plan.

"Meanwhile, the park is being used daily by thousands of visitors without the protections which will be afforded by the master plan," Cranston told Hartzog. "In a very short time, the results can prove disastrous for all wild life and specifically for the unique marine and invertebrate specimens of the tidal areas."

"Well-meaning visitors — tourists, uninformed nature lovers, high school science students — can with the best of intentions strip a tidal pool of its irreplaceable life forms in no time," Cranston wrote.

"The Pacific moon snails, geoduck clams, gaint mussels and giant abalones for which Point Reyes is noted can be collected out of existence while we await a resolution of the arguments about where the public roads are to be located."

The debate is over which of the numerous roads at Point Reyes should be kept open for public use, and whether more roads should be added to the existing system.

Plan Endorsed To Buy Railroad

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) examiner has endorsed a plan to allow the 14,000 employees of the Chicago & North Western Railroad to buy the 11,500-mile line from Northwest Industries, the railroad's parent firm.

However, the examiner, Edward J. Reidy, said Thursday the plan may be "latent with unforeseeh imperfections" and recommended that a number of restrictions be imposed on the sale.

If the ICC, which called the plan "unique in railroad history", approves the transaction it could result in the nation's largest employee-owned firm.

Rock Singer Is Sued: $3 Million

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A disgruntled landlord has sued Sylvester Steward, leaded of the group "Sly and the Family Stone," for $3 million, contending the rock singer was driving out other tenants.

L. Kates, doing business as Dohney West Investment Co., said Steward leased an apartment in his exclusive West Hollywood Building and soon let it become "inundated with loud, noisy, boisterous persons."

The suit contended that various rock groups "entered a conpsiracy" to drive out other tenants and several residents have given notice they intend to move.

STUDENT TRAINING DEVICE

Don Herriott of Petaluma, a student at Sonoma State College, conducts a test of a $50,000 air pollution measuring device which will be put to use by students of a class in environmental physics when school opens this month. The new equipment, designed to be a vital part of student field projects, was purchased with the help of a National Science Foundation grant obtained by Dr. John Dunning, physics professor who will teach the course.

Tunney Urges Halt To Blast In Alaska

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., has urged President Nixon to cancel a planned underground nuclear blast in Alaska because of its possible damage to relations between the U.S. and Japan.

Tunney, in a letter this week to Nixon, said the President's Sept. 26 meeting in Alaska with Japan's Emperor Hirohito could be marred by U.S. insistence in carrying out the nuclear test.

Japan, Tunney noted, is opposed to nuclear testing. Furthermore, the underground test of an anti-ballistic-missile missile warhead could threaten Japan with tidal waves and fish contamination.

Tunney previously has opposed the nuclear test on a remote Aleutian island on the grounds of possible environmental hazards for theU.S. The freshman Senator also has argued that the current strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) could make such expensive testing unnecessary.

Tunney reminded Nixon that Hirohito's trip later this month marks the first time a reigning Japanese Emperor has set foot on foreign soil.

"The importance of this meeting to the Japanese is evident by that fact alone," Tunney said.

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam at Independence Palace for one hour today, U.S. officials said.

Mass Murder In Australia

ADELAIDE, AUSTRALIA (UPI)—Eight children and two adults were systematically shot to death at a lonely south Australian farmhouse in the worst mass slaying in Australian history, police said today. Most of the victims had been shot through the head while in bed, police said. Police said a 40-year-old farmer was being questioned about the shootings.

The shooting occurred about dawn at a small timber farmhouse at Hope Forest, a dairy farming community with a population of about 150, about 35 miles southeast of Adelaide.

The farmer's wife, aged about 40, and his seven children were among the victims. Nine of the dead were found inside the farmhouse, most still in bed; and the 10th, a woman about 40, was found lying about 15 feet from the front door of the house. Like the others she had been shot through the head.

Four of the children were girls, aged 4, 13, 15 and 17. The dead boys were aged 19, 10, 8 years and 7 months.

The University of Michigan, in 1842, became the first to establish a professorship in zoology and botany.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

8 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1971 EDITORIAL PAGE

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

One Little Cloud On School Horizon

Nearly 52,000 children and young adults are expected to throng Marin County's public schools as they open for a new term next week.

We have heard no prediction of any sort of trouble at the opening, other than the usual confusion attendant on getting so many youngsters assigned to the proper classes and more-or-less regimented to schedule after the summer vacation.

This is in contrast to the situation in some other areas.

IN SAN FRANCISCO, massive protest at a court-backed busing plan is expected to disrupt the resumption of classwork. (A clue to the inept handling of San Francisco's school matters that brings this about may be found in plans of that city's superintendent to fly off to Europe shortly after the school year opens.)

In some southern cities where busing plans for the sake of racial integration are being implemented for the first time, there already have been incidents of violence. By and large, however, the southern schools opened last week with little trouble — so little that it likely would have gone unnoticed were not all eyes focused on them.

HERE IN MARIN and Sonoma, we may expect the now-customary feuds over discipline regulations (or the lack of them), class-cutting, hair length, sensitivity training, etc., before the year is anywhere near ended. But these have become such regular items that they may as well be accepted as natural accompaniments to the process of education.

Our schools here should be in better position for a smooth-running year — with improved education resulting — than they have been for some time. Hardly any of them face crowding problems. In few cases has it been deemed necessary to redraw attendance lines, shifting children to different schools than they attended last year. Because there no longer is a teacher shortage, the districts have had no problem filling faculty spots with presumably qualified persons.

There is one little cloud, however, that may bring storms — although it shouldn't.

THE PRESIDENT'S wage-price freeze caught some school districts "between contracts." Teachers in such districts will be denied, at least temporarily, salary boosts they had expected. And they will, of course, be the more unhappy because teachers in other districts got their pay raised before the freeze took effect.

The National Education Association, the American Federation of Teachers, and their California affiliates, the California Teachers Association and California Federation of Teachers, are making a great to-do over this. NEA has promised court challenges. CFT has urged teachers to go on strike against the freeze.

It is impossible to impose a wage-price freeze without some injustices. Somebody "got his" before the deadline and somebody else "just missed his" because of it — no matter when it is set.

We would hope that teachers, whose responsibilities include helping to instill a sense of fair play in their young charges, would recognize this and refrain from disrupting the schools for selfish ends.

Sassy Mosquitoes

Mosquitoes have been more sassy in Marin this year. These miniature vampires have become resistent to most of the standard insecticides. And it is no longer ecologically proper to shotgun them with broad spectrum insecticides.

Two scientists at the University of California at Riverside have developed a new weapon against mosquitoes. A spray made of concentrated extract from two species of common algae has been found to be effective against five kinds of mosquito.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Marin Transit Thinks Big, But At Whose Expense?

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Marin Transit Systems Inc. no longer is content to gnaw on the hand that feeds it — it wants to devour the whole arm.

The Marin City-based company at least cannot be accused of thinking too small. All it wants, in exchange for abandoning its three-month campaign to hold up the Golden Gate Bridge District's $6.3 million federal grant for a bus system, is one-third of the district's entire fleet of 152 buses!

It said so in a letter last month to the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration, which is processing the grant.

THAT THE COMPANY could succeed in killing the grant is unimaginable, but if it did its victory over the district would be at the expense of every citizen who will depend on the district's transit system. The district then would have to pay for the buses out of its own reserve, crippling for several years its financial ability to move into further transit operations.

This is a horrendously high price to pay for the Marin City company's push up to the public trough to create its own private windfall of tax funds.

THE COMPANY, trying to force its way into a service far beyond its financial ability, claims that the district's bus system will replace the company's system. This ignores the facts that it is Greyhound Lines-West that is being replaced (enthusiastically), and that Marin Transit Systems has only five buses.

Not all the shots in the company's campaign are being called by its operators, however. More than $150,000 is owed to capitalists who see the grant application as their chance to recover their investment. Their money apparently became an investment when the company converted its uncollectible debts to stock.

As for the company's professed concerns about the welfare of its employees — who would be hired by the bridge district — we note that the company pays its drivers well below the wages to be paid by the district.

THE COMPANY'S CLAIM that it is an aggrieved party also ignores the fact that it had no scheduled service until it got a county subsidy early last year. That subsidy, running about 80 per cent of costs, will total almost $117,000 by December.

County and bridge district officials always stressed that this subsidized service was temporary until the bridge district's bus system could be started. The company prefers to overlook this express provision in its contract with county and bridge district.

MAN BITES DOG

"The moment our money ran out, we should have gone home instead of selling our airline tickets."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Stand Of Oregon Health Director Praised

May I congratulate you on your great editorial of Aug. 31.

How very encouraging to know that one man has the courage to resign a position which I am sure was a well paying one for the sake of a principle and for the sake of our children. Dr. Peter Batten of Marion County, Ore., certainly voices my feelings and I am sure those of the majority of parents who really care about their children's moral well-being.

How long must parents be dictated to by the state and by groups who unwittingly contribute to the moral breakdown of the young people and the ultimate breakdown of all parental control? As you so ably pointed out, "They sell the program to lawmakers. Nobody really sounds out the public." How can it be, in a country where the right of the individual is the most paramount principal, that the rights of parents are daily being denied to them by family planning advocates? The parents who would rather not know if their young people are using the services of such groups are in essence giving consent. I insist at least on being notified if my children are being given any services by these people, just as I would be if they were being given financial assistance or were in any legal trouble. How can it be that I am responsible for any act my children commit that is unlawful yet I am not responsible enough to decide the most important moral issues?

Bouquets to Dr. Batten of Marion County for a most courageous stand.

Bouquets to the I-J for a fine editorial on a most important issue.

Coverage Nominated For Sort Of An Award

Perhaps your coverage of Mr. Walter Cole's grandstanding acts in warning negligent motorists of a CHP inspection will win the half-wit journalism award. Obviously you did a great deal of research as to the alleged [illegible] for faulty equipment (usually none). Who must now pay for Mr. Cole's glory? Next time you report a tragic accident caused by a car with blinding headlights or no tail lights, why don't you call Mr. Cole and praise him for his great public service.

Planning Department Explains Its Criteria

In answer to Mr. Edwin B. Heinlein's question ("Readers Say" Aug. 28) about "what was the rationale, the rules, or the assumption used in making the population predictions for the preliminary countywide plan", I submit the following:

1. The rationale was to use a systematic model, not just a computer, to test what the differences in the amount and location of growth would be under different transportation systems. A model simply simulates a vast number of actions that have been observed to take place in the real world in certain relationships which can be expressed mathematically. For example the general tendency of people to live as close to work as they can afford to.

2. The rules were that the land in Marin that could be developed, completed in terms of accessibility with similar vacant lands in the rest of the region for the housing market created by projected new employment. Increasing the supply of land or reducing the travel time to job centers produced more growth as a rule. However in some parts of the county, improved access didn't make a significant amount of difference in growth rates because the market demand could be satisfied in locations that were closer in.

Finally we didn't offer these model runs so much as predictions, as we did as a way of understanding the degree of change in growth that we get when we vary the transportation system or land supply. We would very much agree with Mr. Heinlein, that the idea of the county-wide plan is not to project and serve past trends, but to find out how we can get the kind of future Marin ought to have. Therefore we did use common sense indicators when we said that freeways to West Marin were not only objectionable in a planning sense, but would probably not generate enough growth and therefore traffic to justify their existence on a user benefit basis anyway.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

Bowing To School Teachers Could Undermine Wage Freeze

(John S. Knight in Detroit Free Press)

As much as I applaud President Nixon's wage-price freeze, there are disturbing indications that his bold and constructive action is being diluted by "exceptions" being granted by the Cost of Living Council.

A case in point is the wavering interpretation that school teachers — in most instances — will not be subject to the ban and are eligible for pay raises if contracts were negotiated prior to Aug. 15 when the freeze went into effect.

IT HAS BEEN estimated that 80 per cent of the nation's 2.3 million school teachers will now receive increases. Yet the fact sheet issued by the White House on Aug. 15 clearly speaks of a 90-day freeze "of all wages and prices."

In its question and answer section, the fact sheet offers these examples for "basic policy guidance:"

1 — Are price increases that have already been announced to take effect in the future subject to the freeze?

Yes, all price increases must be controlled.

2 — Are deferred wage and salary increases which have been negotiated to take effect in the future permitted by the freeze?

No.

WELL, THAT SEEMS plain enough. But now the freeze, "monitored by the Office of Emergency Preparedness and under the policy direction of a newly established Cabinet Cost of Living Council chaired by Treasury Secretary Connally," appears to be placing teachers in a privileged class.

The power of politics and the muscle of the teacher's unions seem to negate the administration's tough edict of Aug. 15 that the freeze applied to "all wages and prices."

So why doesn't it? Does the new Cost of Living Council intend to make further exemptions, possibly to elements of labor and business?

If so, Mr. Nixon's brave new plan is headed for trouble. The American people, with some dissenting, are prepared to support the administration's economic policies provided the rules apply to everyone.

As former Ohio Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, who was head of the Office of Price Stabilization in 1950, expressed it: "When you bob a cat's tail, chop it off right down to the base; if you don't do it that way, all you'll get is a mad cat with a sore tail."

Vietnamese People More Ready For Democracy Than Are Leaders

WASHINGTON — The results of the latest national assembly elections are evidence that South Vietnam is not about to fall apart.

The most significant fact to emerge is that the South Vietnamese people are practicing the essential elements of a functioning democracy.

The South Vietnamese democracy is proving itself well-served at the voter level even when it is being disserved at the leadership level.

LOOK AT WHAT happened:

More Vietnamese went to the polls than ever before in history. The total vote represented the highest percentage of the electorate — 79 per cent — far higher than in the United States even in presidential elections.

By threat and stepped-up military action the Viet Cong tried to keep the people from voting — and couldn't.

If the Thieu government tried to intimidate the opposition not to vote, it failed. The anti-Thieu vote went up considerably.

The antiwar An Quang party, the activist center of the spiritual and political influence of the Buddhists, tripled their seats in the assembly from 10 to 30. This accretion of power improved the prospect that the Buddhists, who constitute the major opposition to President Thieu, will operate within the system and not seek their ends by violence.

While the pro-Thieu majority in the national assembly was appreciably reduced — the number of opposition seats being doubled — the vote left Thieu in effective control. Thus the election warned the Thieu administration that it faces significant dissatisfaction and at the same time enabled the government to continue to function.

THIS ADDS UP to a considerable political achievement in the face of Communist harassment and the strains of the war.

It is regrettable that the top leaders of South Vietnam are failing to show a similar sense of discipline and responsibility. Right now nothing could be more harmful to South Vietnam than a sham, no-contest, Communist-style election in which the voters are given no alternative.

In the national assembly elections, just completed, the South Vietnamese showed they want to choose their leaders, not just vote yes or no on one candidate and that they are capable of choosing with great discrimination and enlarged numbers. They proved that they are ready to grasp the electoral process at the national level if their leadership is ready to make it available.

President Thieu, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and Gen. Duong Van Minh have thus far all contributed to denying their people this opportunity in the Oct. 3 presidential election.

PERHAPS MR. THIEU thought he could sideline Vice President Ky without reaping the consequence of a no-contest shadow election. He failed.

Ky was finally ruled eligible by the supreme court and now Ky says he won't run unless Thieu resigns.

General Minh announced his candidacy and then withdrew it on the contention that it wouldn't be a fair vote.

Note that the assembly candidates who were defeated last week are not complaining about an unfair vote.

Ky and Minh may think they are bravely harassing President Thieu, but what they are really doing is grievously disserving the South Vietnamese voters.

The South Vietnamese deserve better of their leaders.

What Big Labor Forgot Comes Alive In Fields

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

DELANO, Calif. — Labor Day is when people lasso their children one last time after the summer holidays and corral them in the back of their cars and drive them home through murderous traffic to begin another year at school. The parent or schoolchild who ever gives 10 seconds' thought to why it is called Labor Day is a novelty. For that matter, to most Americans the very word "labor" today means nothing resembling what it stood for a generation ago.

Labor today is George Meany, who used to be a plumber but today smokes big cigars and in even years plays golf with the President, and refers to cabinet secretaries assigned to deal with him as the President's janitors. Or it is a plumber, whose hourly wage if not his fingernails sets him apart now as one of nature's better-rewarded noblemen.

It is Harry Bridges, continuing the West Coast dock strike as part of his struggle to keep control of his union, and it is Jimmy Hoffa in prison, and hardhats riding construction rigs and roughing up citizens of different preferences in hair styles and politics, and it is railroad workers or sanitation engineers or subway motormen or airline pilots or telephone operators making life miserable for the rest of us for another ridiculous pay riase.

IT IS NOT, any more, what it was when I was a boy and around our house buying a magazine that did not bear the union printers' label was a sin, and it is not what it was when Walter Reuther was organizing the automobile plants or what it was when the miners and the companies fought along Cabin Creek, W. Va. It is not, here in California, what John Steinbeck brought home to the rest of us in "The Grapes of Wrath" and "In Dubious Battle."

In short, the word "labor" does not connote the underdog any more, not to most of us.

But try telling that to one of the deep brown-skinned men who were bending double to bring in a ripening tomato crop in the hot sunshine of a Sunday afternoon alongside the Ortega highway above Capistrano the other afternoon. It will not sit well with them, or with the others like them who breathe insecticide dust in the vineyards of the great Central Valley, or move with the crops up and down from Texas to Michigan, from Florida to New Jersey. Or with Cesar Chavez, who is trying to do for them now, what Walter Reuther and John L. Lewis and Philip Murray did years ago for men who worked with hands indoors and in the cities.

Because of their success, the labor vote was solidified and its presence produced reams of legislation, including minimum wage laws. Solid organization, which means strikes or the threat of strikes, gave new meaning to union-management negotiations in nearly every industry. By now, even increased minimum wage floors have been so far bypassed that the only people most Americans know who are working at the minimum are nice colored ladies who come in and do their housework or high school tackles playing busboy during vacation.

UNION LABOR on Labor Day, 1971, means millions of men and their families who have moved upward from the ranks of the have-nots since the 1940s. And now that they have theirs, as the saying goes, their main interest is in adding to it, in the form of boats, second cars, third TVs and expanding waistlines.

The days when working men used the word "brother" in addressing other union members are both gone and forgotten. The extent of a New York electrician's concern over the wages and living condition of a Spanish-speaking grape picker could not be quantified, even with decimal points.

It would be educational for that electrician, or his other highly paid fellow craftsmen and assembly-line workers, to pass through Delano this Labor Day and see the meager pink shack that Chavez's United Farm Workers Organizing Committee called its headquarters until recently, and the bigger but still crude one-story buildings the committee now occupies west of town.

The temperature in the valley has been up around 100 every day this past week. To know that men are working hard in that heat, and still trying to win the right to bargain as a union for things long ago taken for granted by other workers, might conceivably even bring the word "brother" back to mind the next time a boycott is mounted on grapes or cabbages in the supermarkets of the city.

County Safety Commission May Be On Its Way Out

Marin County Safety Commission, established in 1957 to reduce accidents and promote safety among county employees, may be on its way out.

It's not that safety and reduction of mishaps aren't important. The trouble with the safety commission has been that it could growl, reprimand, and issue demerits but it had no real authority. Its actions were merely recommendations to department heads.

Another weakness of the safety commission is that often there is no accurate way to gauge the degree of responsibility on the part of county employees who were unfortunate enough to be involved in a mishap.

If a road crew member fell into a ditch, and hurt himself, the degree of responsibility is difficult to pin down. Were the mishaps avoidable? And if so, should the person responsible get one demerit, two demerits, or a suspension? Each verdict is subjective, and equity in penalties is impossible to achieve.

If and when the safety commission quietly bows out, no one is likely to mourn its passing.

With the safety commission gone, the county personnel office will probably keep a list of accidents as they occur and turn them over to each department to review and take appropriate measures.

THE IN-HOUSE appointment of John F. Barrows to the post of county administrator was a disappointment to those who were hoping for nationwide recruiting.

The promotion indicates that the supervisors are not looking for a strong man or an innovator to make drastic changes in county administration; that they are content with the present procedures.

The supervisors don't want a free-wheeling administrator dictating policy; neither do they want a yes-man serving merely as an errand boy with neither the initiative nor the courage to suggest alternative courses of action.

To strike a happy medium between these two types of administrators is a difficult one. Former Administrator Alan Bruce did a good job, perhaps leaning on the side of independence and bluntness. This led to his sudden departure last June.

Barrows also has a reputation for being blunt on occasion. But the consensus is that he is a bit more tactful than Bruce, and therefore may not step on so many toes. Even if he did, he'll probably tread rather than stomp.

New Draft Law Strikes Out Pair of Inequities

By DANIEL RAPOPORT

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Little noticed during the furor in Congress over antiwar and military pay raise amendments to the stymied Selective Service bill were provisions intended to eliminate from the draft two of the most frequently complained of inequities.

When Congress breaks its stalemate over the measure and revives the currently suspended draft, no new student deferments will be granted. Also, youths will be called up from a national pool rather than through state and local quotas. That means a young man's outlook for being drafted will not be affected by which local board he registers with.

The draft act that expired June 30 required that deferment be granted to any registrant satisfactorily pursuing a fulltime course of instruction at an institution of higher learning. The deferment was good until the student reached 24 or received his bachelor's degree, whichever occurred first.

At President Nixon's request, both the House and Senate voted to repeal that mandatory feature.

The compromise that House-Senate conferees negotiated includes repeal of the automatic deferment. But the conferees decided that any student who was eligible for deferment during the 1970-71 academic year could keep his deferment until he graduated —as under the old law.

Under the revised law — presuming its ultimate enactment —youths entering college will not enjoy that privilege. But that isn't to say they are prime candidates for the draft. To begin with, a freshman usually is 17 or 18 years old and the Selective Service System does not take a boy until he is 19.

Additionally, the new law will protect a student from a sudden disruption of his studies in the event he has a low lottery number and it comes up. The law specifies that a student receiving an induction order may have his induction postponed to the end of the semester —or if he is a senior, until the end of the academic year.

Thus most of the "unprotected" students entering college this fall probably will not face the prospect of the draft until 1973. And the end of June that year will mark the expiration of the new draft law and will be the date by which the administration hopes to switch to an all-volunteer army.

The net result: notwithstanding the official elimination of student deferments few students likely will be inducted while the draft continues.

Removal of a genuine inequity will take place with the establishment of a national call and the abolishment of state and local draft quotas. No longer will a youth be ordered up for induction by his draft board while a friend with a lower lottery number, but registered with a different board, escape the draft.

The seeming unfairness stems from the incompatibility between a national lottery and local quotas. The annual drawing in Washington seen by millions on television suggests that youths all over the country will be called up in the order that their birthdates were drawn from the bowl.

That is true. The catch is that birthdates are not spread evenly throughout local boards. For example, a local board assigned a July quota of 10 might have to dip down to lottery number 140 while another board with an equal quota might have to reach down to 165.

Under the new legislation the President would be authorized to suspend the quota system. In its place would be a Uniform National Call.

"All young men (will) face exactly the same liability to induction as other men with the same lottery number," the House Armed Services Committee wrote in a report accompanying the draft bill.

As the committee put it: "It is simply a matter of luck of the draw and no longer a question of being in a 'good' board or a 'bad' board."

Horsemen Seek To Use School For Show Ring

The San Anselmo School District board at its regular meeting tomorrow will hear a request from the Horsemen's Association of Sleepy Hollow to build a horse ring on the lot above Hidden Valley School.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the library of Red Hill School.

The horseman's association proposes to maintain the ring, and conduct clinics, schooling shows, horse shows, horsemanship and horse mastership programs.

All organized activities undertaken by the horseman's association would be coordinated through the school and would be open to anyone wishing to participate.

The board will also hear information comparing the district's financial position with other Marin school districts.

Winds Shaking The Stone Face

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Great Stone Face of New Hampshire is being shaken by strong and virtually continual winds, according to the conclusions of a two-year study conducted by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The agency recommended in the report that turnbuckles applied to the Great Stone Face several years ago be reinforced to reduce vibrations caused by the wind.

The study also found that quarry blasts, earthquakes, nuclear explosions and small tremors were affecting the natural rock formation, but without appreciable damage.

The so-called Old Man of the Mountain or Great Stone Face, after the short story by Nathaniel Hawthorne, is the leading tourist attraction in New Hampshire which derives $250 million annually from visitors.

Unresolved Issues Face Lawmakers

By CARL INGRAM

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California legislators will return Tuesday after a three-week vacation to face still unresolved major issues, some of which worsened in their absence.

Left hanging were tax reform, a massive $300-to $350 million budget deficit, reapportionment, investigations of San Quentin Prison and school finance.

No one is willing to wager on an early adjournment date and there is some sentiment to postpone major overhaul of property tax reform and school financing until next year, especially since the state Supreme Court's school decision last week.

But Speaker Bob Moretti, the man who calls the shots in the Assembly, pledged that when his house reconvenes "tax reform, particularly property tax and school financing, will be the first issue we address ourselves to."

The Van Nuys Democrat said the court decision striking down the current public school financing system as unconstitutional merely emphasized the "urgent need for sweeping tax reform."

One thing is certain: Taxes must be increased to offset a budget deficit of up to $350 million.

Some Democratic leaders insist that overall reform is necessary, including a $500 million tax increase, $100 million of which would be earmarked for additional state aid to schools.

But Reagan appeared to rule out extra aid for schools based on higher taxes when he told California business leaders last week that "I am unalterably opposed to new spending funded by increased taxes."

He maintains that most of the budget deficit would be made up by adoption of payroll withholding of the state income tax. Democrats included withholding as an ingredient of an overall tax revision plan.

Many lawmakers believe it is too late this session to enact a school finance plan that could take effect this year and that the issue should be studied thoroughly in the interim so the 1972 Legislature can tackle it.

The court held the current system unconstitutional because it relies heavily on the local property tax for support of schools, an inequitable method which varies from district to district and discriminates against the poor.

A major effect of the decision was to make the financing of local schools more of a state responsibility. Many lawmakers feel it'll be tough for the state to provide funds for both homeowner tax relief and pay a much bigger share of education costs.

"It will be harder for us to come up with major amounts of property tax money if we are faced with financing schools," observed Senate leader James Mills, D-San Diego.

He also forecast a state vs. local control struggle over how the school money would be spent.

"If we're going to raise it, we've got the responsibility to see that it is well-spent," he said. "This will require considerable attention."

The lawmakers recessed Aug. 13 after overhauling the welfare and Medi-Cal programs, two issues which had tied the legislature in knots for months and blocked passage of other major bills such as coastline control.

Smoldering on a backburner but suddenly propelled into new prominence by the slayings of George Jackson, two other inmates and three guards at San Quentin were proposals for legislative investigations into the California prison system.

Assemblyman John Burton, chairman of the Assembly Rules Committee, said he will seek swift and favorable action on a resolution by Negro Assemblyman Bill Greene proposing a legislative probe of prison race relations.

Certain to be among the last issues resolved will be reapportionment of the legislature, a political life-and-death decision for some incumbents.

Democrats outnumber Republicans in both the Assembly and Senate. The issue is crucial because it will largely determine the political complexion of the California Legislature for the next decade.

Registration For Rec Events

Registrations are being taken at the Terra Linda Recreation Center for fall programs, including classes for pre-schoolers, adults and youngsters.

For adults, there will be lessons in such subjects as bridge, painting, yoga, guitar, dance, tennis and swimming. Flag football registrations are still open for boys from the fourth grade through the eighth.

Music awareness and ballet classes are also scheduled for youngsters as is a tiny tots program.

The Hunter Cutting Into Cougar's Food

(EDITOR'S NOTE: There are 101 animals, birds, reptiles and fishes in the United States that face extinction. In a 12-part series beginning today, wildlife author Darryl Stewart, relates the background of 12 endangered American species.)

By DARRYL STEWART
Toronto Telegram Syndicate

The cougar is the second largest cat in the western hemisphere. Only the jaguar is bigger. A full-grown specimen may weigh 220 pounds and reach an overall length of eight and a half feet.

Known by a wide variety of names including puma, mountain lion, Florida panther, painter, catamount, screamer, Indian devil and king cat, the cougar does not roar. Instead, he has a call similar to an agonized scream.

Man and cougar do not get along together. The cougar is capable of killing a man but is glad to avoid him. In fact, he is the most timid of the world's large cats. Cougars attack humans rarely but a few well-authenticated reports do exist. He is a skilled killer of game and rarely attacks domestic livestock.

Due to the bounty system, dedicated to the extermination of all predators, the cougar has been trapped, shot and rendered so rare, that he has all but disappeared in many areas of the United States. Coupled with the devastation of the forest cover along the eastern seaboard and in the Midwest, and the decimation of deer herds in certain areas, the cougar's demise can cause little surprise. Today, there are few areas which can boast a cougar population.

Formerly it was found throughout the Americas, from northern British Columbia south to Patagonia. Now cougars are found only in remote mountainous regions of the West, parts of the adjoining desert areas and certain regions along the Pacific coast.

Wherever cougars still exist in some numbers, hunting is still very much in vogue. The usual hunting method today is with the aid of dog packs. The hounds chase the large cat until it is forced to take refuge in a tree, where the hunter is able to pick off his quarry with little danger to himself.

Unfortunately, the cougar is a great temptation to the trophy hunter. Unethical guides take parties out cougar hunting and guarantee the hunter will bag a cougar (for a handsome fee, of course). In this case, the cat has been caught alive, and put to sleep so it can be handled safely. The guide then turns the cougar loose. Of course, the hunter does not know that he is bagging a planted cat.

The cougar population has also been depleted because its main source of food, the deer, was thinned out by hunters. At the best of times, the cougar has a hard time. Some biologists claim that it is unusual for a healthy, normal deer to be taken. It is further estimated that the big cat is successful only once on every seven occasions.

Despite the general rarity of the cougar throughout most of the country, predator control is still practised, even though in most places they are rare.

Also, as its prey species consist of the deer, and to a lesser extent the porcupine, which are generally numerous, a predator such as the cougar does far more good than harm. On rare occasions, when both deer and porcupine may be scarce, even skunks are not disdained.

In the East, the cougar is close to extinction. Once common throughout the eastern United States, it now exists only in the region of the Florida Everglades, where it is known as the panther.

The Florida panther is on the endangered list and is estimated to have a population of no more than a 100. There is the remote possibility that the cougar could still have managed to survive in Maine and in the southern Appalachian Mountains. Cougar tracks have also been reported from New Jersey in 1958 and Massachusetts in 1960. Unfortunately, due to the animal's elusive habits, population estimates are impossible to obtain.

Experience has shown that no large mammal has survived in the East without the help of man. This help is desperately needed immediately to save the Florida panther.

Robbers Take Food Stamps

A Fairfax man was robbed of $16 in food stamps by two juveniles who approached him while he was hitchhiking Friday at the entrance to Highway 101 near its junction with Shoreline Highway.

James A: Simpson, 27, of 101 Woodland Avenue, told Marin County Sheriff's deputies that two youths between 18 and 20 years old, approached him about 9 p.m.

One of them pulled out a .22-caliber revolver and said, "This is a hold-up," Simpson reported.

They searched him, he said, and took the food stamps from his pockets.

Bakery Customer Turns Into Thief

A bakery customer with sticky fingers snatched $285 in cash from an open cash register at Walther's Bakery at Strawberry Town and Country Village Shopping Center, Marin County Sheriff's office reported today.

Deputies said the money was taken Aug. 28, apparently while a waitress at the bakery was busy.

Orientation Set At San Rafael High

San Rafael High School will have orientation for freshman and new students from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at the school auditorium, according to Asst. Principal John Donovan.

The school will open Sept. 13 at 8 a.m., allowing a period for registration before the regular class schedule. The normal starting time, 8:10 a.m., will go into effect Sept. 14.

Purses Taken

Two purses, one of them containing $120 in cash, were stolen from a car owned by Angela M. Longo of 16 Culloden Street, San Rafael, while it was parked on Mount Tamalpais Thursday, Marin County Sheriff's office reported today.

Three Burglary Suspects Held

Three Waldo Point men were arrested Saturday on suspicion of burglary and booked into Marin County Jail by Sausalito police.

Arrested were Gregory Dale Myers, 28 and Wayne Royce Wallin, 26, both of Gate 5 and Ned Beach Pearson 29, of Gate 6.

Myers and Wallin were each held today in lieu of $1,875 bail to appear Wednesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Pearson was held to appear tomorrow in municipal court. Further details of the arrests were unavailable.

Mysterious Blast On Mt. Tam

A mysterious explosion heard from Mill Valley to San Anselmo started a one-half acre brush fire on Mount Tamalpais yesterday.

The blast at 6:40 p.m. generated a flood of phone calls to police and fire departments in Kentfield, Ross, Mill Valley, San Anselmo and San Rafael.

The fire scorched brush and sent a billowing cloud of white smoke above the Indian Fire Trail 200 yards above Kent Woodlands.

Firemen said, however, that no evidence of an explosion could be found at the fire. There was no depression in the ground nor any tree split apart to indicate where the explosion was set off.

In the spring of 1970, a four-month series of unexplained explosions occurred in Tamalpais Valley, about four miles south of yesterday's fire.

As is the case with all Mount Tamalpais fires, a flood of fire engines raced to the scene. Kentfield and Marin County fire departments sent four fire engines and Larkspur sent one to the fire and one to cover the Kentfield station.

ARMS

attitudes of the Latin American military was a product of the environment in which they live. "Intervention by the military when it judges that the government has failed has been a widely accepted reaction in Latin America," he said.

U.S. military programs in Latin America "cannot be expected to negate the political beliefs and attitudes of a lifetime," he said. He cited the administration policy to the effect that "we have a clear preference for free and democratic processes, but we deal with governments as they are."

Another witness, Christian Chapman, of the State Department's Bureau of Politco-Military affairs, said that one of the purposes of U.S. military training programs in Latin America was "to improve the professionalism of the Latin American officers and men, and to also improve their technical capabilities, which has some side uses in civilian economy."

"But it is not to encourage them to assume political power," Chapman testified.

Presently, the military controls — directly or indirectly — the governments of 11 Latin American nations: Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Uraguay, Ecuador, Panama, Bolivia, Argentina, Brazil and Peru.

On the issue of military sales, Laird said it was "a great mistake" by Congress to have limited the United States to a $75 million ceiling.

(Since those hearings, the administration doubled that ceiling to $150 million, to the distress of a number of congressmen).

"This limitation that we have on sales has meant that Latin America has turned more and more to the French and the British suppliers, and they are moving in there with ever-increasing efforts," Laird said.

The same was said by Air force Lt. Gen. Robert H. Warren, deputy assistant secretary of defense for military assistance and sales.

He said that since 1968, European nations have sold Latin America armaments valued at over $850 million. "A major share of these sales, particularly for aircraft, would have accrued to the United States if we had modified our restrictive policies at an earlier date," Warren said.

"I think most countries in Latin America would prefer to deal with the United States," according to Warren, who explained it would be "very beneficial" to the United States if it could start selling arms again to Latin America.

"We can control what we sell without a ceiling in the legislation and it certainly would help our relations there," he said.

The fire Saturday at 3:30 p.m. scorched an acre and a half of grass and leveled a 10 by 20 foot shed, Marin County firemen said. The fire came close but did not burn any of the trees, firemen reported. (Photo by Roger Bockrath)

HEALTH REPORT

The Common Causes Of Heart Disease

By ALSON GODDARD
'First in a five-part series)

NEW YORK — Heart disease, the nation's number one fatal ailment, kills about 600,000 Americans every year. According to one study, half as many women as men are afflicted, with the majority in both groups being over 40 years of age. Heart disease is often caused by overweight, hypertension, a high fat content in the blood and nicotine.

Some 60-million Americans are overweight because they take too many calories in their food and drink.

"Obesity," says Dr. E. Lovell Becker of Cornell University, "is a physiological luxury that does nothing for you and is a burden to your circulatory system."

Medical opinion leans toward the advisability of being thin. Hypertension (high blood pressure) causes three to five times more heart attacks in obese people.

TOO MUCH cholesterol in the blood is dangerous physicians say, because it can cause the buildup of hard, fatty deposits in the coronary arteries, the principal source of the blood supply to the heart. These fatty deposits clog up the arteries, interfere with their circulation and bring on heart attacks. Researchers believe that the nicotine in cigarettes has a similar effect by narrowing the small blood vessels to the heart.

Some victims of coronary blockage have been put back in action within weeks by new advances in heart surgery. Dr. Rene Valvaro and Dr. Donald Effler of the Cleveland Clinic recently invented a technique called revascularization, in which they cut pieces of a major vein from the patient's leg, then insert one end below the fatty obstruction and the other above it. This replumbing — or bypass — provides the patient with a new unobstructed supply of blood, ending the damaging and sometimes fatal oxygen starvation of the heart.

Since proper precautions can help prevent cholesterol problems, a group of nationally known physicians — members of the Interstate Commission for Heart Disease Resources — has just urged all Americans to drastically reduce their intake of high fat and cholesterol foods. Similar stands have also been taken by the American Heart and the American Diabetes Associations, and the Food and Drug Administration recently proposed a regulation to compel food manufacturers to list the sources of animal or vegetable fats on their packages, so the consumer will know what fat he's getting in the product he buys.

Most doctors today tell their patients to stay away from fatty meats, avoid butter and whole milk, eat more chicken, fish, fruits and vegetables and exercise regularly, but don't overdo it. Walking, bicycling and swimming can help lower your blood fats and your blood pressure, too.

About two-thirds of the men and women who die of heart attacks never get to the hospital in time because they, or those around them, have not recognized the first warning signals.

Dr. Campbell Moses, medical director of the American Heart Association, says, "Many people attribute heart attacks to lesser problems such as indigestion."

The Interstate Commission has called for more education so people can recognize the warning signs earlier, and specialists are urging everyone between the ages of 35 and 85 to familiarize themselves with the symptoms of a heart attack so they can immediately rush the person to a hospital when these occur. Most victims, if not treated promptly, succumb within two hours.

HEART ATTACK symptoms, the specialists point out, can vary from mild discomfort to severe crushing pains in the chest, which may radiate to the jaw, shoulder, arm or hand, and frequently are accompanied by sweating, nausea and shortness of breath.

Death rates of heart attack victims have been cut in half when the patients are treated in special coronary care units now installed in some hospitals. Specially trained doctors and nurses immediately go to work on the victim with heart massage, drugs, electric shock and pacemakers to correct the erratic heartbeat and assure the heart its necessary supply of blood. The Interstate Commission is recommending that similar units be set up in public places where many people congregate. These include factories, office buildings, airports, convention centers, sports stadiums and race tracks.

AT COLLEGE OF MARIN

Lecture Series Will Start Sept. 14

Dr. Margaret Mead will make her only California appearance this year when she participates in the "Women: Past/Present/Future" lecture series at the College of Marin.

Aileen Hernandez, president of the National Organization for Women, and California State Assemblywoman, March Fong, are also among the distinguished men and women participating in the series of lectures once a week for 12 weeks, beginning Sept. 14.

Certain myths relating to womanhood handed down from our mothers and grandmothers will be explored, according to moderator of the series, Diane Wickstrom, professor of anthropology and sociology at the College of Marin.

MRS. RUTH Nash, professor of biology and genetics at the College of Marin, who recently became a mother, will participate in the first lecture, Sept. 14, with physiology and anatomy professor, Kent Addison.

With the exception of Dr. Mead's talk, all of the lectures will be held on Tuesdays at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall. The anthropologist's lecture will be on a Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theater.

On Sept. 21 psychotherapist Mrs. Welland Lathrop will talk about the psychology of women as she has discovered it in her practice. Her topic is "The Psychology of Women."

A panel of men and women from Marin will discuss their attitudes and expectations in personal relationships on Oct. 5.

"Economics and Women" will be presented on Oct. 12 by Mildred Howie, former director of public relations for a national food company, and Laura Willson, College of Marin economics and business instructor.

MRS. FONG will discuss some of her experiences as a woman in politics on Oct. 19. She will also explain legislation pertaining to women and talk about the atmosphere for women in the political world.

College of Marin history professor Mrs. Joan Jencks will offer an historical perspective of women on Oct. 26.

Opportunities and expectations for a young woman with plans to be an educator will be examined Nov. 2. Concentrating on the topic, "Education and Women" will be Dr. Margaret Greene, a College of Marin counselor and education professor. Mrs. Mary Greer, an education professor at Merritt College, will explore the topic with Dr. Greene.

Probing the attitudes toward women in the scientific field will be Dr. Linda Hawes Clever. Her topic will be "Science and Women" on Nov. 9. Dr. Clever is director of Sister Mary Phillipa Out-Patient clinic and acting director of medical education at St. Mary's Hospital and Medical Center in San Francisco.

Women's role in music, art and drama will be explored on Nov. 16. "Woman and the Arts" is the subject Anitra Earl, film and drama critic for the San Francisco Chronicle; Sari Biro, Hungarian born concert pianist; and Mrs. Adrianne Marcus, College of Marin creative writing professor, have chosen.

WHAT IT is like to work within the media as a professional woman will be covered in the topic "Women and Media" on Nov. 23. Geraldine Lange, public affairs director of KBHK-TV, and Joyce Overhoff, film maker and director of Summus Films, will speak.

Mrs. Aileen Hernandez, National Organization for Women president, will speak on "Women's Liberation" on Nov. 30.

The president of NOW, a civil rights group formed in October 1966 to bring women into the mainstream of American life "in truly equal partnership with men," Mrs. Hernandez will discuss her beliefs in liberation of both men and women in 20th Century Society.

"Women and the Future" will be the concluding topic, presented Dec. 7. by Maryjane Dunstan, College of Marin instructor, and Patricia Garlan, writer and researcher for the Langley Porter Neuropsychiatric Institute of San Francisco. Both are co-authors of "World in the Making: Probes for Students of the Future."

"The lecture program probably won't erase any sexual prejudices even though it was designed with male chauvinists in mind. It is intended to act as a catalyst to start both men and women thinking about women's potential and the difficulties they have achieving their potential," says Miss Wickstrom, who started working on the series last year when her anthropology students expressed interest in women's positions in other societies.

Out of this interest grew a course Social and Psychological Aspects of Women, which will be first taught at the college next spring.

MISS WICKSTROM says she believes that World Wars I and II initiated a change in women's homebody role when they discovered that they didn't need to be tied to the house — they worked efficiently at industrial jobs vacated by soldiers. Miss Wickstrom is the college's first woman president of the faculty Academic Senate, serving during the 1971-72 term.

In another 10 or 20 years, there's a definite possibility of a female being elected President of the United States, she says.

Registration for the series may be made in person at the registration office or by mailing an adult education registration form.

The bride's sister, Suzanne DeWilde of Kentfield, was her maid of honor. The bridegroom's sister, Carole Parker of Cupertino was the bridesmaid.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. DeWilde of Kentfield.

The couple will live in San Francisco after a wedding trip to Mendocino.

Man Is Coldest In The Morning

CHICAGO (UPI)—No wonder those blankets feel so good—scientific measurements indicate you are actually colder in the morning.

In man, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, the lowest body temperature is from 2 a.m. to 5 a.m., and the highest from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

In the early morning the oral temperature may be as low as 97 degrees and in the afternoon as high as 99 without being abnormal. Apparently reversal of activity from day to night, as with night workers, does not change this rhythm.

With this changing temperature throughout the 24-hour period it is only coincidence that the temperature may be 98.6, which is considered to be normal.

Medieval Look

The medieval look for fall is achieved via a short leather tunic over ribbed tights, fittingly accessorized with a swash-buckling Maltese cross pendant. Button earrings and a hinged bracelet complete the picture.

Glass Bottles Strong, Elastic

NEW YORK (UPI)—One reason that glass bottles are strong is that glass is elastic.

You can prove it, the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute points out, by inserting a small glass tube through the cork of a bottle that has been filled with colored water. When you squeeze the bottle in your hand you'll have proof that its sides are being bent inward, because the colored water will be forced up the tube.

Elasticity is one of the many physical properties of glass containers that contribute to their strength and serviceability, the Institute observes, adding that continued research will make the glass in tomorrow's bottles even stronger.

Makeup Mirror

Looking your best at every angle is now possible with a new lighted makeup mirror, says the manufacturer. This variable-light make-up mirror has three reflecting surfaces — a face-size center mirror and two side mirrors. Special hinges keep the side mirrors firm at the desired angle.

Queen Elizabeth Set Up Pounds

CHICAGO (UPI)—If American women, in this era of consumer awareness, are bothered about pounds and ounces they can blame another woman.

Queen Elizabeth I established the avoirdupois pound as 7,000 grains, says Encyclopaedia Britannica. Divided into 16 ounces, a grain was a unit of measurement based on the weight of a grain of wheat and equal to .0648 gram.

The pound became abbreviated "lb." because libra is the Latin word for pound. No one knows why ounce is abbreviated "oz.," but there has been speculation that it comes from onza, the Italian word for ounce.

Perhaps if Queen Elizabeth had done her own shopping she would have chosen an easier way to find out what things cost per "lb." or "oz."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

A Marriage License Should Not Be A Business Contract

DEAR HELEN:

When you enter into a business partnership, you watch out for all the angles, right?

So why shouldn't the most important contract of all — marriage — be just as carefully organized?

I asked my girl to sign a legal document stating that she is in good health, has no major dental or medical bills coming up and, while I'm not so righteous that I insist on virginity, I think she should include a brief on past activities, especially if they involve abortion, lengthy affairs, motherhood, etc.

She tore it up and threw it in my drink, and that's the last I've seen of her. Why? — BORIS

P.S. I was only being practical.

DEAR BORIS:

Practicality and romance don't mix.

Moreover, you "legal document" wouldn't hold up in court: You couldn't win a dovorce on grounds of big medical or dental bills, or because your mate held out on a few secrets.

A better rule: If you can't trust a girl without demanding proof, she isn't wife material for you. (And if you insist on "looking in the horse's mouth," you aren't exactly Mr. Ideal Husband of 1971.) — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Is biting some kind of new fad? About two months ago, two local women were bitten on our town's main street — one in the arm, the other on the leg (she had on hot pants). Not by a dog, but by a tall, long-haired fellow who appeared from nowhere and disappeared as fast.

A few days later I read about a similar case in a South American city. And since then several other gals have been nipped by males identities unknown. Is this America's answer to the Italian pinch? — SADIE

DEAR SADIE:

I hope not! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Please tell "One Foot in the Grave," who lost a leg in a dune buggy accident, to walk straight and proud and look the world square in the eye, whether on crutches or a prosthesis.

I thought my life was over, too — twenty years ago — when, in my teens, I lost a leg in an accident. But a wise friend taught me that people are crippled only in their minds: whether others pity or admire them depends on their attitude. Of course there may be a few, like her unworthy fiance, who default, but she'll soon be glad she learned about him in time!

I took my friend's advice and married a man who loved me for myself. I learned to walk so well (and it wasn't easy) that no one suspected when we moved here two years ago — until I turned up at the cabana club in a swim suit without my prosthesis. I water ski too. My husband and teenagers are proud that Mama can do anything others do.

There's a club here whose one-legged members are all expert snow skiers. Tell "ofitg" to be glad she's alive, and get on with living! — A LEG TO STAND ON

DEAR HELEN:

Please settle a family argument. While at a private social club, where there is dancing, do I or don't I dance with someone I don't know, but who says he knows me "from high school."

I asked my husband if it was okay, then danced with the fellow — and caused a monstrous argument when we got home. He says I should have turned him down. I say it's the husband's place to say "Sorry, this dance is taken — by me" if he wants to be so possessive. — TWO LEFT FEET

DEAR TWO:

At a private club, where people should know each other, why not dance with the guy who asks you? — H.

Boat Buyers Get Breaks Under Law

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — A little publicized Federal law signed by President Nixon Aug. 11 will give buyers of pleasure boats a few breaks they have not had before.

In fact, the law, known as the Federal Boat Safety Act of 1971, goes even further than the auto safety law in one respect by requiring manufacturers to recall defective boats and accessories. Auto manufacturers have not been required to recall cars with safety defects but have done so anyway.

The new law authorizes the Coast Guard to set minimum safety standards not already established for pleasure boats and accessories. The Coast Guard already has authority to approve or disapprove such accessories as life preservers and fire extinguishers.

With its new authority, the Coast Guard is now preparing regulations to put this part of the law into effect. Eventually, there will be federal standards for boat construction and accessory equipment of almost all types related to safety.

WHEN THESE regulations go into effect, boat manufacturers will be prohibited from selling any boat that does not conform to the standards unless the boat is to be exported. Boats meeting the minimum safety rules will carry an insignia of approval by the U.S. Coast Guard.

When a defect shows up, a manufacturer will have to notify both the dealer and buyer by certified mail. He must also notify the Coast Guard.

Already in effect are sections of the new law designed to give new protections to "Good Samatarians" who give aid in emergencies. The law exempts them from civil damages providing that they act reasonably and there is no objection from those receiving the aid.

ALSO ALREADY in effect is strengthened authority to get alleged violations of safety regulations corrected. Boarding officers may require boaters to return to a safe mooring in case of imminent danger caused by lack of lifesaving or firefighting devices or in case of overloading.

This power to "terminate unsafe use" was not spelled out in the previous law. Under both the new and old laws, the Coast Guard has the power to arrest an alleged violator of safety regulations.

But in most cases, only a ticket, a "notice of violation" is issued. Under the old law, these automatically called for the maximum penalty, with relatively large fines — from $300 to $2,000 — for relatively minor infractions. The Coast Guard could "remit," wipe out, the penalty.

Under the new law, there is no automatic maximum penalty. Thus, the Coast Guard is free to scale down the penalties and use more discretion. Officials feel that this change will make the law more effective, because it will make the penalties conform more closely to the actual violation.

ONE NEW feature of the law is establishment of a Boating Safety Advisory Council to advise the government on all maters relating to the law. Members will be drawn from industry, state agencies, local agencies and the general public.

Regulations regarding boat construction will affect all boats sold for pleasure in this country. But regulations regarding use of boats will apply only to areas of federal jurisdiction, such as coastal waters and interstate waterways.

Specific questions relating to the new law should be directed to the Coast Buard, (BBE-1), 400 7th Street S.W., Washington, D.C., 20590.

McCloskey Schedules Campaign

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey of California has unveiled an active schedule of speeches and other public appearances for the next two months of his campaign to defeat President Nixon for the Republican Presidential nomination next year.

The schedule, which lists only confirmed events between Sept. 4 and Nov. 12, takes the San Mateo County congressman into 12 states. Among them are New Hampshire and California, which will have the earliest and latest primary elections respectively next spring.

Other states on the schedule are Oregon, New York, Maryland, Wisconsin, West Virginia, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Iowa and Illinois, with more to be added.

California appearances so far will be made in San Francisco, Kentfield, Claremont, San Mateo, Monterey and Whittier.

McCloskey has planned six days in New Hampshire this month, and campaign director Robin Schmidt says more events in that state will be added.

"We're making our major efforts in New Hampshire and California," Schmidt said.

During the five-week Congressional summer recess which ends Wednesday, McCloskey has been writing a book on modern applications of the Constitution and appearing around the country at youth voter registration drives.

GENTLE GIANT

Henry Hite's Height Keeps Him Busy

By MARY BURNS

If Henry Hite could suddenly walk through a doorway without bending he'd feel terribly out of place, he says.

At eight feet, two inches, Hite has been reputed to be the world's tallest man. Probably no shopper yesterday at Petrini's Market in Greenbrae would dispute Hite's claim. He towered above everyone and everything in the store including the food storage shelves.

Hite was in Greenbrae pushing his employer's products. He is something of a public relations man for Wilson Certified Foods, based in Oklahoma City.

The company was looking for a giant of an advertising gimmick, Hite said, so it searched him out 10-years-ago.

Hite was born in Atlanta and was one of 13 children — the only one over six feet tall. At age nine he was about the size of a normal 9-year-old he says. But at 11 he was seven feet and by age 15 he had stopped growing, having reached his present height.

As a teen-ager he played basketball for his school's team. "We never lost a game," he said. He also claims that in school football no opponent dared trip him because if he fell his team would have a first down.

For several years Hite worked in vaudeville in a three-man team composed of a midget a "straight" man of five feet seven and himself.

He met his wife, Maria, while the two were performing in the same show in Chicago. She was a dancer. At five feet three Maria looks like a dwarf next to her husband of 31 years.

Hite's clothes must be custom made — at a cost of $250 a suit — by his private tailor in Chicago where he and his wife now reside. Occasionally he orders clothes from Hong Kong.

Hite recalls that once he sent his measurements to a Hong Kong tailor and got them back with the suggestion that he cut down on his drinking.

The Chicago office of Florsheim Shoes makes his size 22½ shoes. "I don't get them shined very often. I just send them through a car wash," he quipped.

Hite claims he has now begun to have more trouble with his body — a problem he attributes to creeping old age (he is 56). He said that he now finds having to walk bent in normal size rooms — usually about six feet six inches — slightly painful.

But he said he has no problems with mobility, even though to the onlooker he seems not only very tall, but like a very tall man on ultra-high stilts.

Wednesday night when he and wife checked into San Francisco's Rafael Hotel the desk clerk asked him where he was going to sleep. "I told him in rooms 138, 139 and 140," Hite said.

The gentle giant does not believe that nature has played him a dirty trick. "My height has always been a blessing," he said. "I've always had good health and a girl!"

On April 2nd NBC Television carried a science news special — "The Unexplained"., narrated by Rod Sterling — in which one of the most fantastic breakthroughs in modern Psychology was discussed. This new scientific breakthrough, deals with the conscious control of one's brain waves. Researchers have demonstrated that with "Alpha" training a person can eliminate anxiety, tension, and frustration. Also they could enhance concentration, awareness and recall. In fact alpha control is escalating the expansion of human potential development at a fantastic pace.

There are four principal brain waves: The Beta wave, associated with the outer conscious levels, physical activity, anxiety, tension, etc. The Alpha wave, associated with inner-levels of mental activity, tranquility, inspiration, creativity, concentration, ESP, accelerated healing process, memory, learning, and many other phenomena.

The Theta wave, related to deeper levels of meditation, concentration and potentially even greater learning and recall capabilities. And finally the Delta wave, associated with deep sleep or total unconsciousness.

SILVA MIND CONTROL using mental training exercises, has successfully trained over 30,000 individuals to turn the Alpha Wave on and off at will and then practice applications of this exciting new techniques for developing a superior way of life.

Not only can you improve I.Q., but a person trained with this technique, can learn to control certain areas of the autonomic system, including heart beat, respiration, body temperature, pain, etc. the implications of this kind of training with regards to health and disease are staggering.

With over 30,000 graduates from coast to coast, there is no longer any doubt as to the great value of the astounding method of self-improvement.

Initial research was started by Mr. Jose Silva in 1944 with techniques being improved and refined to the point that a few hours of class room instruction is all that is required to train a person to be much more effective in the routine of daily living. LEARN SPECIFIC TECHNIQUES. Once you have mastered the techniques of Silva MIND Control you can totally relax anytime you desire; you can eliminate insomnia, anxiety, tension, have greater artistic ability; enhance your learning capacity; have more vitality and energy; by more successful in your business and personal life; eliminate bad habits and create good habits; control your weight, smoking, etc.

Larkspur Parks Panel To View Master Plan

The Larkspur Parks and Recreation Commission, meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday at city hall, will review a park master plan, which calls for a greenbelt of bicycling and hiking trails.

The plan, by David Arbegast and William Newton, also proposes that the city corporation yard be moved from Piper Park to an industrial area, and that lots in residential areas be developed as tot lots and play areas.

Other recommendations are that there be public boating facilities along Corte Madera Creek and that Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way be acquired as a greenbelt and used for trails.

The commission also will have a public hearing on an application by David Chamberlain to remove three eucalyptus trees at 11 Bayo Vista. The proposal has drawn a petition of protest from 13 persons in the neighborhood.

No Pay Boosts For Employees

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The city's policemen, firemen and Municipal Railway operators will not receive pay hikes this year, city officials have announced.

The officials said they reached the decision after receiving word from the U.S. Office of Emergency Preparedness on President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

City Attorney Thomas M. O'Connor said he has informed OEP that the city would comply with the anti-inflationary measure.

However, O'Connor said he would file suit in federal court to test the city's contention the pay hikes were set before the freeze on Aug. 15.

The pay hikes totaling $6.1 million were to have been given to 1,927 policemen, 1,685 firemen and 1,849 Muni operators.

Color Photography To Be In Exhibit

Color photography by Simon Cherpitel and raku and stoneware by Jim Fowler will be exhibited in San Marco Gallery of Dominican College, San Rafael, Sept. 14 through Oct. 8.

The exhibit is part of the college's fall calendar of activities which will include a lecture on women's liberation and politics by Dianne Feinstein, president of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors; presentation of an original ballet "The Amusement Park," by Paul Page; and a December concert by the Dominican College Orchestra.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Defensive Driving Involves Watching Out For The Others

For many years, we have stressed the need for defensive driving. To avoid accidents, the driver anticipates trouble. He is prepared to stop, speed up or turn in order to minimize the chances of being killed or of hurting someone else. Practice the technic until it becomes a habit. Most drivers are indifferent to the actions of others and it is no wonder that annually, our highway fatalities claim more than 56,000 lives.

IN DEFENSIVE driving, the individual sees the hazard, knows what he must do and acts promptly. A good example occurs when the driver traveling within the speed limit along a residential street sees a child at the curb. He immediately anticipates that the youngster may dash into or across the street and slows down so that, if necessary, he could stop. Children are heedless and every driver should recognize the trait.

Most accidents are preventable by one or both of the drivers involved. A good defensive driver assumes that everyone else is a nut and is constantly on the alert as to the actions of the car ahead or the tailgater. There is always a chance that the other fellow will not stop at the intersection or he could be sideswiped while passing. Never trust the "nut."

LOOK BEYOND to foresee a situation that may cause trouble for the driver in front of you. Watch his brake lights and stay a safe distance behind him. By the same token, use turn signals well in advance to avoid rear-end collisions. You can 'shake' a tailgater by slowing down. Head-on collisions usually are fatal to all concerned. Drive into a ditch if necessary even tho the other guy is at fault. When approaching a truck followed by a long line of cars, slow down. Someone may try to pass.

There are many more ways to avoid trouble on the highways. Just hope and pray that we can change more and more aggressive drivers into defensive drivers.

HOOF AND MOUTH

C. S. writes: What is hoof and mouth disease?

REPLY

A highly contagious viral infection seen in cattle and domestic animals. The few human cases reported stemmed from eating contaminated meat or dairy products or from exposure to hides, entrails or excretions of sick animals. Painful blisters and ulcers develop in the mouth and on the palms and soles. Spontaneous healing occurs in three weeks.

INJURY FEARED

Mrs. T. writes: Should anything be done about a 7-year-old boy who won't ride a bike, climb a tree, or do any of the stunts of kids his age? His excuse is that he's afraid of getting hurt.

REPLY

Let him alone unless there is a possibility that he has a physical disability and is using this excuse to distract you from the real cause. If so, a thoro examination is in order.

FEARS ULCER

M. J. writes: I think I have stomach ulcer. There is a hard lump there and the right side of the abdomen is tender to the touch. Are these symptoms unusual?

REPLY

Yes, they are and more so if you feel a lump. X-rays will give you the answer within 30 minutes.

EXERCISE

P. T. writes: For two months I've exercised, but haven't lost a pound. Is there any use keeping it up?

REPLY

The exercise or the weight? All the exercise in the world is for naught if you eat too much.

Only the I-J's circulation & readership can deliver you your full market

The I-J gives you the one and only thing which makes your advertising fully productive -readership.

This is the all-important difference (to you) between the I-J and direct mail flyers or weekly publications.

As the home newspaper in almost ⅔ of all Marin homes the I-J gives you that vital buying connection between the market and your store. Making your advertising not an "expense" but an investment in sound retail growth.

Relocating Prison Trials Due Study

A proposal that trials involving San Quentin inmates be held away from the Marin Civic Center will be discussed tomorrow by the board of supervisors.

The supervisors have asked the county's judges, Dist. Atty. Bruce Bales and Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos to meet with them at 4:30 p.m. to discuss possible ways of keeping the Administration Building and Hall of Justice from becoming what one county official called an "armed fortress."

Security, already tight because of the Angela Davis-Ruchell Magee proceedings and the courtroom bombing last year, would face further beefing up once court matters involving the Aug. 21 San Quentin break-out attempt got under way.

Last week, Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste suggested three alternate proposals to holding trials of San Quentin inmates in the Hall of Justice: Build a separate structure at the Civic Center to try San Quentin cases, use another building such as the old courthouse annex in downtown San Rafael or hold trials and hearings inside San Quentin Prison itself.

The supervisors, whose regular weekly session will begin at 9 a.m., face other major issues tomorrow:

HOUSING — Kentfield residents will protest a 102-unit housing development for the elderly which is planned at 217 Laurel Grove Avenue. A Dominican priory is now located at the site.

PRESERVE — A public hearing is set to discuss whether the county's agricultural preserve area (now totalling about 170,000 acres) should be cut back to 80,000 acres (the acreage that is already under agricultural preserve contract).

ZONE — A proposed interim zone to control development in all agricultural and open areas of West Marin will get a public hearing.

Poll Shows Californians Against Reagan Pay Veto

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The California public disagrees by a more than 2 to 1 margin with Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of $117 million in state employee pay increases, an opinion poll says.

The results of the poll by the Field Research Corp. of San Francisco were released by the California State Employees Association, which commissioned the survey.

The poll asked 1,008 persons Aug. 2-8 whether they agreed with the legislature that the employes should receive a cost-of-living increase this year or with Reagan that they shouldn't.

Of those surveyed, 58.6 per cent agreed with the lawmakers while 27.7 agreed with the governor. Almost 16 per cent couldn't make up their minds.

The Legislature provided a 5 per cent pay raise for civil servants and a 10 per cent increase for faculty members of the state colleges and University of California. The governor vetoed the funds from the $6.7 billion budget he signed in July.

Reagan cited the state of the economy and said it "requires that we face up to hard fiscal realities."

The association, largest state employe organization, has been attempting to mount a campaign in the legislature to overturn the governor's veto and indicated the poll results will add new fuel.

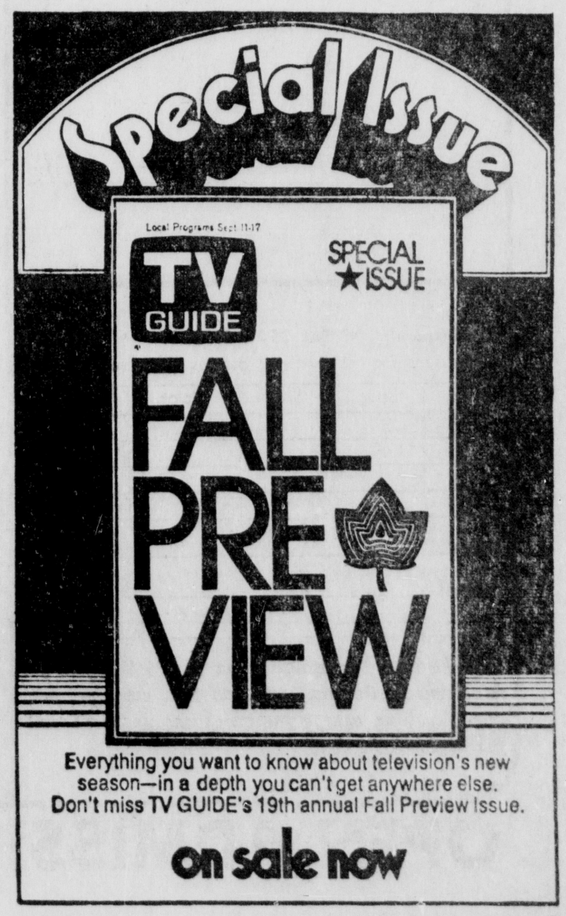
"We are certain the Legislature will agree with CSEA and with the public that it is unfair for state employes to bear a heavier burden than others in balancing the budget," said CSEA President Edward A. Ward.

But only 33.9 per cent of those polled said they favored an override of the governor's veto. Twenty per cent said the lawmakers should go along with the governor.

Another 17 per cent favored approval of a tax reform bill which would include state worker pay increases.

The poll also showed that 51.7 per cent of those sampled favored collective bargaining for state workers and that 23.2 per cent were opposed to it.

State workers were excluded from 1969 legislation which gave local government employes collective bargaining rights. Ward said the poll "encourages us to go directly to the public with an initiative campaign to establish an appropriate collective bargaining system."



British Drive To Revive Hanging Picks Up Speed

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI)—A campaign for restoration of hanging, abolished in 1965, is picking up momentum in Britain.

It was sparked by a recent upsurge in violent crime, climaxed by the gunning down of a senior police officer during an armed gang robbery of a Blackpool jewelry store in mid-August.

Mrs. Jill Knight, a Conservative Party member of Parliament, has announced she will ask the House of Commons to review the need for capital punishment when it returns Oct. 18 from its summer recess.

Duncan Sandys, a former Conservative Party cabinet minister and son-in-law of the late Sir Winston Churchill, says abolition of hanging for murder was a "mistake."

Mrs. Maureen Richardson, widow of murdered Blackpool police superintendent Gerald Richardson, has announced she is giving up her job as a schoolteacher to campaign full time for restoration of the death penalty.

Officials say there is little or no likelihood the present Conservative Party government will support the campaign.

But political sources say there will be strong grass-roots demands for another debate on hanging at the Conservative Party's annual rank-and-file convention at Brighton in mid-October.

In 1969 the Conservative Party conference voted by a majority of 159 in favor of restoration of the death penalty.

Hanging of murderers was ended only after a long and bitter parliamentary struggle.

When Sydney Silverman, a Labor Party member of Parliament, first introduced an anti-hanging bill in 1956 it was approved by the House of Commons by a narrow majority but thrown out by the upper house, the House of Lords.

The bill finally was passed by both houses nine years later, abolishing capital punishment for an initial five-year trial period.

It was made permanent in December, 1969, despite efforts by Sandys and other Conservatives to block it and despite a public petition with more than one million signatures presented to Parliament in 1966 in favor of a return to hanging.

As recently as May, 1970, Sir Richard Glyn, a Conservative backbencher, sought to introduce a humane capital punishment bill, calling for execution by nitrogen instead of hanging.

'Nice And Smooth' 500-Mile Victory For Leonard

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI)—Joe Leonard, who helped Andy Granatelli pioneer the turbine car, has won Ontario's annual war of attrition —otherwise known as the California 500.

On a Sunday when the temperature hit 95, the 37-year-old veteran from San Jose, Calif., watched the favorites melt in the pavement and then walked away with the finale of auto racing's new triple crown.

"All I did was keep rolling nice and smooth," said Leonard, the No. 2 driver in Parnelli Jones' stable behind Indianapolis champion Al Unser.

"I didn't feel I had it won until they dropped the flag. I've come too close before."

The former motorcycle ace, recalled he was leading the 1968 Indianapolis 500 comfortably on the 191st lap in a Granatelli turbine when his machine suddenly stopped.

USAC restricted the turbines out of competition the following year.

Leonard's first major victory was worth $132,039 and he finished a lap and 10 seconds in front of Art Pollard.

Pollard also was runner-up in the inaugural California 500 to Jim McElreath last year.

Clad in a bright yellow racing suit and a cowboy hat after his third USAC championship trail career triumph, Leonard chatted with Pollard, the 44-year-old grandfather from Medford, Ore.

"You know," San Jose's No. 1 driver told a cluster of sportswriters, "Art and I were turbine teammates at one time.

"We took a few years to get back in the swing of things. I guess we were just used to all that kerosine."

The victory was worth 1,000 points toward the USAC national title and left Leonard with 2,550, 350 more than Al Unser, two time Indianapolis winner.

The crown carries a $200,000 jackpot.

With the temperature of Ontario's 2.5-mile oval surface reaching 135, Leonard averaged 152.354 miles per hour in his colt-Ford with four pit stops. McElreath, who finished eighth in an Eagle-Offenhauser, averaged 160.106 last year.

Runner-up by 1.61 seconds at the Pocono 500 and 19th at Indy this year, the winner took the lead for good with 40 laps to go after the temperature took care of the leaders—Al Unser and A.J. Foyt.

Ahead in the race by 16 seconds, the younger Unser Brother had transmission problems in his new Colt-Offy. Foyt, five-time USAC champion, was knocked out by faulty rear end.

Pollard, driving Clint Brawner's Scorpion-Ford, said it's all a matter of finishing here.

"The attrition rate is a little high," he said, smiling. "The secret to winning this race is running 500 miles. Maybe I can work my way up to first next year."

Gary Bettnhausen, whose father Tony was killed at Indy in 1961, came in third in a Gerhardt-Offy while Texan Lloyd Ruby, pole sitter for the first California 500, in a Laycock-Ford was fourth and Steve Krisiloff finished fifth in a King-Offy.

Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., the No. 1 qualifier at a record 185.004, made a mistake that cost him victory.

He missed car owner Roger Penske's call to come into the pits for gas and wound up running out of fuel on the 52nd lap while leading. He didn't get back into the race until 12 laps later.

Donohue's precision McLaren-Offy picked up two of the 12 laps before leaving on the 134th lap with an ailing turbocharger.

Al Unser's older brother, Bobby, the second qualifier, slammed into the wall at turn

Bobby Unser spun out of control, slammed into a wall, but jumped from the wreckage unhurt during yesterday's 500-mile race at Ontario.

Raider Subs Too Much For 49ers

OAKLAND (UPI) —Injuries are bringing out the best in the Oakland Raiders.

Guys like Don Highsmith, Marv Hubbard and Pete Banaszak got a lot of playing time Saturday night in Oakland's 34-28 exhibition victory over transbay rival San Francisco because regulars Hewritt Dixon, Charlie Smith and rookie sensation Clarence Davis were hobbling.

Highsmith, Hubbard and Banaszak combined with quarterbacks Kenny Stabler and Daryle Lamonica to pull the Raiders from behind twice to their fourth victory in six meetings with the 49ers.

Amazingly, Oakland pulled it out with offensive tackles Bob Brown and Ron Mix also benched with injuries and rookies Harold Rice, Horace Jones, Phil Villapiano and Jack Tatum playing a lot on defense.

"The game was good experience for us because we have had so much adversity (injuries)", said Raiders coach John Madden. "We did the best we could with what we had and came out of the game without any injuries.

"The 49ers are a very solid team. They were doing some stunting and they fooled us but they didn't beat us."

San Francisco coach Dick Nolan said the crowd of 53,686 made so much noise his players were unable to pick up the audible calls.

"We had one or two players making the changes but the others couldn't hear them," said Nolan. "This happened both on offense and defense but that's part of the game. It was as loud for them as it was for us."

Hubbard was the game's top rusher with 72 yards in 16 carries followed by Banaszak with 40 yards and Highsmith with 39. Highsmith also brought Oakland from behind and into the lead twice with touchdown bursts of one yard in the second quarter and 14 yards in the fourth period.

Stabler hit on 10 of 14 passes for 162 yards to keep alive several Oakland drives. Lamonica, who was booed during the third quarter, completed 4 of 9 for 59 yards, including a 37-yard touchdown aerial to Ray Chester.

Quarterback John Brodie of San Francisco piled up 253 aerial yards with 16 for 39. He hit Ted Kwalick and Gene Washington on TD passes of 16 and 30 yards.

Both the Raiders, now 4-1-0, and 49ers (3-1-1) wind up their pre-season schedule with road games this week. San Francisco plays the Rams in Los Angeles Thursday night while the Raiders meet the Baltimore Colts Saturday night at Jacksonville, Fla.

PRO GRID ROUNDUP

Bradshaw Sparkles; Jurgensen Injured

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It was a weekend in which one star rose and another fell.

The rising star was Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw, who threw four touchdown passes Saturday night to mark his finest day as a pro and lead the Steelers to a 35-21 victory over the New York Jets.

The fallen star was Washington's Sonny Jurgensen, who will be operated on today after suffering a fractured left shoulder in the Redskins' 27-10 loss Saturday to Miami.

Bradshaw, the first player drafted two years ago and somewhat of a bust in his rookie season, looked awesome as he took apart an injury-riddled Jets' defense. He hit three TD passes in the second quarter, connecting for 32 and 46 yards with Ron Shanklin and four to Jon Staggers and added his final TD pass in the third quarter on a 30-yard screen pass and run to John Fuqua.

Bob Davis had three TD passes of 70, 71 and 24 yards in a losing effort.

Jurgensen was hurt in much the same way the Jets' Joe Namath suffered his crushing knee injury —making a tackle. Miami's Dick Anderson intercepted a Jurgensen pass and Jurgensen suffered a small bone chip in his shoulder bringing down Anderson.

He will be operated on today in Oklahoma City by sports specialist Dr. Don O'Donaghue. No estimate was made on how long the veteran quarterback will be out of action. Bill Kilmer, acquired from New Orleans during the off-season, will handle the team in Jurgensen's absence!

Atlanta beat New England 45-35 in the only Sunday game while in other Saturday action, Kansas City tied St. Louis 17-17, Oakland edged San Francisco 34-28, Cleveland topped New York 30-7 in the second half of the Jets-Steelers doubleheader, Buffalo stunned Detroit 31-17, Cincinnati downed Green Bay 27-24, Houston swamped Chicago 37-17, Philadelphia walloped New Orleans 34-0 and Denver beat Minnesota 14-7.

Reserve quarterback George Mira threw two third quarter TD passes to spark the Dolphins' victory over Washington. Hubert Ginn also scored on a 86-yard run from scrimmage for the Dolphins.

Jim "Cannonball" Butler ran for two TDs in the first three minutes and Atlanta withstood a 28-point second half rally by New England to down the Patriots. Butler sparked the Falcons to a 38-7 halftime lead.

Jan Stenerud's 28-yard field goal as the final gun sounded brought Kansas City its tie with the Cardinals, who had taken the lead on Jim Bakken's 47-yard field goal with only 19 seconds left. Len Dawson's 46-yard pass to Otis Taylor to the St. Louis 21 set up the tying score.

Cleveland's defense set up two TDs and a field goal as the Browns cruised past the Giants in a battle of previously winless teams. Bo Scott, Leroy Kelly and Bo Cornell scored on runs and Bill Nelsen, making his first start of the pre-season, threw a 23-yard TD pass to Paul Staroba to lift the Browns to a 27-7 halftime lead.

Dennis Shaw passed for two scores and ran for another and O. J. Simpson cut loose a 68-yard run to set up the tie-breaking TD as the Bills upended Detroit. One of Shaw's scoring passes was an 87-yard bomb to Marlin Briscoe.

Rookie Ken Anderson's 14-yard TD pass to Bruce Coslet and rookie Fred Willis' three-yard TD plunge helped Cincinnati beat Green Bay and remain unbeaten in pre-season play while Ken Burrough scored one touchdown and set up another in Houston's romp past Chicago.

The Eagles returned three fumbles for touchdowns and went on to crush New Orleans in a game played in a tropical storm. Mel Tom, Steve Zabel and Don Hultz returned fumbles for scores.

Pete Duranko's fumble recovery in the end zone provided the decisive score in Denver's upset of Minnesota.

BIG SERIES ON TV

Giant-Dodger Showdown

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Giants lost a doubleheader Sunday but gained ground in the all important magic number race.

So today, as they start a three-game series with the chasing Los Angeles Dodgers, their National League West title-clinching magic number stands at 15.

While fooling around with the figures makes things sound rosey, they really aren't all that much because once again the injury bugaboo has hit the Giants—as it did in June when they almost blew their big lead.

Willie McCovey, San Francisco's big first baseman who went on the shelf in June with a banged up knee, injured himself again Sunday as the Giants were dropping a 1-0 and 5-3 doubleheader to Houston.

McCovey suffered a mean tear in the palm of his left hand while fielding a hard smash in the first inning of the first game and the wound required eight stiches to close.

So, McCovey will be out of action for at least a week and Willie Mays will have to take over at first—as he did in June when Big Mac sat by and watched the Giants' lead slip from 10 games to only 3 1-2.

McCovey's loss ordinarily wouldn't be that big a thing if Dave Kingman, the rookie sensation, also wasn't out of action. Kingman was operated on for the removal of his appendix last Wednesday and is out until the last week of the season.

"You can't lose two big guys like that and not be hurting," said Giants skipper Charlie Fox. "I'm not saying their loss will cost us the lead but it sure is going to be tough playing without them the next week or 10 days."

John Cumberland, the bulldog lefthander who pitched a four-hitter his last time out, will start the Dodger series tonight, going against Don Sutton. In the second game Tuesday night, it will be Ron Bryant, another lefty, pitching against Claude Osteen. And in the windup game Wednesday, it will be Juan Marichal against Bill Singer. All three games will be televised by KTVU Channel 2; today's at 5 o'clock, the next two at 8 p.m.

Fox had planned to rest Mays in Sunday's second game and also later this coming week, but with McCovey out that means Mays will play every day.

"I can do it," said the 40-year-old superstar. "I'll just have to try and make it."

Fox said that Hal Lanier, who has played a little at first, will be Willie's backup man, and from there he will play it by ear.

In Sunday's first game loss to the Astros, the Giants managed only five hits—all singles—off Jack Billingham, who struck out 11 batters.

In the nightcap, James Rodney Richard, a 6-8, 225-pound, fireballing righthander just up from Oklahoma City of the American Association, struck out 15 Giants and coasted home to his first big league victory in his first start.

The 15 strikeouts enabled Richard to tie Karl Spooner of the Brooklyn Dodgers for the big league record for a pitcher in his first game. Spooner set his mark—also against the Giants—in 1954.

The 26 strikeouts by Billingham and Richard also tied a record — set on Sept. 9, 1970 by the Mets over the Phillies.

Fox wasn't too disturbed by the fact the Giants struck out that many times and that they scored only two earned runs during the double defeat.

"Give credit to the other pitchers," said Fox. "No one likes to get that many strikeouts but that's part of the game. Don't forget, we had 20 hits and scored 16 runs just the other day (last Friday against Houston)."

Fox said he plans no lineup changes for the Dodger series.

"Outside of Mays going to first, we won't do anything drastic," said Fox.

Gaylord Perry gave up only six hits and the one run scored off him was unearned in taking the first-game loss Sunday. Jim Willoughby, like Richard making his big league debut, was the nightcap loser.

A's Keep 15½-Game Lead

OAKLAND (UPI)—Oakland's Athletics labored this holiday afternoon against the California Angels at the Coliseum after a quick flight from the Midwest.

Righthander Chuck Dobson of the A's chased his 16th victory of the campaign. The lanky fastballer has lost three. He was opposed by Andy Messersmith (14-13).

Both the Athletics and Angels flew to the Bay Area Sunday night after dropping games only a few miles apart in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Rod Carew lashed four hits and drove in two runs to pace the Twins to a 7-3 win over John Odom, now 10-10, and the Athletics. Meanwhile, the Angels dropped a 6-4 decision to Milwaukee despite a three-run, inside-the-park homer by Ken McMullen that gave California a 3-0 lead before the Brewers came to bat.

Despite the loss, the A's held onto their 15 1-2-game lead over Kansas City in the American League West because the Royals were blanked by Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox.

Minnesota hopped on Odom for two runs in each of the first three innings.

Oakland narrowed the gap to 4-2 by scoring twice in the third on run-producing singles by George Hendrick and Reggie Jackson. Successive errors by Dwain Anderson and Dick Green helped the twins to a pair of unearned runs in the bottom of the third.

The Athletics scored their final run in the fourth when Angel Mangual reached base on an error, moved to third on a double by Anderson and scored on a wild pitch by Bert Blyleven.

Blyleven spaced 11 hits in going all the way for the Twins to register his 12th victory against 15 losses.

San Marin Defeats Marin Catholic '11' In Scrimmage

The coaches wore smiles after Saturday's San Marin-Marin Catholic high school football scrimmage at Kentfield.

Marin Catholic mentor Bruno Banducci, however, had his joy tempered by the loss of alternate fullback Mark Ferrua. The 5-foot-11, 190 pound performer suffered a right shoulder separation and will miss five games. "What really hurts," Banducci began, "is that he was holding down a first club spot at defensive end and was one of our biggest boys."

Though disappointed with this development, and the 18-12 score favoring the visitors, Banducci was happy with the team's overall showing, marked by improved blocking and a Pat Parnow 55-yard scoring jaunt. The starting fullback broke a few tackles and hot footed past the secondary into the end zone.

His counterpart on San Marin, Fred Doar, contributed a 30-yard touchdown burst to capitalize on a Marin Catholic mistake. The hosts lined up with only 10 men on the field, sans a defensive end. Although not spotting the deficiency, quarterback Hoza Wright called for a sweep around the vacant left wing and the play went all the way.

San Marin's longest drive, a 70 yard effort, featured a 23-yard Wright to Terry Com aerial on a third and 20 circumstance. Com, a sophomore surprise, caught the ball from his weary-armed quarterback on a cross pattern. Wright, coach Bob Martin's main signal calling hope, is rounding his arm in shape in what is proving to be a painful process.

While Wright was tuning his throwing talents for the season ahead, so was Marin Catholic's Steve Sherry. The veteran passer did not produce to Banducci's expectations but showed enough flashes of brilliance to make his coach comment, "He'll be doing better later. Steve and the rest of the offense were a bit confused, because I've installed a new system." This innovative approach features a passing emphasis with a mixture of runs triggered by quarterback spins and pivots.

Sherry mustered mastery of enough Banducci bits of strategy to connect with transplanted junior varsity quarterback Russ Knudsen, now a flankerback. The latter will be called on to take pitchouts and run the pass option.

Rookie Sparks Pirates

By NEIL HERSHBERG
UPI Sports Writer

Rennie Stennett always had a desire to play with the Pittsburgh Pirates and now that the 20-year old Panamanian has been given the opportunity he's not about to mess it up.

Willie Stargell belted his 43rd homer of the year, Milt May added a two-run homer and the red-hot Stennett blasted his first major league homer Sunday to lead the rejuvenated Pirates to an 8-2 victory over the Montreal Expos.

It was the 10th victory in the last 13 starts for Pittsburgh, even though the Pirates haven't had a complete game during the stretch. Ramon Hernandez saved Sunday's victory for Bruce Kison with 2 1-3 innings of relief.

Stennett, despite defensive mistakes and inexperienced baserunning, has kept himself in the Pittsburgh lineup with his bat. The rookie infielder singled and doubled before his homer, extending his hitting streak to 14 games and boosting his batting average to .402.

Stennett, who led the International League in hitting last season with a .326 average, was leading the IL again this year until he was called up by the Pirates in mid-season as a replacement for Dave Cash. Although Stennett was originally recalled as a two-week roster replacement for Cash, who was to leave for two-week military reserve duty, he impressed the Pittsburgh coaching staff enough with his batting potential that he's been with the club ever since.

"I've been a baseball fan a long time," said Stennett who signed with the Pirate organization in 1969. "I watched the 1960 World Series on television behind the Canal Zone. That's when I started pulling for the Pirates."

Pittsburgh batting coach Bill Virdon, a respected hitter in his playing days, credits the rapid development of Stennett on his ability to "adapt from one pitch to the next."

"In Saturday's game he looked bad on a couple of pitches from Mike Marshall. Next thing you know he shifted his feet and hit a screwball for a single."

Gene Mauch, who saw his Expos drop two of three to the division-leading Pirates, was amazed at the ability shown by Stennett.

"The way he looked against us I believe he could hit a double from the batter's circle," the Montreal skipper said.

In other NL action, Houston swept a doubleheader from San Francisco, 1-0, and 5-3, Philadelphia downed New York 7-3, Cincinnati topped Los Angeles 7-5, Atlanta downed San Diego 5-2, and St. Louis outslugged Chicago 12-5.

In the American League, Washington whipped Baltimore 5-3, Boston defeated Cleveland 8-1, Milwaukee tripped California 6-4, Minnesota downed Oakland 7-3, New York edged Detroit 6-5, and Chicago blanked Kansas City 8-0.

The Cardinals rocked 21-game winner Ferguson Jenkins for seven runs in less than five innings and coasted to an easy win over the Cubs in a game delayed three times by rain. Joe Torre, the National League's top RBI man, had two RBIs in the game to boost his season's total to 118.

Lee May drove in three runs with a single and a sacrifice fly in the first two innings to help the Reds down Los Angeles. The Dodgers were able to battle back from deficits of 5-0 and 7-3 thanks to a three-run homer by Maury Wills and Richie Allen's two-run homer.

Snead, Dave Hill Lead In Hartford Open Tourney

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI)—Sponsors of the Greater Hartford Open golf tournament have made a point that nobody has ever successfully defended his championship in the 20-year history of the event.

But the Snead family is working on a bid to become double winners 16 years apart.

Famed Sam Snead won the tournament, then called the Insurance City Open, back in 1955, when the total prize money amounted to some $25,000.

Now, Sam's nephew, 29-year-old Jesse Carlyle Snead, is gunning for the first prize of $22,000 and a new Cadillac.

But just as Sam had competition in his day, so does nephew Jesse. The roughest competition in this four-day, 72-hole test is coming from Dave hill, the more talkative member of the golfing Hills.

Entering today's final round at hot and humid Wethersfield Country Club, the young Snead and the louder Hill were tied at 201, 12 under par in a tournament that has seen the majority of entrants shoot subpar golf the majority of the time.

The pair have plenty of competition since seven other pro tourists are only one stroke back, another is two strokes astern and eight more are just three strokes down.

The hottest final round competition is expected to come from second round leader, unknown Jack Ewing, who is tied for second along with Lou Graham, Dave Stockton, George Archer, Deane Beman, John Miller and Fred Marti.

Graying veteran Gay Brewer is alone at 203 while the 204 grouping included such threats as Al Geiberger, Dick Lotz, Homero Blancas, Tom Shaw, R.H. Sikes and Bobby Nichols.

Ashe Worried About Australia Newcomer In U.S. Open Tennis

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) —Tom Okker, fourth-seeded, feels that the real comer in tennis is 20-year old John Alexander of Australia, and Arthur Ashe agrees he is a little worried, about Alexander too.

Ashe, who has cake-walked through his first three matches without loss of a set in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships, meets Alexander in the next round and Arthur recalls John's straight set win over him, in the semi-finals of a tournament in Teheran in May.

Okker, who meets Toshiro Sakai of Japan today, said, "I have not seen enough of the new young Americans, but I honestly feel that Alexander has the mark of the great Aussie players of a few years ago —like Laver, Rosewall and Emerson."

Marty Riessen of Evanston Ill., the fifth seed who meets 30-year old Jan Leschly of Denmark today, is also impressed with the younger players, notably Bryan Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who took Marty to five-tense sets before bowing in the first round, and Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., who finally went down to Frank Froehling of Fort Lauderdale Sunday, 7-6, 5-7, 6-3, 7-6.

Two seeded players, number six Cliff Richey of San Angelo Tex. and number eight Ilie Nastase of Rumania, lost on Sunday as Ashe moved easily past Mark Cox of England. Ashe, the winner of the first Open here in 1968, said, "the biggest factor is that I'm serving well. I've been optimistic about my chances since the first day."

A casualty, to the dismay of the crowd of 13,284, was Pancho Gonzalez who lost an argument and a match. Gonzalez was beaten by Manual Orantes of Spain 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-1 and lost a debate to a linesman on a foot fault interpretation when tourney referee Seixas backed the lineman.

USC Picked In Pac-8 Grid Race

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Bobby Moore, University of Oregon tailback, was named the outstanding offensive back in the Pacific-8 by vote of 43 football skywriters after a tour of the conference.

The skywriters picked the University of Southern California to win the conference championship with Stanford a close second.

John Vella, USC tackle, was named the outstanding offensive lineman. John Winesberry of Stanford was voted the outstanding first year varsity prospect at running back.

Cal Jones of Washington was tabbed as the outstanding defensive back while Sherman White of California was chosen the choice as defensive lineman with Cal Peterson of UCLA the top defensive sophomore.

University of Southern California received 16 first place votes in the balloting for the top team in the conference and with 10 points for first, graduating down, the Trojans received 276 points.

Stanford received 240 points followed by Washington 208, Oregon State 199, Oregon 197, UCLA 122, California 118 and Washington State 64.

Oregon State was named as the dark horse choice to score an upset conference championship victory.

The other man in the front row, Peter Revson of Redondo Beach, Calif., finished seventh in his McLaren-Offy behind Denver's Jim Malloy, who was in an Eagle-Ford.

Donohue, winner at Pocono in July, took all the blame for running out of gas.

"It was all my mistake," the engineering graduate of Brown university said. "Roger gave me the in sign and I just flat missed it. I didn't realize we were cutting it that close."

Bobby Unser still was wondering what happened after Leonard crossed the finish line.

"Something broke on the car approaching turn one," he declared. "Other than that. I don't know what happened. The car just suddenly turned sideways on me."

A crowd of 168,420 turned out to watch the Ontario Motor Speedway begin its second year.

Danes Dominate Knarr Regatta Opening Race

Denmark captured four of the first five places yesterday in the first heat of the 1971 International Knarr Regatta off Berkeley yesterday.

Skipper Niels Grauballe nipped host San Francisco Yacht Club pilot Knud Wibroe, a transplated Copenhagen native living in Sausalito, by a slim 20 seconds in a 10-18 knot west wind which caused a fairly heavy chop.

After the Sausalito skipper crossed, the Dane teams of Terry Anderlini, Axsel Madsen-Mygdal and Jacob Johansen followed. Art Rude and Dick Griffith, both of Belvedere, followed. Another Belvedere resident, Bob Fisher, took ninth, followed by Ted McKown of Sausalito in 10th place.

The second heat involving the 20 teams took place today.

MacKay Reaches Tourney Finals

Barry MacKay of Ross yesterday swept easily into the finals of the 13th annual Los Gatos Swim and Racquet Club tennis tournament by drubbing San Leandro's Ken Mordoff 6-1, 6-2.

The 6-foot-4 former Davis Cupper faced Los Altos teaching pro HenryKamakana in the finals today. MacKay's championship opponent, a transplanted Hawaiian, moved into the last round by downing Dean Penero of Stockton, 6-4, 6-3.

The winner of the final match will receive $200, the loser $100.

Canadian Wins U.S. Golf Title

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Canadian Gary Cowan captured his second U.S. Amateur golf championship Saturday with a three-stroke victory over Wake Forest University star Eddie Pearce.

Holding a slim one-stroke lead going into the final hole of the 72-hole event, Cowan repeated his 1966 U.S. title by scoring an eagle on the hole.

Cycle Daredevil Injured In Jump

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Fourteen-year-old motorcycle daredevil Gary Wells was slightly injured Sunday night while jumping 155 feet, 10 inches over 15 automobiles on his motorcycle at Beeline Dragway.

Wells was taken to Scottsdale Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released. His father said the boy suffered an asphalt burn on the hand.

The motorcycle apparently came off the "up" ramp too fast, cleared all the automobiles, then overshot the "down" ramp by 20 feet. The cycle skidded and Wells fell off.

Wells remained sprawled on the pavement for five minutes, then walked to an awaiting ambulance.

Salt Lake Wins Flag

TACOMA, WASH. (UPI) — Salt Lake City Angels won their first Pacific Coast League championship since 1959 yesterday with a 6-4 victory over the Tacoma Cubs. The victory gave Salt Lake a 3-1 margin in the best-of-five championship series.

Sometimes It Is Wise To Look Around Before Taking The Ace

Not long ago we spent a whole week on the principle of keeping the dangerous opponent out of the lead. Since you're a very attentive type, you absorbed the lesson and will never flub a hand of that sort again. Just to prove this, take a look at another hand of that kind.

LOW DIAMOND

West opens the deuce of diamonds. East puts up the king, and you take the ace of diamonds and look around to see what the problem is.

Too late. You've already missed it. And you've made my first paragraph look very foolish.

After taking the first diamond trick you draw trumps and try the club finesse, losing to the king. East returns a diamond to West's queen. Now West leads a heart, and East takes two heart tricks.

Down one.

JUST TOO EARLY

Of course, I caught you before you'd had your coffee or you wouldn't have dreamed of making that mistake at the first trick. The right play is to let East hold the first trick with the king of diamonds. That virtually guarantees the contract.

SHUT OUT

East can return a diamond at the second trick, if he likes, but you win with the ace of diamonds and draw trumps. You then take the club finesse, losing to the king. In this position, however, West is shut out. He cannot get in to lead through dummy's king of hearts.

If East leads hearts, dummy's king will win a trick. If East leads anything else you will discard two hearts on dummy's clubs. Either way you will limit the heart loss to one trick; and you will thus make your contract.

In 1620, 149 pilgrims set sail from England for the New World.

In 1901 President McKinley was shot and critically wounded in Buffalo, N.Y. He died eight days later.

In 1909 word was received that Adm. Robert Perry had discovered the North Pole five months earlier, April 6, 1909.

In 1966 South African Prime Minister Henrich Verwoerd was assassinated.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Some Firms Helped By Economic Pinch

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. What industries and companies could be hurt or helped by the recent Nixon statement? — P.C.

A. Let me start with the negative, that is companies and areas which will be hurt. In this category are issues such as Japan Fund, which invest in foreign securities. Foreign manufacturers doing a large amount of business in U.S. will certainly feel the pinch. These include Sony, Telecor, Volvo, Volkswagenwerk and others. International passenger and freight air transports including Flying Tiger and Pan American will probably suffer. Cutting our monetary tie with gold may cause near-term weakness for gold issues but for longer term may be beneficial.

Industries which should benefit include: autos, auto parts, computer and peripheral equipment, consumer products, capital goods, electrical equipment, machine tool, paper, retail and tire. A few companies standing to gain are: Chrysler, Diebold, Foxboro, IBM and Microdot.

Q. I purchased International Leisure (OTC) at 30 about three years ago. Within 90 days it had more than doubled, but because of the capital gains tax I did not sell. During the last stock market slump, it dropped to below 9 at which time I bought shares to average down. Was this wise: should I continue to hold? — D.L.

A. Recession and retrenchment was the order of the day for the resort/gambling industry in 1970. And, International Leisure, which owns and operates the Flamingo Hotel and the Las Vegas Hilton Hotels resort casinos, felt the pinch like everyone else.

Occupancy rates and profit margins were adversely affected by the air controllers' labor problems and a strike of culinary employees.

Thus, while revenues in 1970 rose 38 per cent year-to-year, net income slipped 34 per cent to 66 cents a share. This year, however, operations have improved, as evidenced by International Leisure's first half results. On a 2.7 per cent gain in revenues, share earnings climbed 44% to 43 cents.

Roughly 85.6 per cent-owned by Hilton Hotels, International Leisure represents an attractive speculation and should be held for further recovery gains.

ESCAPE ROUTE —Approximately 100 Uruguayan guerrillas, led by the country's top guerrilla Raul Sendic, used this route to tunnel to freedom from a Montevideo prison early today. Police sources said the Tupamaros guerillas tunneled about 100 yards to a house near the prison in what is said to be the nation's largest jailbreak. Uruguay Terrorists In Mass Jail Break

Guerrillas, Leader Tunnel Out

MONTEVIDEO (UPI) — An estimated 100 left-wing Tupamaros terrorists, including Uruguay's top guerrilla leader, Raul Sendic, tunneled their way 100 yards to freedom today in the nation's biggest jailbreak, police sources said.

The mass escape of the terrorists followed by only five weeks a massive flight by 38 female members of the secret left-wing organization from a woman's jail.

Punta Carretas Prison Director Col. Pascual Cirilo refused to give details of the jailbreak, saying no information had to come from the Interior Ministry.

Asked the number of Tupamaros who fled, he replied, "I can't answer that."

A police spokesman said the tunnel apparently led to a house near the prison, which had been declared a "military zone" early this year.

Reporters and photographers were not allowed near the tunnel or the prison, located about two miles from downtown Montevideo.

Still unknown was the exact number of Tupamagos who fled, but one police sources estimated the number at 106.

Uruguayan authorities are currently building another prison on the Isla de Flores in Montevideo Bay, about 15 miles east of Montevideo.

The prison was started when authorities discovered a tunnel last February leading into Punta Carreta from the outside.

Police sources said later the entire Montevideo zone had been closed to traffic leading both inside and out.

The owner of the house where the tunnel was discovered, Billy Rial, told UPI that he had heard the Tupamaros say 120 had escaped.

He said the backup members outside used portable radios to keep in contact with the Tupamaros inside Punta Carretas.

Rial said the entire operation had taken nine hours and the tunnel had wound up in his living room.

During that time, Rial said, he and his family were held prisoner.

"They wouldn't even accept a cup of coffee, although I offered them some," Rial said. He added they had treated him and his family "correctly."

The Tupamaros, whose avowed aim is to overthrow the government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco, are currently holding five hostages, including British Ambassador Geodfrey Jackson, 56.

Jackson has been held for nine months, since last Jan. 8. No demands have been made for his release.

The other four hostages are Uruguayan businessmen who were captured after Jackson was kidnapped.

Sendic, 34, is the founder of the Tupamaros and was captured Aug. 7, 1970, shortly after the Tupamaros killed Dan A. Mitrione, a police adviser from Richmond, Ind. Mitrione was killed Aug. 1.

Another American kidnaped by the terrorists, Claude L. Fly of Ft. Collins, Colo., was held for months and then released after he suffered a heart attack.

SEALED OFF —Uruguayan authorities have sealed off the city of Montevideo and surrounding countryside to search for a band of 100 leftwing Tupamaros guerillas who escaped from a prison early today. The band, led by Raul Sendic, tunneled 100 yards from the maximum security institution to freedom. (UPI Telephoto)

Nixon Hails Economy Response

THURMONT, Md. (UPI — President Nixon hailed the "overwhelming response" to his economic belt-tightening policies Monday and appealed for revival of the competitive spirit and pride of workmanship that made America great.

The President's Labor Day address to the nation, broadcast by radio from a small cabin near the main lodge of the Camp David mountain retreat, was countered by a harsh attack by AFL-CIO President George Meany in a later radio speech from Washington.

Meany blasted Nixon's programs as "a form of socialism for big business" and vowed that organized labor would press for rejection of his tax cut proposals when Congress returns from a summer recess Tuesday.

The President made only a passing, veiled reference to Meany's steady criticism in a 12-minute broadcast stressing widespread public support of his wage-price freeze and urging greater productivity to curb inflation and create more jobs.

"Of course there have been complaints, there have been counter-suggestions, there have been criticism by special interest groups," Nixon said. "But the most heartening reaction was the surge of national confidence, the reaffirmation of our competitive spirit, the willingness to make a personal sacrifice in pursuit of worthy goals by the man in the street, the worker on the job and the homemaker trying to balance the family budget."

The President called for new industrial investment, job training, improved business management and encouraging greater pride by workers in their jobs, to increase productivity and keep America foremost in world trade and leadership.

Rising productivity, he said, "means that the individual worker gets a real increase in his wages, most just a pay raise eaten away by inflation.

"It means that the consumer gets more for his money, the investor gets a greater return, and more money is available to help those who cannot help themselves."

Nixon declared: "Our success in rising to the challenge of peace will depend on the competitive spirit of the American people."

On the eve of Congress' return, and prompt tax cut hearings promised by the House Ways and Means Committee, Meany level5 a savage attack on Nixon's economic plans as weighted unfairly in favor of corporate interests.

Zeroing in on Nixon's proposed 10 per cent investment tax credit for new plants and machinery, Meany called it a "giant raid on the federal treasury that would transfer billions of dollars in public funds into the private treasuries of big business."

The labor federation chieftain said the tax credit, plus a previously ordered speedup in tax depreciation allowances, would enrich business by $70 billion in the next decade. He said the money ought to be poured instead into programs to provide better schoosl, hospitals, housing and transportation, a cleaner environment and more jobs.

Nixon, accompanied to Camp David by his wife and daughters Julie and Tricia and their husbands, spent the morning reviewing his speech, which aides said in advance would be "conciliatory" toward the labor movement.

Nixon was returning to the White House Monday night for a busy week highlighted by the return of Congress.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, said contrary to the President's claims that "our competitive free enterprise system is in deep trouble" because of a growing gap in profits between large and small corporations.

Proxmire said his committae would take a closer look at administration economic policy "as it affects medium-sized and small businesses" at a time when the government is extending huge job-saving assistance to such industrial giants as Penn Central, Lockheed, Boeing and major automakers.

Proxmire cited a Federal Trade Commission and Securities and Exchange Commission report showing that profits of manufacturers with assets of more than $1 billion rose 18.8 per cent in the first three months of the year, while businesses with assets of less than $1 million suffered a 40.4 per cent drop in profits.

Latin American Arms Sales Is Defended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird considers the military "the only cohesive group" in most Latin American countries but denies that the Pentagon is encouraging military takeovers through its training programs, congressional testimony revealed Monday.

At the same time, the Defense Department warns that the United States is losing and will continue to lose ground to European arms salesmen as long as U.S. arms sales to Latin America are limited by Congress.

These statements were made by top, Pentagon officials, including Laird, during secret hearings held last March by the House Appropriations Committee. A heavily censored transcript of these hearings was released Momday.

"I think it is important for us to bear in mind that the military is the only cohesive group if many of the countries of Latin America and that they are very important," Laird testified.

"No part of the U.S. training given Latin American officers is in any way related to overthrow of governments, but on the contrary is aimed at maintaining internal security and stability in order that economic progress can be achieved."

Laird said that the political

Boy Held After Spree With Rifle

A 14-year-old Los Angeles County boy has been booked into Marin Juvenile Hall on nine counts of assault with intent to commit murder.

Robert Washburn of Arcadia was arrested late Friday after he fired a .22-caliber rifle at persons near the Lucas Valley Community Center and later held off deputies for several minutes outside the center at 1201 Idleberry Drive, Marin sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies said witnesses told them they first observed Washburn about 10:30 p.m. Friday sitting in a park area behind the center.

About an hour later, he began cleaning a rifle, deputies said, and telling witnesses that he had killed a man in Los Angeles for "playing around with his sister."

He then began firing at persons near the center, but hit no one.

When deputies arrived, the boy aimed the rifle at them. A shot was fired by a deputy near Washburn's legs and he suffered small cuts on his left ankle from concrete shattered by the shot.

He was taken to Marin General Hospital, according to deputies, and later booked at juvenile hall.

Deputies said they believed the boy may have been under the influence of drugs.

Fog Hampers Searchers In Crash That Killed 111

JUNEAU, ALASKA (UPI)— Rescuers waited for a break in wet, foggy weather today to start bringing out the bodies of 111 persons killed in the worse single-plane airliner disaster in U.S. history.

"If we can finish up in three days, we'll be lucky with the weather the way it is," said Lt. Harry McLaughlin of the Alaska state Police, who was directing recovery operations.

"We have people at the site," he reported. "We've only moved up those we have shelter for. It's rainy, windy and cold up there."

The site was the side of a 3,500 foot mountain in the foothills of the rugged Chilkoot mountain range, where the Alaska Airlines Boeing 727 Tri-Jet smashed Saturday afternoon, killing all 104 passengers and seven crew members on board.

Helicopters slipped through a brief break in the bad weather Sunday afternoon to carry federal investigators to the site, 17 miles northwest of Juneau.

McLaughlin said five mountain climbers also had reached the 2,400 foot crash site after hiking up from a lower altitude base camp.

Rain and mist hampered recovery operations most of the day Sunday and it wasn't until late afternoon that the weather cleared long enough to make helicopter operations feasible.

The copters flew in from the Coast Guard cutter Sweetbrier, being used as a rescue base.

McLaughlin said a temporary mortuary had been set up in Juneau in preparation for removal of the bodies.

More People died in this crash than in any other in Alaska history. In 1963 the crash of a Northwest Airlines plane killed 101 persons.

The Jet's wreckage was scattered over two square miles in the rugged mountains surrounding Juneau. The crash was unexplained and the pilot had reported no trouble.

Part of the fuselage fell down a cliff and fire scorched much of the wreckage, which was broken into hundreds of pieces.

The air controller on duty at Juneau airport said the 727 was coming in from Uakutat in fog and drizzle. He said he gave the pilot a holding pattern because he was having difficulty communicating with another plane.

That was the last contact with the airliner, the controller said.

When the tower could not raise the plane by radio, a widespread search was undertaken. About four hours later the wreckage was spotted by a Coast Guard helicopter pilot.

The Juneau airport does not have an electronic instrument landing system to help pilots in bad weather because the surrounding geography does not permit the system currently in use.

Handful Of Pupils To Resume Classes

For about 45 students, out of approximately 51,000 in Marin, schools open and classes begin tomorrow. The rest will resume study next Monday.

The early starters are students at three small schools just south of the Marin-Sonoma border in the Hicks and Chileno valleys: Laguna, expecting 14 students; Lincoln, 17, and Union, 15.

Shots Fired At Berlin's Border Mars Atmosphere Of Inking Pact

BERLIN (UPI) —Communist East German border police fired six shots at a man who tried to escape across the Berlin Wall into West Berlin early today, police reported.

Police said the would-be refugee appeared to escape injury, but the border guards captured him. The incident took place around 2:00 a.m.

The shooting was the second at the Berlin Wall within 25 hours and marred the atmosphere of hope created by Friday's signing of the first phase of the four-power agreement on Berlin.

At 1:20 p.m. Sunday, East German police shot a man aged about 20 in the right leg as he trieb to flee across the wall. The shooting brought protests from the allied authorities in West Berlin and the city government.

In West Berlin and in Bonn representatives of the East and West German governments and the West Berlin City Council met in separate talks to hammer out details of the Berlin agreement.

In West Berlin, East German State Secretary Guenther Kohrt met West Berlin Senate Leader Ulgich Mueller to discuss arrangements for West Berliners to visit East Berlin under the same conditions as those applying to West Germans.

They also planned to discuss improved telephone links between the two parts of the divided city and improved arrangements for West Berlin encalves cut off from the main sectors of the city.

In Bonn Michael Kohl, state secretary in the East German foreign ministry, flew in at the head of a five-man delegation and met with a team led by West German State Secretary Egon Bahr.

Both sets of talks have been under way for some time. But this was the first occasion they met under the specific mandate offered by the Berlin accord.

The East German Communist party orgun Neues Deutschland offered a good augury for the talks. It said with good will on both sides both sets of talks should be completed quickly. It said the East German government for its part would do everything possible to insure a "positive outcome", enabling the agreement "to go into effect as soon as possible."

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt and Foreign Minister Walter Scheel were visiting West Berlin today for talks with city officials and political parties.

The Concorde stopped over at Cayenne, French Guiana, and made the last leg to Rio in three hours and 25 minutes, considerably slower than its top speed of 1,200 MPH.

The Concorde made a triumphant swoop over Rio and then touched down to a perfect landing.

QUEEN "BESS" VISITS BLACK POINT

Resplendent in her gown of ivory with its silver and golden threads, Queen Elizabeth commands that mirth and merriment of the Renaissance Pleasure Faire commence. The queen's proclamation from the stage of the Greenwood Theatre highlighted Saturday's opening day activities. Throngs of onlookers shaded from the scorching Novato sun by an oak forest, watched her procession, shopped at decorated booths where 150 artisans displayed their wares and were royally entertained by 800 singers, actors and dancers. The fair is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and runs each weekend through Oct. 3. Its new location near Novato includes a huge open field with ample space for parking.

Shaheen Plans To Stay Home

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—San Francisco's top school administrator has canceled a scheduled vacation after enraged teachers demanded his resignation for "callous indifference" to the massive integration-busing program scheduled to begin next week.

Thomas A. Shaheen, city schools superintendent, said Sunday he will cancel the vacation, set for 11 days after public schools open.

"In view of the expressed concern of the community, of course, I am canceling my vacation which included a speaking engagement for the overseas dependent schools in Europe," Shaheen said.

"When this was first presented to the board, I did not anticipate the strong desires of the community that it be so important that I be here in San Francisco. I was confident that by Sept. 27, because of the dedicated preliminary work by so many competent staff members, the schools would be operating effectively."

The city is under federal court order to fully integrate its school system this fall. The order was unsuccessfully fought by parent organizations, including a powerful delegation from Chinatown.

Lee Dolson, president of the Classroom Teachers Association, had demanded that Shaheen resign after it was learned he was planning a vacation shortly after schools opened. Dolson said Shaheen was indifferent to the integration problems and was leaving the city at a critical time.

But Saturday, James Ballard, president of the rival teachers' union, said Dolson was not speaking for all San Francisco teachers and he had not obtained the backing of the Classroom Teachers Association before making the statement.

Saigon Troops Hit Red Supply Lines

SAIGON (UPI)—An armada of 200 U.S. helicopters ferried thousands of South Vietnamese troops into western Quang Tri province today in a major new operation to disrupt Communist supply lines below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), military sources said.

The sweep, involving at least three brigades of government troops, began at 6 a.m. in rugged country west of Cam Lo and not far from the abandoned Khe Sanh outpost. More than 2,000 American soldiers were moved back into the province to support the campaign, military sources said, including armored, artillery and infantry units.

U.S. B52 bomber crews struck six times overnight in the region, unloading nearly 500 tons of explosives to soften up in advance of the new government operation, field reports said. The drive was one of the biggest since the South Vietnamese incursion into Laos last spring.

Field reports said a South Vietnamese armored column rumbled down Highway 9 today and reopened the old Vandegrift Combat Base east of Khe Sanh. There were no reports of any contact with Communist forces, UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman reported from Quang Tri.

Military sources said the new drive was planned entirely by South Vietnamese commanders in the area, mainly by 1st Infantry Division commandant Maj. Gen. Pham Van Phu and his deputy, Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai.

Three Wounded In Cycle Fracas On Sonoma Coast

JENNER (UPI) —A shootout Sunday involving motorcycle gang members apparently angered over being refused service at a bar in this small resort town left two bike riders and a bartender wounded.

Sonoma County Sheriff's deputies said one motorcycle gang member, whose name was not released, was in critical condition at Community Hospital in Santa Rosa.

A sheriff's spokesman said about 200 motorcyclists converged around the town on the Sonoma County coast for the Labor Day weekend. Many were camping in surrounding beaches and parks.

The spokesman said the cyclists scattered after the shooting, but were surrounded in the Russian Gulch area by California Highway Patrol officers and sheriff's deputies who questioned each one before letting them leave.

The trouble started Saturday when Jerry Burg, owner of the Jenner by the Sea Bar, refused service to several cyclists, according to Ray McDermott, owner of the River's End Bar, also in Jenner.

When the cyclists returned Sunday, McDermott said, Burg again refused them service, and the shooting erupted. Burg was wounded in the leg and head and was taken to Santa Rosa General Hospital where he was reported in satisfactory condition. The other cyclist suffered minor gunshot wounds, deputies said.

Sgt. Robert Townsend, of the sheriff's office said the area around Jenner was sealed off after the incident. He said the cyclists were a "mixed group" of club members from the San Francisco Bay Area, and included members of the Hell's Angels.

"We don't know who shot whom or why at this time," he said, adding that law officers were not involved in the shooting.

Mass Murder, Suicide In Arkansas

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI)—A University of Arkansas coed Sunday said a mass murder and suicide during a reunion of an Ozark mountain family unfolded like a pantomime—unreal at first, then terrifyingly close.

Kris Anderson, 20, dark-haired and green-eyed, saw two persons shot down. Then she crouched with another woman in a cellar, pulling at the rusty door to keep it latched against the prowling murderer.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. George Basore gathered Saturday at the Basore's isolated farm in the Ozark mountains of northwestern Arkansas, near the community of Mount Olive.

Food had been spread on the table for the evening meal. Relatives who had not seen one another for months talked.

"It was a real nice Saturday afternoon. Everyone was just kind of sitting around," Miss Anderson said. She was sitting on the porch swing with her date, Chris Basore.

A car came up the hill and turned into the driveway. A woman got out. She was "very calm, cool and collected. She was dressed up like she was going to a party or something."

"Chris said it was his mother who just drove up. I thought 'well, I guess I'll get to meet her,'" Miss Anderson said. Chris' father and mother, Mrs. Elinore Basore, 45, of El Paso, Tex., had been separated for one year.

"Chris' grandmother came out to meet her. She (the woman) just walked up with a gun and shot her. Chris yelled, 'Mother,' and walked over to his grandmother's body. And she shot him." The grandmother, Mrs. George Basore, was killed. Chris was wounded critically.

"It just didn't look real. I thought I'd better just sit down and be quiet. She walked past me and went into the house. I heard a few shots," Miss Anderson said.

Then Miss Anderson walked into the house, quietly, a few minutes after the second volley of shots were fired.

"People were yelling. I figured this was for real. I left and went around to the side of the house. I found Chris' aunt, Mrs. Obie Harmon, and she was getting a little bit hysterical.

The two women found a storm cellar and hid there for 15 to 20 minutes. "The cellar door wouldn't stay closed and I had to hold it shut from the outside cause she was looking for people."

When police arrived they found six persons shot—only one—Chris—still alive.

"There was quite a bit of blood," said Arkansas State Trooper Quimby Johnson, one of the first to investigate the killings.

Sheriff Bill Long of Washington County said the woman used a 9-millimeter automatic pistol.

Dead were George Basore Sr., 71, his wife Wilma, 70; George Basore Jr., 49, of Fayetteville, and Obie Harmon, 49, of Oklahoma City, the Basore's son-in-law. Elinore Basore lay on the front porch steps where she had shot herself.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Suspect Mum

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)–Suspect John G. Freeman, 41, has said nothing so far about the fatal shooting of seven members of a Phoenix family.

Freeman was under heavy guard at the jail ward of the Maricopa County Hospital where he was taken for treatment of superficial hand and leg wounds.

Seven murder charges were filed in justice court Saturday, accusing Freeman of killing Mrs. Novella Bentley, 43, her five children and her son-in-law. The shootings occurred Friday night at Mrs. Bentley's modest home here. Freeman was arrested by police as he scaled a fence behind the house.

Authorities said there was no indication when Freeman would be released from the hospital or make his first court appearance. The suspect has refused to talk with police since his arrest.

Storm Grows

SAN JUAN, P. R. (UPI) — A tropical depression from the Atlantic moved across the Windward Islands toward the Caribbean today, bearing showers and gale-force winds.

United States Navy reconnaissance aircraft were ordered to investigate the depression early today for any signs of intensification.

The National Weather Service said the depression was centered about 50 miles east of the island of Grenada at 10:30 p.m. EDT Sunday, and was moving westward at about 15 to 20 miles per hour.

A Weather Service bulletim said locally heavy showers and thundershowers were expected during the night in the Windward Islands and warned island residents to be alert for flash flooding.

Volvo Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader's Center for Auto Safety has charged Volvo, Inc., with a "monumentally" deceptive national advertising campaign on the merits of the Volvo automobile.

The center said a limited survey of Volvo owners and consumer complaint letters indicated the Swedish cars are susceptible to premature brake wear, poor gas mileage and difficult engine starts.

The company advertises that nine out of 10 volvos still are running in Sweden 10 years after their manufacture.

"It is our sincere belief that the expectations created by Volvo's national advertising campaign are monumentally misleading and deceptive when viewed against the often unpleasant realities of Volvo ownership," the center said in a letter to Volvo of America president Stigg Jansson.

Shooting Spree

LAFOLLETTE, Tenn. (UPI) —Three persons were killed and two others wounded in a shooting spree with a submachine gun at a home near here over the weekend.

Sheriff Rose Kitts of Campbell County said Richard Suttles apparently opened fire on a group of people visiting his home after someone threw a bottle during an argument. Suttles then apparently shot himself, the sheriff said.

Dead were Suttles, his brother-in-law Walter Rogers, and Rogers' son, Charlie. Injured were Mrs. Richard Suttles, shot through the back and apparently paralyzed, and Raymond Brantley, shot through the right leg and right arm.

Bikers Held

TALLADEGA, Ala. (UPI) — Two hundred members of a motorcycle gang called "The Outlaws," who arrived at Alabama International Motor Speedway with four van trucks, were arrested Sunday on charges of "assaulting and robbing" race fans.

The local sheriff speculated the group planned to use the trucks to haul off motorcycles belonging to spectators during a race.

"We've got them all in jail," said Walter L. Allen, Alabama public safety director. He said 160 were held at a state prison farm in Childersburg and 40 in other nearby jails on "25 or 30 various charges."

Fatal Bite

ADELAIDE, Australia (UPI) —A 52-year-old fisherman died of a heart attack Sunday after a small shark leaped into his boat and bit his shoulder, hospital officials said.

Talks Recess

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Striking West Coast longshoremen and their employers took a break in negotiations today—Labor Day—but both sides planned strategy for a joint meeting Tuesday.

A spokesman for the employer group said Sunday following a four-hour meeting that negotiations would resume Tuesday. He indicated both parties would meet separately during today's holiday.

2 Booked In Suspicion Of Burglary

Two men were booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of burglary and conspiracy after police stopped a burglary at Montecito Shopping Center in San Rafael.

Arrested at 4:02 a.m. were Robert Lee Khier, 38, of San Francisco, and Henry Paredes, 39, of no known address. They were held to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

The men were arrested after police saw Khier running from the Montecito Self-Service Cleaners at 365 Third Street about 3 a.m., police said.

Paredes, trapped inside, crawled through a large vent into a subceiling where he hid for about 40 minutes before he fell through the ceiling, according to officers.

The cleaners and adjacent laundromat were ransacked, police said.

Woman Shot By Crossbow Bolt

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Mary Borgogna, 64, was in fair condition at Harbor General Hospital today after being shot in the chest with a crossbow bolt.

Police said the woman had just lowered the garage door at her home Saturday when Charles Childress, 33, Compton, fired the crossbow from across the street.

Childress was arrested on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder and investigation of insanity.

Oakland Rocked By Explosions

OAKLAND (UPI) — There were two unexplained explosions Sunday in Oakland—one at an advertising firm and the other at a school.

The blast at the Foster & Kleister billboard firm's office tore a hole in an outer wall.

More Time Will Be Asked On Annexation

The City of Tiburon will appear before the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission Wednesday night to ask for more time to process its annexation of more than a 1,000 acres on both sides of Tiburon Boulevard.

The LAFC meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. in the board of supervisors' chambers at the Civic Center.

Tiburon wants to annex 738 acres of the Strawberry Peninsula south of Tiburon Boulevard, including the Strawberry Shopping Center, and another 297 acres north of Tiburon Boulevard including Eagle Rock, Bayview Heights, and Bel Aire subdivisions.

On Sept. 16 last year, LAFC gave Tiburon a year's time to complete the annexation. Tiburon is now asking for an extension until Nov. 16. The annexation question is to voters of the areas to be annexed on Oct. 19.

In other items on the LAFC agenda, the City of Novato wants to annex 35 acres of land at San Marin Drive and Hill Road, where townhouses are planned, and Leland E. Stevenson, who owns 35 acres of land north of Muir Beach, wants to join the Muir Beach Community Services District so that he can get water supply for homes he plans to build.

Man, Mistaken For Policeman, Beaten

A 21-year-old San Rafael man was beaten up today at Carpenter's Hall after he apparently was mistaken for a Sausalito policeman, San Rafael police reported.

Mark B. Corey of 126 Filbert Street suffered large cuts and bruises on his back and face, black eyes, two broken teeth and scraped elbows at 2:34 a.m. He was treated at Marin General Hospital.

According to police, Corey went to Carpenter's Hall at 647 Lindaro Street in San Rafael to talk to a friend about parts for his car. A dance was in progress at the time.

Corey, who is white, said about a dozen black men jumped him when someone shouted, "He's a cop and he's a black belt."

Corey told police he was thrown to the ground and beaten with an auto wrench by one man while several others kicked and punched him.

Someone broke up the attack and Corey drove himself to the hospital, according to police.

Corey said he believes he was mistaken for a Sausalito policeman who drives the same kind of car he does, police reported.

Reagan Goes To Bat For Nixon

HOUSTON (UPI)—California Gov. Ronald Reagan asked the Young Americans for Freedom Sunday night to hold off on their rejection of President Nixon until the President has been given a chance to complete his proposed visit to Red China.

"We should remember that this same man stood in the glare of the television floodlights in a kitchen in Moscow and told Nikita Khrushchev that if he tried any rough stuff with this country, we'd kick the hell out of them," Reagan told the young conservatives.

The YAF withdrew its support of the Nixon administration Saturday, largely because of Nixon's new China policy. Reagan, speaking in a telephone address to the 1,600 delegates, said Democratic presidents had "disgraced" the nation in Vietnam, Cuba and Korea.

Hearing Set On Townhouses

The Corte Madera Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on the 630-unit Madera del Presidio townhouse development plan at 8 p.m. Thursday at the town hall council chambers.

The plan calls for the units to be constructed on 74 acres southeast of the H. Koch and Sons plant, between Highway 101 and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way.

Developer of the first phase, H. James Knuppe of Castro Valley, has proposed 154 units on the 16 acres closest to the Koch plant.

A San Anselmo man was booked into Marin County Jail Saturday by Mill Valley police on suspicion of burglary and lewd lust for a child.

Thomas Joseph Messles of 153 Redwood Road was arrested on a warrant at 12:10 p.m. and held in lieu of $20,000 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow. Details of the arrest were not available.

Film Series Scheduled At New Campus

A 15-week film appreciation series will be the first community program presented by Indian Valley Colleges, new north campus for the Marin Community College District.

The series of historical, classical and contemporary films will begin at 7 p.m. Sept. 15 in Novato High School's lecture hall and will continue on Wednesdays until Dec. 22.

The same programs will be shown on Monday nights at College of Marin, beginning Sept. 13, but that course, given for credit, is almost full, college officials said.

Season tickets for the Novato series may be obtained by calling or writing College of Marin or at the first session. If there are extra seats, individual tickets will be sold, according to college officials.

The first film to be shown is "King of Hearts" to be followed by "La Strada" and "Rashomon." Other films in the series are "The Manchurian Candidate," "Divorce, Italian Style," "M," "Golddiggers of 1933" and "Top Hat."

The Philippines has 1,500 barrio village high schools with total enrollment of 160,000 students.

Year In Jail Handed Out For Burglary

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A Petaluma youth has been sentenced to a year in county jail by Judge Joseph R. Murphy Jr. of Sonoma Superior Court for burglarizing Wickes Lumber Co. in Petaluma on July 17.

Henry K. Ackerman, 19, had pleaded guilty to a charge of second degree burglary, a count that had been reduced from first degree burglary.

In sentencing Ackerman, Judge Murphy lifted a 10-month jail term imposed earlier in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court for violation of probation. When arrested, Ackerman was on probation as a result of a 1970 marijuana conviction.

Confrontation In The Jungle

BRASILIA (UPI)—When 100 Cacique Indians marched into a campsite in the Amazon region recently and demanded a bride for their chief, interpreters had a tough time explaining there were no women in the road-building camp, Brazilian Rep. Sinval Boaventura reported Sunday.

The Indians spotted a young topographer with long, blond hair and no beard.

"White man lie," said the Indian leader.

The young man finally had to strip. "White man don't lie," said the leader and the Indians disappeared back into the jungle, Boaventura said.

Editors To Get Peking Briefing

NEW YORK (UPI)—Distinguished experts on China and Japan will report to delegates attending the 1971 United Press International Editors and Publishers Conference (Edicon) in Honolulu, Oct. 3-6, it was announced yesterday.

The four-day meeting at the Ilikai Hotel will be devoted to an examination of the economic and political issues facing the nations of the Pacific, with emphasis on the China question and U.S. relations with Japan.

Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore has tentatively accepted an invitation to address the conference. President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Republic of the Philippines also has been invited to present his views on the major issues of the day.

The principal speaker on China will be Robert A. Scalapino, professor of political science at the University of California in Berkeley. Scalapino, one of the world's foremost authorities on China, will discuss the meaning and probable effects of Mainland China's new worldwide diplomatic offensive.

Other featured speakers will include Harlan Cleveland, president of the University of Hawaii and former U.S. diplomat; Adm. John S. McCain Jr., commander-in-chief of the U.S. forces in the Pacific; and Dr. Everett Kleinjans, chancellor of the East-West Center in Honolulu.

Advance registrations indicate that more than 350 newspaper executives and their wives will attend the conference, which will also include a full schedule of social activities.

"This is UPI's 12th annual Edicon," said UPI President Mims Thomason, "and the program that has been arranged with the help of our co-hosts, the Honolulu Advertiser and the Star-Bulletin, may be the most timely, important and provocative we have ever offered. It is designed to foster a deeper comprehension of the problems and issues that face the Asian nations and which both concern and involve the United States."

There will be four working sessions during the conference, with various authorities participating in panel meetings that will examine food and population problems throughout Asia in addition to the China and Japan equations.

Prof. Scalapino will keynote the session on the China question. Other speakers on the subject will include Lee Chia, veteran Tokyo correspondent for the Central News Agency of China, and Stephen Uhalley Jr., associate professor of history at the University of Hawaii and former officer of the Asia Foundation.

Another speaker will be Shintaro Fukushima, president of the Kyodo News Service and Japan Times. A former deputy secretary general of the Japanese cabinet, Fukushima is a member of Japan's delegation to the United Nations.

One of the conference sessions will be held in the Kennedy Theater at the East-West Center on the campus of the University of Hawaii. There, Dr. Kleinjans and his associates will discuss the progress of programs seeking solutions to critical food and population problems in Asian nations.

Briefings on various aspects of the UPI service will be delivered by H. L. Stevenson, managing editor; James F. Darr, director of communications; Julius Frandsen, vice president and Washington manager, and Wilbur G. Landrey, experienced writer and editor with very definite ideas on what readers want from their daily newspapers.

Presiding at the working sessions will be George Chaplin, editor of the Honolulu Advertiser; A. A. (Bud) Smyser, editor of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin; Robert Letts Jones, president, and Copley Newspapers, La Jolla, Calif.; Ted Weegar, assistant managing editor, Los Angeles Times, and Roger Tatarian, UPI vice president and editor.

Social events will include a pre-conference reception and buffet aboard the American President Liner SS President Cleveland on Saturday, Oct. 2; a garden reception at the home of Gov. and Mrs. John A. Burns; a Hawaiian luau at the Makaha Inn; a picnic lunch on the grounds of the East-West Center; an afternoon cruise around Pearl Harbor, and a tour of private Hawaiian homes for the ladies.

The conference will close with the traditional banquet on Wednesday evening, Oct. 6, at the Ilikai Hotel.

Bennett Blasts Phone 'Lobbying'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A consumer advocate has charged Pacific Telephone was "improper lobbying" with members of the state Public Utilities Commission in order to get a $143 million rate increase.

William M. Bennett, of Kentfield, a member of the state Board of Equalization who represents Consumers Arise Now, told the state Supreme Court that consumers "cannot get a fair hearing" before the present PUC.

Bennett addressed the high court in its review of the phone rate increase granted by the PUC—the largest in state history.

He asked the court to name an "independent hearing officer" to investigate into Pacific's alleged lobbying and to guarantee consumers a "fair hearing" in a new review of the rate increase.

Admiral Ponders Fleet's Future

By KIM WILLENSON

SAIGON (UPI)—Even though he took his flagship close to the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) a few days ago to fire her six-inch guns at Communist targets in the buffer strip, Vice Adm. William P. Mack is already thinking hard about what the U.S. Seventh Fleet should look like, and what it should do, after the war is over.

The subject that bothers him most right now is whether his fleet will be any match at all for the burgeoning Russian presence in Pacific and Indian waters, and the slowly growing Chinese Communist Navy, in the next three or four years.

The size of the Seventh Fleet, which he notes must represent the United States all the way from the Aleutian Islands to the East African coast, has declined 60 per cent, from 225 ships manned by 87,000 men in 1968 to 95 ships manned by 40,000 sailors today, as the Indochina war has begun to wind down.

At the same time the Soviet Pacific and Indian Ocean Fleet, operating off the Russian east coast ports of Vladivostok, Petropavlovsk and Sovetskaya Gavan, has grown to include more than 175 vessels, including 120 submarines, five cruisers and 25 destroyers —an awesome force that would easily outgun the Americans were it not for the U.S. aircraft carriers.

The Chinese Navy also has been growing, although as Mack admits, it so far has not chosen to venture outside China's territorial waters, and now includes 33 subs, four destroyers, 41 frigates and 380 missile armed gunboats.

The point of drawing all these comparisons, said Mack, is simply that the Navy is both the most flexible arm of the U.S. forces, and the one that does most of the representation of America's strength in time of peace.

"How do you influence a country as to whether she signs a treaty with you, or with someone else?" the 56-year-old admiral asked during an interview here this week. Then he shifted his lanky legs and answered his own question in a cool, precise voice.

"I'm thinking specifically of India," which recently signed a 20-year mutual defense treaty with the Soviet Union. "The Soviets do it by putting more ships in the area and visiting these countries more often.

"In the Orient, countries are influenced a lot more if you present yourself to them in a big, new guided missile cruiser than if you sail in with a little World War II destroyer."

Mack, who took over the Seventh Fleet about three months ago, and is described by his subordinates as "a breath of fresh air" in the Navy's crusty command structure, believes that Vietnam has severely limited the Seventh Fleet's ability to perform its major missions in the two oceans.

"We've only been doing about one-tenth of what we should have been doing," says Mack. "We've been too busy fighting the war."

Mack is deeply concerned by the cuts that have been made in the Navy's Pacific strength since President Nixon decided to wind down the war.

"I'm not saying we don't have adequate forces out here right now to do the job," he says. Even another incident like the capture of the intelligence ship Pueblo by the North Koreans two years ago could be handled. "That's why we have three carriers in the Pacific."

"But we see stretching ahead of us in the next three or four years a drawdown in the Pacific Fleet at the same time the Russians and the Chinese are building up. The position could be entirely different then."

Even now the fleet is somewhat smaller than it was before Vietnam began, although it has newer and better ships, particularly big aircraft carriers of the Forrestal class, and Mack says "actually I think we have a better force than we had" in the early 1960s.

The current level of activity off the Vietnam coast, where there are generally one or two aircraft carriers and three or four destroyers firing against shore targets, is not an overriding preoccupation, but it does keep the Navy from doing its job elsewhere, says Mack.

The Russians now keep a destroyer and two to three smaller ships on station in the Indian Ocean all the time, and their bigger cruisers and other vessels visit Indian and African ports frequently. "All we can put in there now is about one ship every other month," he says.

"If a serious contingency came up where we were required somewhere else, we'd leave tomorrow, of course," the admiral said. "But without the war we could take some of these ships and visit the Indian Ocean, Taiwan and other places where we ought to be showing the flag."

Judge Orders Warrants In Creek Cases

Bench warrants have been issued for three persons who have failed to appear in Marin Municipal Court on charges stemming from a 1969 demonstration against the Tamalpais Creek Flood Control Project.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set bail at $250 Friday on warrants for Charles Ernest Wollard, John Henry Weber and John Dennis Ruchenski.

Warrants for the three, as well as for seven other persons arrested in the demonstration, were ordered Aug. 11 by Judge Peter Allen Smith of municipal court, but issuance of the warrants was held up to give the defendants a final chance to appear in court.

Five of the ten have since appeared in court.

A FIERCE DEFENDER

Like mothers everywhere and of every species, Prem, a Bengal tiger, has the strong instinct to protect her young — in this case five cubs born at Chicago's Brookfield Zoo. But unlike some mothers, Prem has the equipment — a set of sharp fangs — to make her warning stick. Four other cubs were born to her sister, Chumma, another zoo resident.

Cranston Asks Off-Limits Areas

By BENJAMIN SHORE
I-J Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., has asked the National Park Service to declare certain marine life areas of Point Reyes National Seashore off limits to humans until a park master plan can be implemented.

Cranston, in a letter to Park Service Director George Hartzog, requested "immediate and forceful action" to keep marine life from being "collected out of existence."

Cranston's top aide, Roy Greenaway, who visited the park Aug. 11, said "high school biology classes are often the worst offenders."

Greenway conferred with Point Reyes officials and studied the investigation of Gordon Chan, head of the Marine Biology Department at the College of Marin.

Chan asserts that collectors and sightseers have completely destroyed Moss Landing from a marine biology point of view, and that Duxbury Reef west of Bolinas is half destroyed, Greenaway said.

In his letter to Hartzog, Cranston noted that the proposed Point Reyes master plan will establish "Research Natural Areas" that will protect marine life at Point Reyes Head, Double Point, and portions of Esteros and Tomales points.

But these ecologically fragile areas are in danger of destruction, Cranston said, because of drawn-out deliberations over the master plan.

"Meanwhile, the park is being used daily by thousands of visitors without the protections which will be afforded by the master plan," Cranston told Hartzog. "In a very short time, the results can prove disastrous for all wild life and specifically for the unique marine and invertebrate specimens of the tidal areas."

"Well-meaning visitors — tourists, uninformed nature lovers, high school science students — can with the best of intentions strip a tidal pool of its irreplaceable life forms in no time," Cranston wrote.

"The Pacific moon snails, geoduck clams, gaint mussels and giant abalones for which Point Reyes is noted can be collected out of existence while we await a resolution of the arguments about where the public roads are to be located."

The debate is over which of the numerous roads at Point Reyes should be kept open for public use, and whether more roads should be added to the existing system.

Plan Endorsed To Buy Railroad

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) examiner has endorsed a plan to allow the 14,000 employees of the Chicago & North Western Railroad to buy the 11,500-mile line from Northwest Industries, the railroad's parent firm.

However, the examiner, Edward J. Reidy, said Thursday the plan may be "latent with unforeseen imperfections" and recommended that a number of restrictions be imposed on the sale.

If the ICC, which called the plan "unique in railroad history", approves the transaction it could result in the nation's largest employee-owned firm.

A collection of oil paintings of animals by Lily Fast of Fairfax will be on display at the Redwood Bank in San Rafael during the month of September. Mrs. Fast's exhibit includes portraits of pets and show animals.

Rock Singer Is Sued: $3 Million

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A disgruntled landlord has sued Sylvester Steward, leaded of the group "Sly and the Family Stone," for $3 million, contending the rock singer was driving out other tenants.

L. Kates, doing business as Dohney West Investment Co., said Steward leased an apartment in his exclusive West Hollywood Building and soon let it become "inundated with loud, noisy, boisterous persons."

The suit contended that various rock groups "entered a conpsiracy" to drive out other tenants and several residents have given notice they intend to move.

STUDENT TRAINING DEVICE

Don Herriott of Petaluma, a student at Sonoma State College, conducts a test of a $50,000 air pollution measuring device which will be put to use by students of a class in environmental physics when school opens this month. The new equipment, designed to be a vital part of student field projects, was purchased with the help of a National Science Foundation grant obtained by Dr. John Dunning, physics professor who will teach the course.

Tunney Urges Halt To Blast In Alaska

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., has urged President Nixon to cancel a planned underground nuclear blast in Alaska because of its possible damage to relations between the U.S. and Japan.

Tunney, in a letter this week to Nixon, said the President's Sept. 26 meeting in Alaska with Japan's Emperor Hirohito could be marred by U.S. insistence in carrying out the nuclear test.

Japan, Tunney noted, is opposed to nuclear testing. Furthermore, the underground test of an anti-ballistic-missile missile warhead could threaten Japan with tidal waves and fish contamination.

Tunney previously has opposed the nuclear test on a remote Aleutian island on the grounds of possible environmental hazards for theU.S. The freshman Senator also has argued that the current strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) could make such expensive testing unnecessary.

Tunney reminded Nixon that Hirohito's trip later this month marks the first time a reigning Japanese Emperor has set foot on foreign soil.

"The importance of this meeting to the Japanese is evident by that fact alone," Tunney said.

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam at Independence Palace for one hour today, U.S. officials said.

Mass Murder In Australia

ADELAIDE, AUSTRALIA (UPI)—Eight children and two adults were systematically shot to death at a lonely south Australian farmhouse in the worst mass slaying in Australian history, police said today. Most of the victims had been shot through the head while in bed, police said. Police said a 40-year-old farmer was being questioned about the shootings.

The shooting occurred about dawn at a small timber farmhouse at Hope Forest, a dairy farming community with a population of about 150, about 35 miles southeast of Adelaide.

The farmer's wife, aged about 40, and his seven children were among the victims. Nine of the dead were found inside the farmhouse, most still in bed; and the 10th, a woman about 40, was found lying about 15 feet from the front door of the house. Like the others she had been shot through the head.

Four of the children were girls, aged 4, 13, 15 and 17. The dead boys were aged 19, 10, 8 years and 7 months.

The University of Michigan, in 1842, became the first to establish a professorship in zoology and botany.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

8 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1971 EDITORIAL PAGE

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

One Little Cloud On School Horizon

Nearly 52,000 children and young adults are expected to throng Marin County's public schools as they open for a new term next week.

We have heard no prediction of any sort of trouble at the opening, other than the usual confusion attendant on getting so many youngsters assigned to the proper classes and more-or-less regimented to schedule after the summer vacation.

This is in contrast to the situation in some other areas.

IN SAN FRANCISCO, massive protest at a court-backed busing plan is expected to disrupt the resumption of classwork. (A clue to the inept handling of San Francisco's school matters that brings this about may be found in plans of that city's superintendent to fly off to Europe shortly after the school year opens.)

In some southern cities where busing plans for the sake of racial integration are being implemented for the first time, there already have been incidents of violence. By and large, however, the southern schools opened last week with little trouble — so little that it likely would have gone unnoticed were not all eyes focused on them.

HERE IN MARIN and Sonoma, we may expect the now-customary feuds over discipline regulations (or the lack of them), class-cutting, hair length, sensitivity training, etc., before the year is anywhere near ended. But these have become such regular items that they may as well be accepted as natural accompaniments to the process of education.

Our schools here should be in better position for a smooth-running year — with improved education resulting — than they have been for some time. Hardly any of them face crowding problems. In few cases has it been deemed necessary to redraw attendance lines, shifting children to different schools than they attended last year. Because there no longer is a teacher shortage, the districts have had no problem filling faculty spots with presumably qualified persons.

There is one little cloud, however, that may bring storms — although it shouldn't.

THE PRESIDENT'S wage-price freeze caught some school districts "between contracts." Teachers in such districts will be denied, at least temporarily, salary boosts they had expected. And they will, of course, be the more unhappy because teachers in other districts got their pay raised before the freeze took effect.

The National Education Association, the American Federation of Teachers, and their California affiliates, the California Teachers Association and California Federation of Teachers, are making a great to-do over this. NEA has promised court challenges. CFT has urged teachers to go on strike against the freeze.

It is impossible to impose a wage-price freeze without some injustices. Somebody "got his" before the deadline and somebody else "just missed his" because of it — no matter when it is set.

We would hope that teachers, whose responsibilities include helping to instill a sense of fair play in their young charges, would recognize this and refrain from disrupting the schools for selfish ends.

Sassy Mosquitoes

Mosquitoes have been more sassy in Marin this year. These miniature vampires have become resistent to most of the standard insecticides. And it is no longer ecologically proper to shotgun them with broad spectrum insecticides.

Two scientists at the University of California at Riverside have developed a new weapon against mosquitoes. A spray made of concentrated extract from two species of common algae has been found to be effective against five kinds of mosquito.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Marin Transit Thinks Big, But At Whose Expense?

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Marin Transit Systems Inc. no longer is content to gnaw on the hand that feeds it — it wants to devour the whole arm.

The Marin City-based company at least cannot be accused of thinking too small. All it wants, in exchange for abandoning its three-month campaign to hold up the Golden Gate Bridge District's $6.3 million federal grant for a bus system, is one-third of the district's entire fleet of 152 buses!

It said so in a letter last month to the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration, which is processing the grant.

THAT THE COMPANY could succeed in killing the grant is unimaginable, but if it did its victory over the district would be at the expense of every citizen who will depend on the district's transit system. The district then would have to pay for the buses out of its own reserve, crippling for several years its financial ability to move into further transit operations.

This is a horrendously high price to pay for the Marin City company's push up to the public trough to create its own private windfall of tax funds.

THE COMPANY, trying to force its way into a service far beyond its financial ability, claims that the district's bus system will replace the company's system. This ignores the facts that it is Greyhound Lines-West that is being replaced (enthusiastically), and that Marin Transit Systems has only five buses.

Not all the shots in the company's campaign are being called by its operators, however. More than $150,000 is owed to capitalists who see the grant application as their chance to recover their investment. Their money apparently became an investment when the company converted its uncollectible debts to stock.

As for the company's professed concerns about the welfare of its employees — who would be hired by the bridge district — we note that the company pays its drivers well below the wages to be paid by the district.

THE COMPANY'S CLAIM that it is an aggrieved party also ignores the fact that it had no scheduled service until it got a county subsidy early last year. That subsidy, running about 80 per cent of costs, will total almost $117,000 by December.

County and bridge district officials always stressed that this subsidized service was temporary until the bridge district's bus system could be started. The company prefers to overlook this express provision in its contract with county and bridge district.

MAN BITES DOG

"The moment our money ran out, we should have gone home instead of selling our airline tickets."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Stand Of Oregon Health Director Praised

May I congratulate you on your great editorial of Aug. 31.

How very encouraging to know that one man has the courage to resign a position which I am sure was a well paying one for the sake of a principle and for the sake of our children. Dr. Peter Batten of Marion County, Ore., certainly voices my feelings and I am sure those of the majority of parents who really care about their children's moral well-being.

How long must parents be dictated to by the state and by groups who unwittingly contribute to the moral breakdown of the young people and the ultimate breakdown of all parental control? As you so ably pointed out, "They sell the program to lawmakers. Nobody really sounds out the public." How can it be, in a country where the right of the individual is the most paramount principal, that the rights of parents are daily being denied to them by family planning advocates? The parents who would rather not know if their young people are using the services of such groups are in essence giving consent. I insist at least on being notified if my children are being given any services by these people, just as I would be if they were being given financial assistance or were in any legal trouble. How can it be that I am responsible for any act my children commit that is unlawful yet I am not responsible enough to decide the most important moral issues?

Bouquets to Dr. Batten of Marion County for a most courageous stand.

Coverage Nominated For Sort Of An Award

Perhaps your coverage of Mr. Walter Cole's grandstanding acts in warning negligent motorists of a CHP inspection will win the half-wit journalism award. Obviously you did a great deal of research as to the alleged [illegible] for faulty equipment (usually none). Who must now pay for Mr. Cole's glory? Next time you report a tragic accident caused by a car with blinding headlights or no tail lights, why don't you call Mr. Cole and praise him for his great public service.

Planning Department Explains Its Criteria

In answer to Mr. Edwin B. Heinlein's question ("Readers Say" Aug. 28) about "what was the rationale, the rules, or the assumption used in making the population predictions for the preliminary countywide plan", I submit the following:

1. The rationale was to use a systematic model, not just a computer, to test what the differences in the amount and location of growth would be under different transportation systems. A model simply simulates a vast number of actions that have been observed to take place in the real world in certain relationships which can be expressed mathematically. For example the general tendency of people to live as close to work as they can afford to.

2. The rules were that the land in Marin that could be developed, completed in terms of accessibility with similar vacant lands in the rest of the region for the housing market created by projected new employment. Increasing the supply of land or reducing the travel time to job centers produced more growth as a rule. However in some parts of the county, improved access didn't make a significant amount of difference in growth rates because the market demand could be satisfied in locations that were closer in.

Finally we didn't offer these model runs so much as predictions, as we did as a way of understanding the degree of change in growth that we get when we vary the transportation system or land supply. We would very much agree with Mr. Heinlein, that the idea of the countywide plan is not to project and serve past trends, but to find out how we can get the kind of future Marin ought to have. Therefore we did use common sense indicators when we said that freeways to West Marin were not only objectionable in a planning sense, but would probably not generate enough growth and therefore traffic to justify their existence on a user benefit basis anyway.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

Bowing To School Teachers Could Undermine Wage Freeze

(John S. Knight in Detroit Free Press)

As much as I applaud President Nixon's wage-price freeze, there are disturbing indications that his bold and constructive action is being diluted by "exceptions" being granted by the Cost of Living Council.

A case in point is the wavering interpretation that school teachers — in most instances — will not be subject to the ban and are eligible for pay raises if contracts were negotiated prior to Aug. 15 when the freeze went into effect.

IT HAS BEEN estimated that 80 per cent of the nation's 2.3 million school teachers will now receive increases. Yet the fact sheet issued by the White House on Aug. 15 clearly speaks of a 90-day freeze "of all wages and prices."

In its question and answer section, the fact sheet offers these examples for "basic policy guidance:"

1 — Are price increases that have already been announced to take effect in the future subject to the freeze?

Yes, all price increases must be controlled.

2 — Are deferred wage and salary increases which have been negotiated to take effect in the future permitted by the freeze?

No.

WELL, THAT SEEMS plain enough. But now the freeze, "monitored by the Office of Emergency Preparedness and under the policy direction of a newly established Cabinet Cost of Living Council chaired by Treasury Secretary Connally," appears to be placing teachers in a privileged class.

The power of politics and the muscle of the teacher's unions seem to negate the administration's tough edict of Aug. 15 that the freeze applied to "all wages and prices."

So why doesn't it? Does the new Cost of Living Council intend to make further exemptions, possibly to elements of labor and business?

If so, Mr. Nixon's brave new plan is headed for trouble. The American people, with some dissenting, are prepared to support the administration's economic policies provided the rules apply to everyone.

As former Ohio Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, who was head of the Office of Price Stabilization in 1950, expressed it: "When you bob a cat's tail, chop it off right down to the base; if you don't do it that way, all you'll get is a mad cat with a sore tail."

Vietnamese People More Ready For Democracy Than Are Leaders

WASHINGTON — The results of the latest national assembly elections are evidence that South Vietnam is not about to fall apart.

The most significant fact to emerge is that the South Vietnamese people are practicing the essential elements of a functioning democracy.

LOOK AT WHAT happened:

More Vietnamese went to the polls than ever before in history. The total vote represented the highest percentage of the electorate — 79 per cent — far higher than in the United States even in presidential elections.

By threat and stepped-up military action the Viet Cong tried to keep the people from voting — and couldn't.

If the Thieu government tried to intimidate the opposition not to vote, it failed. The anti-Thieu vote went up considerably.

The antiwar An Quang party, the activist center of the spiritual and political influence of the Buddhists, tripled their seats in the assembly from 10 to 30. This accretion of power improved the prospect that the Buddhists, who constitute the major opposition to President Thieu, will operate within the system and not seek their ends by violence.

While the pro-Thieu majority in the national assembly was appreciably reduced — the number of opposition seats being doubled — the vote left Thieu in effective control. Thus the election warned the Thieu administration that it faces significant dissatisfaction and at the same time enabled the government to continue to function.

THIS ADDS UP to a considerable political achievement in the face of Communist harassment and the strains of the war.

It is regrettable that the top leaders of South Vietnam are failing to show a similar sense of discipline and responsibility. Right now nothing could be more harmful to South Vietnam than a sham, no-contest, Communist-style election in which the voters are given no alternative.

In the national assembly elections, just completed, the South Vietnamese showed they want to choose their leaders, not just vote yes or no on one candidate and that they are capable of choosing with great discrimination and enlarged numbers. They proved that they are ready to grasp the electoral process at the national level if their leadership is ready to make it available.

President Thieu, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and Gen. Duong Van Minh have thus far all contributed to denying their people this opportunity in the Oct. 3 presidential election.

PERHAPS MR. THIEU thought he could sideline Vice President Ky without reaping the consequence of a no-contest shadow election. He failed.

Ky was finally ruled eligible by the supreme court and now Ky says he won't run unless Thieu resigns.

General Minh announced his candidacy and then withdrew it on the contention that it wouldn't be a fair vote.

Note that the assembly candidates who were defeated last week are not complaining about an unfair vote.

Ky and Minh may think they are bravely harassing President Thieu, but what they are really doing is grievously disserving the South Vietnamese voters.

The South Vietnamese deserve better of their leaders.

What Big Labor Forgot Comes Alive In Fields

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

DELANO, Calif. — Labor Day is when people lasso their children one last time after the summer holidays and corral them in the back of their cars and drive them home through murderous traffic to begin another year at school. The parent or schoolchild who ever gives 10 seconds' thought to why it is called Labor Day is a novelty. For that matter, to most Americans the very word "labor" today means nothing resembling what it stood for a generation ago.

Labor today is George Meany, who used to be a plumber but today smokes big cigars and in even years plays golf with the President, and refers to cabinet secretaries assigned to deal with him as the President's janitors. Or it is a plumber, whose hourly wage if not his fingernails sets him apart now as one of nature's better-rewarded noblemen.

It is Harry Bridges, continuing the West Coast dock strike as part of his struggle to keep control of his union, and it is Jimmy Hoffa in prison, and hardhats riding construction rigs and roughing up citizens of different preferences in hair styles and politics, and it is railroad workers or sanitation engineers or subway motormen or airline pilots or telephone operators making life miserable for the rest of us for another ridiculous pay riase.

IT IS NOT, any more, what it was when I was a boy and around our house buying a magazine that did not bear the union printers' label was a sin, and it is not what it was when Walter Reuther was organizing the automobile plants or what it was when the miners and the companies fought along Cabin Creek, W. Va. It is not, here in California, what John Steinbeck brought home to the rest of us in "The Grapes of Wrath" and "In Dubious Battle."

In short, the word "labor" does not connote the underdog any more, not to most of us.

But try telling that to one of the deep brown-skinned men who were bending double to bring in a ripening tomato crop in the hot sunshine of a Sunday afternoon alongside the Ortega highway above Capistrano the other afternoon. It will not sit well with them, or with the others like them who breathe insecticide dust in the vineyards of the great Central Valley, or move with the crops up and down from Texas to Michigan, from Florida to New Jersey. Or with Cesar Chavez, who is trying to do for them now, what Walter Reuther and John L. Lewis and Philip Murray did years ago for men who worked with hands indoors and in the cities.

Because of their success, the labor vote was solidified and its presence produced reams of legislation, including minimum wage laws. Solid organization, which means strikes or the threat of strikes, gave new meaning to union-management negotiations in nearly every industry. By now, even increased minimum wage floors have been so far bypassed that the only people most Americans know who are working at the minimum are nice colored ladies who come in and do their housework or high school tackles playing busboy during vacation.

UNION LABOR on Labor Day, 1971, means millions of men and their families who have moved upward from the ranks of the have-nots since the 1940s. And now that they have theirs, as the saying goes, their main interest is in adding to it, in the form of boats, second cars, third TVs and expanding waistlines.

The days when working men used the word "brother" in addressing other union members are both gone and forgotten. The extent of a New York electrician's concern over the wages and living condition of a Spanish-speaking grape picker could not be quantified, even with decimal points.

It would be educational for that electrician, or his other highly paid fellow craftsmen and assembly-line workers, to pass through Delano this Labor Day and see the meager pink shack that Chavez's United Farm Workers Organizing Committee called its headquarters until recently, and the bigger but still crude one-story buildings the committee now occupies west of town.

The temperature in the valley has been up around 100 every day this past week. To know that men are working hard in that heat, and still trying to win the right to bargain as a union for things long ago taken for granted by other workers, might conceivably even bring the word "brother" back to mind the next time a boycott is mounted on grapes or cabbages in the supermarkets of the city.

County Safety Commission May Be On Its Way Out

Marin County Safety Commission, established in 1957 to reduce accidents and promote safety among county employees, may be on its way out.

It's not that safety and reduction of mishaps aren't important. The trouble with the safety commission has been that it could growl, reprimand, and issue demerits but it had no real authority. Its actions were merely recommendations to department heads.

Another weakness of the safety commission is that often there is no accurate way to gauge the degree of responsibility on the part of county employees who were unfortunate enough to be involved in a mishap.

If a road crew member fell into a ditch, and hurt himself, the degree of responsibility is difficult to pin down. Were the mishaps avoidable? And if so, should the person responsible get one demerit, two demerits, or a suspension? Each verdict is subjective, and equity in penalties is impossible to achieve.

If and when the safety commission quietly bows out, no one is likely to mourn its passing.

With the safety commission gone, the county personnel office will probably keep a list of accidents as they occur and turn them over to each department to review and take appropriate measures.

THE IN-HOUSE appointment of John F. Barrows to the post of county administrator was a disappointment to those who were hoping for nationwide recruiting.

The promotion indicates that the supervisors are not looking for a strong man or an innovator to make drastic changes in county administration; that they are content with the present procedures.

The supervisors don't want a free-wheeling administrator dictating policy; neither do they want a yes-man serving merely as an errand boy with neither the initiative nor the courage to suggest alternative courses of action.

To strike a happy medium between these two types of administrators is a difficult one. Former Administrator Alan Bruce did a good job, perhaps leaning on the side of independence and bluntness. This led to his sudden departure last June.

Barrows also has a reputation for being blunt on occasion. But the consensus is that he is a bit more tactful than Bruce, and therefore may not step on so many toes. Even if he did, he'll probably tread rather than stomp.

Winds Shaking The Stone Face

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Great Stone Face of New Hampshire is being shaken by strong and virtually continual winds, according to the conclusions of a two-year study conducted by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The agency recommended in the report that turnbuckles applied to the Great Stone Face several years ago be reinforced to reduce vibrations caused by the wind.

The study also found that quarry blasts, earthquakes, nuclear explosions and small tremors were affecting the natural rock formation, but without appreciable damage.

The so-called Old Man of the Mountain or Great Stone Face, after the short story by Nathaniel Hawthorne, is the leading tourist attraction in New Hampshire which derives $250 million annually from visitors.

Unresolved Issues Face Lawmakers

By CARL INGRAM

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California legislators will return Tuesday after a three-week vacation to face still unresolved major issues, some of which worsened in their absence.

Left hanging were tax reform, a massive $300-to $350 million budget deficit, reapportionment, investigations of San Quentin Prison and school finance.

No one is willing to wager on an early adjournment date and there is some sentiment to postpone major overhaul of property tax reform and school financing until next year, especially since the state Supreme Court's school decision last week.

But Speaker Bob Moretti, the man who calls the shots in the Assembly, pledged that when his house reconvenes "tax reform, particularly property tax and school financing, will be the first issue we address ourselves to."

The Van Nuys Democrat said the court decision striking down the current public school financing system as unconstitutional merely emphasized the "urgent need for sweeping tax reform."

One thing is certain: Taxes must be increased to offset a budget deficit of up to $350 million.

Some Democratic leaders insist that overall reform is necessary, including a $500 million tax increase, $100 million of which would be earmarked for additional state aid to schools.

But Reagan appeared to rule out extra aid for schools based on higher taxes when he told California business leaders last week that "I am unalterably opposed to new spending funded by increased taxes."

He maintains that most of the budget deficit would be made up by adoption of payroll withholding of the state income tax. Democrats included withholding as an ingredient of an overall tax revision plan.

Many lawmakers believe it is too late this session to enact a school finance plan that could take effect this year and that the issue should be studied thoroughly in the interim so the 1972 Legislature can tackle it.

The court held the current system unconstitutional because it relies heavily on the local property tax for support of schools, an inequitable method which varies from district to district and discriminates against the poor.

A major effect of the decision was to make the financing of local schools more of a state responsibility. Many lawmakers feel it'll be tough for the state to provide funds for both homeowner tax relief and pay a much bigger share of education costs.

"It will be harder for us to come up with major amounts of property tax money if we are faced with financing schools," observed Senate leader James Mills, D-San Diego.

He also forecast a state vs. local control struggle over how the school money would be spent.

"If we're going to raise it, we've got the responsibility to see that it is well-spent," he said. "This will require considerable attention."

The lawmakers recessed Aug. 13 after overhauling the welfare and Medi-Cal programs, two issues which had tied the legislature in knots for months and blocked passage of other major bills such as coastline control.

Smoldering on a backburner but suddenly propelled into new prominence by the slayings of George Jackson, two other inmates and three guards at San Quentin were proposals for legislative investigations into the California prison system.

Assemblyman John Burton, chairman of the Assembly Rules Committee, said he will seek swift and favorable action on a resolution by Negro Assemblyman Bill Greene proposing a legislative probe of prison race relations.

Certain to be among the last issues resolved will be reapportionment of the legislature, a political life-and-death decision for some incumbents.

Democrats outnumber Republicans in both the Assembly and Senate. The issue is crucial because it will largely determine the political complexion of the California Legislature for the next decade.

Registration For Rec Events

Registrations are being taken at the Terra Linda Recreation Center for fall programs, including classes for pre-schoolers, adults and youngsters.

For adults, there will be lessons in such subjects as bridge, painting, yoga, guitar, dance, tennis and swimming. Flag football registrations are still open for boys from the fourth grade through the eighth.

Music awareness and ballet classes are also scheduled for youngsters as is a tiny tots program.

New Draft Law Strikes Out Pair of Inequities

By DANIEL RAPOPORT

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Little noticed during the furor in Congress over antiwar and military pay raise amendments to the stymied Selective Service bill were provisions intended to eliminate from the draft two of the most frequently complained of inequities.

When Congress breaks its stalemate over the measure and revives the currently suspended draft, no new student deferments will be granted. Also, youths will be called up from a national pool rather than through state and local quotas. That means a young man's outlook for being drafted will not be affected by which local board he registers with.

The draft act that expired June 30 required that deferment be granted to any registrant satisfactorily pursuing a fulltime course of instruction at an institution of higher learning. The deferment was good until the student reached 24 or received his bachelor's degree, whichever occurred first.

At President Nixon's request, both the House and Senate voted to repeal that mandatory feature.

The compromise that House-Senate conferees negotiated includes repeal of the automatic deferment. But the conferees decided that any student who was eligible for deferment during the 1970-71 academic year could keep his deferment until he graduated —as under the old law.

Under the revised law — presuming its ultimate enactment —youths entering college will not enjoy that privilege. But that isn't to say they are prime candidates for the draft. To begin with, a freshman usually is 17 or 18 years old and the Selective Service System does not take a boy until he is 19.

Additionally, the new law will protect a student from a sudden disruption of his studies in the event he has a low lottery number and it comes up. The law specifies that a student receiving an induction order may have his induction postponed to the end of the semester —or if he is a senior, until the end of the academic year.

Thus most of the "unprotected" students entering college this fall probably will not face the prospect of the draft until 1973. And the end of June that year will mark the expiration of the new draft law and will be the date by which the administration hopes to switch to an all-volunteer army.

The net result: notwithstanding the official elimination of student deferments few students likely will be inducted while the draft continues.

Removal of a genuine inequity will take place with the establishment of a national call and the abolishment of state and local draft quotas. No longer will a youth be ordered up for induction by his draft board while a friend with a lower lottery number, but registered with a different board, escape the draft.

The seeming unfairness stems from the incompatibility between a national lottery and local quotas. The annual drawing in Washington seen by millions on television suggests that youths all over the country will be called up in the order that their birthdates were drawn from the bowl.

That is true. The catch is that birthdates are not spread evenly throughout local boards. For example, a local board assigned a July quota of 10 might have to dip down to lottery number 140 while another board with an equal quota might have to reach down to 165.

Under the new legislation the President would be authorized to suspend the quota system. In its place would be a Uniform National Call.

"All young men (will) face exactly the same liability to induction as other men with the same lottery number," the House Armed Services Committee wrote in a report accompanying the draft bill.

As the committee put it: "It is simply a matter of luck of the draw and no longer a question of being in a 'good' board or a 'bad' board."

Horsemen Seek To Use School For Show Ring

The San Anselmo School District board at its regular meeting tomorrow will hear a request from the Horsemen's Association of Sleepy Hollow to build a horse ring on the lot above Hidden Valley School.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the library of Red Hill School.

The horseman's association proposes to maintain the ring, and conduct clinics, schooling shows, horse shows, horsemanship and horse mastership programs.

All organized activities undertaken by the horseman's association would be coordinated through the school and would be open to anyone wishing to participate.

The board will also hear information comparing the district's financial position with other Marin school districts.

The Hunter Cutting Into Cougar's Food

(EDITOR'S NOTE: There are 101 animals, birds, reptiles and fishes in the United States that face extinction. In a 12-part series beginning today, wildlife author Darryl Stewart, relates the background of 12 endangered American species.)

By DARRYL STEWART
Toronto Telegram Syndicate

The cougar is the second largest cat in the western hemisphere. Only the jaguar is bigger. A full-grown specimen may weigh 220 pounds and reach an overall length of eight and a half feet.

Known by a wide variety of names including puma, mountain lion, Florida panther, painter, catamount, screamer, Indian devil and king cat, the cougar does not roar. Instead, he has a call similar to an agonized scream.

Man and cougar do not get along together. The cougar is capable of killing a man but is glad to avoid him. In fact, he is the most timid of the world's large cats. Cougars attack humans rarely but a few well-authenticated reports do exist. He is a skilled killer of game and rarely attacks domestic livestock.

Due to the bounty system, dedicated to the extermination of all predators, the cougar has been trapped, shot and rendered so rare, that he has all but disappeared in many areas of the United States. Coupled with the devastation of the forest cover along the eastern seaboard and in the Midwest, and the decimation of deer herds in certain areas, the cougar's demise can cause little surprise. Today, there are few areas which can boast a cougar population.

Formerly it was found throughout the Americas, from northern British Columbia south to Patagonia. Now cougars are found only in remote mountainous regions of the West, parts of the adjoining desert areas and certain regions along the Pacific coast.

Wherever cougars still exist in some numbers, hunting is still very much in vogue. The usual hunting method today is with the aid of dog packs. The hounds chase the large cat until it is forced to take refuge in a tree, where the hunter is able to pick off his quarry with little danger to himself.

Unfortunately, the cougar is a great temptation to the trophy hunter. Unethical guides take parties out cougar hunting and guarantee the hunter will bag a cougar (for a handsome fee, of course). In this case, the cat has been caught alive, and put to sleep so it can be handled safely. The guide then turns the cougar loose. Of course, the hunter does not know that he is bagging a planted cat.

The cougar population has also been depleted because its main source of food, the deer, was thinned out by hunters. At the best of times, the cougar has a hard time. Some biologists claim that it is unusual for a healthy, normal deer to be taken. It is further estimated that the big cat is successful only once on every seven occasions.

Despite the general rarity of the cougar throughout most of the country, predator control is still practised, even though in most places they are rare.

Also, as its prey species consist of the deer, and to a lesser extent the porcupine, which are generally numerous, a predator such as the cougar does far more good than harm. On rare occasions, when both deer and porcupine may be scarce, even skunks are not disdained.

In the East, the cougar is close to extinction. Once common throughout the eastern United States, it now exists only in the region of the Florida Everglades, where it is known as the panther.

The Florida panther is on the endangered list and is estimated to have a population of no more than a 100. There is the remote possibility that the cougar could still have managed to survive in Maine and in the southern Appalachian Mountains. Cougar tracks have also been reported from New Jersey in 1958 and Massachusetts in 1960. Unfortunately, due to the animal's elusive habits, population estimates are impossible to obtain.

Experience has shown that no large mammal has survived in the East without the help of man. This help is desperately needed immediately to save the Florida panther.

Robbers Take Food Stamps

A Fairfax man was robbed of $16 in food stamps by two juveniles who approached him while he was hitchhiking Friday at the entrance to Highway 101 near its junction with Shoreline Highway.

James A: Simpson, 27, of 101 Woodland Avenue, told Marin County Sheriff's deputies that two youths between 18 and 20 years old, approached him about 9 p.m.

One of them pulled out a .22-caliber revolver and said, "This is a hold-up," Simpson reported.

They searched him, he said, and took the food stamps from his pockets.

Bakery Customer Turns Into Thief

A bakery customer with sticky fingers snatched $285 in cash from an open cash register at Walther's Bakery at Strawberry Town and Country Village Shopping Center, Marin County Sheriff's office reported today.

Deputies said the money was taken Aug. 28, apparently while a waitress at the bakery was busy.

Orientation Set At San Rafael High

San Rafael High School will have orientation for freshman and new students from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at the school auditorium, according to Asst. Principal John Donovan.

The school will open Sept. 13 at 8 a.m., allowing a period for registration before the regular class schedule. The normal starting time, 8:10 a.m., will go into effect Sept. 14.

Purses Taken

Two purses, one of them containing $120 in cash, were stolen from a car owned by Angela M. Longo of 16 Culloden Street, San Rafael, while it was parked on Mount Tamalpais Thursday, Marin County Sheriff's office reported today.

Three Burglary Suspects Held

Three Waldo Point men were arrested Saturday on suspicion of burglary and booked into Marin County Jail by Sausalito police.

Arrested were Gregory Dale Myers, 28 and Wayne Royce Wallin, 26, both of Gate 5 and Ned Beach Pearson 29, of Gate 6.

Pearson was held to appear tomorrow in municipal court. Further details of the arrests were unavailable.

Mysterious Blast On Mt. Tam

A mysterious explosion heard from Mill Valley to San Anselmo started a one-half acre brush fire on Mount Tamalpais yesterday.

The blast at 6:40 p.m. generated a flood of phone calls to police and fire departments in Kentfield, Ross, Mill Valley, San Anselmo and San Rafael.

The fire scorched brush and sent a billowing cloud of white smoke above the Indian Fire Trail 200 yards above Kent Woodlands.

Firemen said, however, that no evidence of an explosion could be found at the fire. There was no depression in the ground nor any tree split apart to indicate where the explosion was set off.

In the spring of 1970, a four-month series of unexplained explosions occurred in Tamalpais Valley, about four miles south of yesterday's fire.

As is the case with all Mount Tamalpais fires, a flood of fire engines raced to the scene. Kentfield and Marin County fire departments sent four fire engines and Larkspur sent one to the fire and one to cover the Kentfield station.

attitudes of the Latin American military was a product of the environment in which they live. "Intervention by the mililary when it judges that the government has failed has been a widely accepted reaction in Latin America," he said.

U.S. military programs in Latin America "cannot be expected to negate the political beliefs and attitudes of a lifetime," he said. He cited the administration policy to the effect that "we have a clear preference for free and democratic processes, but we deal with governments as they are."

Another witness, Christian Chapman, of the State Department's Bureau of Politco-Military affairs, said that one of the purposes of U.S. military training programs in Latin America was "to improve the professionalism of the Latin American officers and men, and to also improve their technical capabilities, which has some side uses in civilian economy."

"But it is not to encourage them to assume political power," Chapman testified.

Presently, the military controls — directly or indirectly — the governments of 11 Latin American nations: Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Uraguay, Ecuador, Panama, Bolivia, Argentina, Brazil and Peru.

On the issue of military sales, Laird said it was "a great mistake" by Congress to have limited the United States to a $75 million ceiling.

(Since those hearings, the administration doubled that ceiling to $150 million, to the distress of a number of congressmen).

"This limitation that we have on sales has meant that Latin America has turned more and more to the French and the British suppliers, and they are moving in there with ever-increasing efforts," Laird said.

The same was said by Air force Lt. Gen. Robert H. Warren, deputy assistant secretary of defense for military assistance and sales.

He said that since 1968, European nations have sold Latin America armaments valued at over $850 million. "A major share of these sales, particularly for aircraft, would have accrued to the United States if we had modified our restrictive policies at an earlier date," Warren said.

"I think most countries in Latin America would prefer to deal with the United States," according to Warren, who explained it would be "very beneficial" to the United States if it could start selling arms again to Latin America.

"We can control what we sell without a ceiling in the legislation and it certainly would help our relations there," he said.

HEALTH REPORT

The Common Causes Of Heart Disease

By ALSON GODDARD
(First in a five-part series)

NEW YORK — Heart disease, the nation's number one fatal ailment, kills about 600,000 Americans every year. According to one study, half as many women as men are afflicted, with the majority in both groups being over 40 years of age. Heart disease is often caused by overweight, hypertension, a high fat content in the blood and nicotine.

Some 60-million Americans are overweight because they take too many calories in their food and drink.

"Obesity," says Dr. E. Lovell Becker of Cornell University, "is a physiological luxury that does nothing for you and is a burden to your circulatory system."

Medical opinion leans toward the advisability of being thin. Hypertension (high blood pressure) causes three to five times more heart attacks in obese people.

TOO MUCH cholesterol in the blood is dangerous physicians say, because it can cause the buildup of hard, fatty deposits in the coronary arteries, the principal source of the blood supply to the heart. These fatty deposits clog up the arteries, interfere with their circulation and bring on heart attacks. Researchers believe that the nicotine in cigarettes has a similar effect by narrowing the small blood vessels to the heart.

Some victims of coronary blockage have been put back in action within weeks by new advances in heart surgery. Dr. Rene Valvaro and Dr. Donald Effler of the Cleveland Clinic recently invented a technique called revascularization, in which they cut pieces of a major vein from the patient's leg, then insert one end below the fatty obstruction and the other above it. This replumbing — or bypass — provides the patient with a new unobstructed supply of blood, ending the damaging and sometimes fatal oxygen starvation of the heart.

Since proper precautions can help prevent cholesterol problems, a group of nationally known physicians — members of the Interstate Commission for Heart Disease Resources — has just urged all Americans to drastically reduce their intake of high fat and cholesterol foods. Similar stands have also been taken by the American Heart and the American Diabetes Associations, and the Food and Drug Administration recently proposed a regulation to compel food manufacturers to list the sources of animal or vegetable fats on their packages, so the consumer will know what fat he's getting in the product he buys.

Most doctors today tell their patients to stay away from fatty meats, avoid butter and whole milk, eat more chicken, fish, fruits and vegetables and exercise regularly, but don't overdo it. Walking, bicycling and swimming can help lower your blood fats and your blood pressure, too.

About two-thirds of the men and women who die of heart attacks never get to the hospital in time because they, or those around them, have not recognized the first warning signals.

Dr. Campbell Moses, medical director of the American Heart Association, says, "Many people attribute heart attacks to lesser problems such as indigestion."

The Interstate Commission has called for more education so people can recognize the warning signs earlier, and specialists are urging everyone between the ages of 35 and 85 to familiarize themselves with the symptoms of a heart attack so they can immediately rush the person to a hospital when these occur. Most victims, if not treated promptly, succumb within two hours.

HEART ATTACK symptoms, the specialists point out, can vary from mild discomfort to severe crushing pains in the chest, which may radiate to the jaw, shoulder, arm or hand, and frequently are accompanied by sweating, nausea and shortness of breath.

Death rates of heart attack victims have been cut in half when the patients are treated in special coronary care units now installed in some hospitals. Specially trained doctors and nurses immediately go to work on the victim with heart massage, drugs, electric shock and pacemakers to correct the erratic heartbeat and assure the heart its necessary supply of blood. The Interstate Commission is recommending that similar units be set up in public places where many people congregate. These include factories, office buildings, airports, convention centers, sports stadiums and race tracks.

AT COLLEGE OF MARIN

Lecture Series Will Start Sept. 14

Dr. Margaret Mead will make her only California appearance this year when she participates in the "Women: Past/Present/Future" lecture series at the College of Marin.

Aileen Hernandez, president of the National Organization for Women, and California State Assemblywoman, March Fong, are also among the distinguished men and women participating in the series of lectures once a week for 12 weeks, beginning Sept. 14.

Certain myths relating to womanhood handed down from our mothers and grandmothers will be explored, according to moderator of the series, Diane Wickstrom, professor of anthropology and sociology at the College of Marin.

MRS. RUTH Nash, professor of biology and genetics at the College of Marin, who recently became a mother, will participate in the first lecture, Sept. 14, with physiology and anatomy professor, Kent Addison.

With the exception of Dr. Mead's talk, all of the lectures will be held on Tuesdays at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall. The anthropologist's lecture will be on a Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theater.

On Sept. 21 psychotherapist Mrs. Welland Lathrop will talk about the psychology of women as she has discovered it in her practice. Her topic is "The Psychology of Women."

A panel of men and women from Marin will discuss their attitudes and expectations in personal relationships on Oct. 5.

"Economics and Women" will be presented on Oct. 12 by Mildred Howie, former director of public relations for a national food company, and Laura Willson, College of Marin economics and business instructor.

MRS. FONG will discuss some of her experiences as a woman in politics on Oct. 19. She will also explain legislation pertaining to women and talk about the atmosphere for women in the political world.

College of Marin history professor Mrs. Joan Jencks will offer an historical perspective of women on Oct. 26.

Opportunities and expectations for a young woman with plans to be an educator will be examined Nov. 2. Concentrating on the topic, "Education and Women" will be Dr. Margaret Greene, a College of Marin counselor and education professor. Mrs. Mary Greer, an education professor at Merritt College, will explore the topic with Dr. Greene.

Probing the attitudes toward women in the scientific field will be Dr. Linda Hawes Clever. Her topic will be "Science and Women" on Nov. 9. Dr. Clever is director of Sister Mary Phillipa Out-Patient clinic and acting director of medical education at St. Mary's Hospital and Medical Center in San Francisco.

Women's role in music, art and drama will be explored on Nov. 16. "Woman and the Arts" is the subject Anitra Earl, film and drama critic for the San Francisco Chronicle; Sari Biro, Hungarian born concert pianist; and Mrs. Adrianne Marcus, College of Marin creative writing professor, have chosen.

WHAT IT is like to work within the media as a professional woman will be covered in the topic "Women and Media" on Nov. 23. Geraldine Lange, public affairs director of KBHK-TV, and Joyce Overhoff, film maker and director of Summus Films, will speak.

Mrs. Aileen Hernandez, National Organization for Women president, will speak on "Women's Liberation" on Nov. 30.

The president of NOW, a civil rights group formed in October 1966 to bring women into the mainstream of American life "in truly equal partnership with men," Mrs. Hernandez will discuss her beliefs in liberation of both men and women in 20th Century Society.

"Women and the Future" will be the concluding topic, presented Dec. 7. by Maryjane Dunstan, College of Marin instructor, and Patricia Garlan, writer and researcher for the Langley Porter Neuropsychiatric Institute of San Francisco. Both are co-authors of "World in the Making: Probes for Students of the Future."

"The lecture program probably won't erase any sexual prejudices even though it was designed with male chauvinists in mind. It is intended to act as a catalyst to start both men and women thinking about women's potential and the difficulties they have achieving their potential," says Miss Wickstrom, who started working on the series last year when her anthropology students expressed interest in women's positions in other societies.

Out of this interest grew a course Social and Psychological Aspects of Women, which will be first taught at the college next spring.

MISS WICKSTROM says she believes that World Wars I and II initiated a change in women's homebody role when they discovered that they didn't need to be tied to the house — they worked efficiently at industrial jobs vacated by soldiers. Miss Wickstrom is the college's first woman president of the faculty Academic Senate, serving during the 1971-72 term.

In another 10 or 20 years, there's a definite possibility of a female being elected President of the United States, she says.

Registration for the series may be made in person at the registration office or by mailing an adult education registration form.

Man Is Coldest In The Morning

CHICAGO (UPI)—No wonder those blankets feel so good—scientific measurements indicate you are actually colder in the morning.

In man, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, the lowest body temperature is from 2 a.m. to 5 a.m., and the highest from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

In the early morning the oral temperature may be as low as 97 degrees and in the afternoon as high as 99 without being abnormal. Apparently reversal of activity from day to night, as with night workers, does not change this rhythm.

With this changing temperature throughout the 24-hour period it is only coincidence that the temperature may be 98.6, which is considered to be normal.

Medieval Look

The medieval look for fall is achieved via a short leather tunic over ribbed tights, fittingly accessorized with a swashbuckling Maltese cross pendant. Button earrings and a hinged bracelet complete the picture.

Glass Bottles Strong, Elastic

NEW YORK (UPI)—One reason that glass bottles are strong is that glass is elastic.

You can prove it, the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute points out, by inserting a small glass tube through the cork of a bottle that has been filled with colored water. When you squeeze the bottle in your hand you'll have proof that its sides are being bent inward, because the colored water will be forced up the tube.

Elasticity is one of the many physical properties of glass containers that contribute to their strength and serviceability, the Institute observes, adding that continued research will make the glass in tomorrow's bottles even stronger.

Queen Elizabeth Set Up Pounds

CHICAGO (UPI)—If American women, in this era of consumer awareness, are bothered about pounds and ounces they can blame another woman.

Queen Elizabeth I established the avoirdupois pound as 7,000 grains, says Encyclopaedia Britannica. Divided into 16 ounces, a grain was a unit of measurement based on the weight of a grain of wheat and equal to .0648 gram.

The pound became abbreviated "lb." because libra is the Latin word for pound. No one knows why ounce is abbreviated "oz.," but there has been speculation that it comes from onza, the Italian word for ounce.

Perhaps if Queen Elizabeth had done her own shopping she would have chosen an easier way to find out what things cost per "lb." or "oz."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

A Marriage License Should Not Be A Business Contract

DEAR HELEN:

When you enter into a business partnership, you watch out for all the angles, right?

So why shouldn't the most important contract of all — marriage — be just as carefully organized?

I asked my girl to sign a legal document stating that she is in good health, has no major dental or medical bills coming up and, while I'm not so righteous that I insist on virginity, I think she should include a brief on past activities, especially if they involve abortion, lengthy affairs, motherhood, etc.

She tore it up and threw it in my drink, and that's the last I've seen of her. Why? — BORIS

P.S. I was only being practical.

DEAR BORIS:

Practicality and romance don't mix.

Moreover, you "legal document" wouldn't hold up in court: You couldn't win a dovorce on grounds of big medical or dental bills, or because your mate held out on a few secrets.

A better rule: If you can't trust a girl without demanding proof, she isn't wife material for you. (And if you insist on "looking in the horse's mouth," you aren't exactly Mr. Ideal Husband of 1971.) — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Is biting some kind of new fad? About two months ago, two local women were bitten on our town's main street — one in the arm, the other on the leg (she had on hot pants). Not by a dog, but by a tall, long-haired fellow who appeared from nowhere and disappeared as fast.

A few days later I read about a similar case in a South American city. And since then several other gals have been nipped by males identities unknown. Is this America's answer to the Italian pinch? — SADIE

DEAR SADIE:

I hope not! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Please tell "One Foot in the Grave," who lost a leg in a dune buggy accident, to walk straight and proud and look the world square in the eye, whether on crutches or a prosthesis.

I thought my life was over, too — twenty years ago — when, in my teens, I lost a leg in an accident. But a wise friend taught me that people are crippled only in their minds: whether others pity or admire them depends on their attitude. Of course there may be a few, like her unworthy fiance, who default, but she'll soon be glad she learned about him in time!

I took my friend's advice and married a man who loved me for myself. I learned to walk so well (and it wasn't easy) that no one suspected when we moved here two years ago — until I turned up at the cabana club in a swim suit without my prosthesis. I water ski too. My husband and teenagers are proud that Mama can do anything others do.

There's a club here whose one-legged members are all expert snow skiers. Tell "ofitg" to be glad she's alive, and get on with living! — A LEG TO STAND ON

DEAR HELEN:

Please settle a family argument. While at a private social club, where there is dancing, do I or don't I dance with someone I don't know, but who says he knows me "from high school."

I asked my husband if it was okay, then danced with the fellow — and caused a monstrous argument when we got home. He says I should have turned him down. I say it's the husband's place to say "Sorry, this dance is taken — by me" if he wants to be so possessive. — TWO LEFT FEET

DEAR TWO:

At a private club, where people should know each other, why not dance with the guy who asks you? — H.

Freezing Beef

When you purchase a week's supply of ground beef divide and shape the California ground beef into ¼ or ⅓ pound servings. Place in single layer on cookie sheet and freeze. When beef is firm transfer to plastic bags for freezer storage. You'll have a supply of beef patties ready to use for quick meals and snacks.

Tasty Snack

California Beef Council nutritionists suggest serving bite-size chunks of hot dogs and carrot sticks at snacktime for young children. All beef hot dogs contain no filler and are completely cooked as purchased and may be served cold.

Swan Delight

"Swans on Jelly," a traditional Irish dessert, combines cream puff pastry, melted chocolate and whipped cream. The "swan" rests on a bed of pale green jelly.

Boat Buyers Get Breaks Under Law

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — A little publicized Federal law signed by President Nixon Aug. 11 will give buyers of pleasure boats a few breaks they have not had before.

In fact, the law, known as the Federal Boat Safety Act of 1971, goes even further than the auto safety law in one respect by requiring manufacturers to recall defective boats and accessories. Auto manufacturers have not been required to recall cars with safety defects but have done so anyway.

The new law authorizes the Coast Guard to set minimum safety standards not already established for pleasure boats and accessories. The Coast Guard already has authority to approve or disapprove such accessories as life preservers and fire extinguishers.

With its new authority, the Coast Guard is now preparing regulations to put this part of the law into effect. Eventually, there will be federal standards for boat construction and accessory equipment of almost all types related to safety.

WHEN THESE regulations go into effect, boat manufacturers will be prohibited from selling any boat that does not conform to the standards unless the boat is to be exported. Boats meeting the minimum safety rules will carry an insignia of approval by the U.S. Coast Guard.

When a defect shows up, a manufacturer will have to notify both the dealer and buyer by certified mail. He must also notify the Coast Guard.

Already in effect are sections of the new law designed to give new protections to "Good Samatarians" who give aid in emergencies. The law exempts them from civil damages providing that they act reasonably and there is no objection from those receiving the aid.

ALSO ALREADY in effect is strengthened authority to get alleged violations of safety regulations corrected. Boarding officers may require boaters to return to a safe mooring in case of imminent danger caused by lack of lifesaving or firefighting devices or in case of overloading.

This power to "terminate unsafe use" was not spelled out in the previous law. Under both the new and old laws, the Coast Guard has the power to arrest an alleged violator of safety regulations.

But in most cases, only a ticket, a "notice of violation" is issued. Under the old law, these automatically called for the maximum penalty, with relatively large fines — from $300 to $2,000 — for relatively minor infractions. The Coast Guard could "remit," wipe out, the penalty.

Under the new law, there is no automatic maximum penalty. Thus, the Coast Guard is free to scale down the penalties and use more discretion. Officials feel that this change will make the law more effective, because it will make the penalties conform more closely to the actual violation.

ONE NEW feature of the law is establishment of a Boating Safety Advisory Council to advise the government on all maters relating to the law. Members will be drawn from industry, state agencies, local agencies and the general public.

Regulations regarding boat construction will affect all boats sold for pleasure in this country. But regulations regarding use of boats will apply only to areas of federal jurisdiction, such as coastal waters and interstate waterways.

Specific questions relating to the new law should be directed to the Coast Buard, (BBE-1), 400 7th Street S.W., Washington, D.C., 20590.

McCloskey Schedules Campaign

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey of California has unveiled an active schedule of speeches and other public appearances for the next two months of his campaign to defeat President Nixon for the Republican Presidential nomination next year.

The schedule, which lists only confirmed events between Sept. 4 and Nov. 12, takes the San Mateo County congressman into 12 states. Among them are New Hampshire and California, which will have the earliest and latest primary elections respectively next spring.

Other states on the schedule are Oregon, New York, Maryland, Wisconsin, West Virginia, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Iowa and Illinois, with more to be added.

California appearances so far will be made in San Francisco, Kentfield, Claremont, San Mateo, Monterey and Whittier.

McCloskey has planned six days in New Hampshire this month, and campaign director Robin Schmidt says more events in that state will be added.

"We're making our major efforts in New Hampshire and California," Schmidt said.

During the five-week Congressional summer recess which ends Wednesday, McCloskey has been writing a book on modern applications of the Constitution and appearing around the country at youth voter registration drives.

GENTLE GIANT

Henry Hite's Height Keeps Him Busy

By MARY BURNS

If Henry Hite could suddenly walk through a doorway without bending he'd feel terribly out of place, he says.

At eight feet, two inches, Hite has been reputed to be the world's tallest man. Probably no shopper yesterday at Petrini's Market in Greenbrae would dispute Hite's claim. He towered above everyone and everything in the store including the food storage shelves.

Hite was in Greenbrae pushing his employer's products. He is something of a public relations man for Wilson Certified Foods, based in Oklahoma City.

The company was looking for a giant of an advertising gimmick, Hite said, so it searched him out 10-years-ago.

Hite was born in Atlanta and was one of 13 children — the only one over six feet tall. At age nine he was about the size of a normal 9-year-old he says. But at 11 he was seven feet and by age 15 he had stopped growing, having reached his present height.

As a teen-ager he played basketball for his school's team. "We never lost a game," he said. He also claims that in school football no opponent dared trip him because if he fell his team would have a first down.

For several years Hite worked in vaudeville in a three-man team composed of a midget a "straight" man of five feet seven and himself.

He met his wife, Maria, while the two were performing in the same show in Chicago. She was a dancer. At five feet three Maria looks like a dwarf next to her husband of 31 years.

Hite's clothes must be custom made — at a cost of $250 a suit — by his private tailor in Chicago where he and his wife now reside. Occasionally he orders clothes from Hong Kong.

Hite recalls that once he sent his measurements to a Hong Kong tailor and got them back with the suggestion that he cut down on his drinking.

The Chicago office of Florsheim Shoes makes his size 22½ shoes. "I don't get them shined very often. I just send them through a car wash," he quipped.

Hite claims he has now begun to have more trouble with his body — a problem he attributes to creeping old age (he is 56). He said that he now finds having to walk bent in normal size rooms — usually about six feet six inches — slightly painful.

But he said he has no problems with mobility, even though to the onlooker he seems not only very tall, but like a very tall man on ultra-high stilts.

Wednesday night when he and wife checked into San Francisco's Rafael Hotel the desk clerk asked him where he was going to sleep. "I told him in rooms 138, 139 and 140," Hite said.

The gentle giant does not believe that nature has played him a dirty trick. "My height has always been a blessing," he said. "I've always had good health and a girl!"

On April 2nd NBC Television carried a science news special — "The Unexplained"., narrated by Rod Sterling — in which one of the most fantastic breakthroughs in modern Psychology was discussed. This new scientific breakthrough, deals with the conscious control of one's brain waves. Researchers have demonstrated that with "Alpha" training a person can eliminate anxiety, tension, and frustration. Also they could enhance concentration, awareness and recall. In fact alpha control is escalating the expansion of human potential development at a fantastic pace.

There are four principal brain waves: The Beta wave, associated with the outer conscious levels, physical activity, anxiety, tension, etc. The Alpha wave, associated with inner-levels of mental activity, tranquility, inspiration, creativity, concentration, ESP, accelerated healing process, memory, learning, and many other phenomena.

The Theta wave, related to deeper levels of meditation, concentration and potentially even greater learning and recall capabilities. And finally the Delta wave, associated with deep sleep or total unconsciousness.

SILVA MIND CONTROL using mental training exercises, has successfully trained over 30,000 individuals to turn the Alpha Wave on and off at will and then practice applications of this exciting new techniques for developing a superior way of life.

Not only can you improve I.Q., but a person trained with this technique, can learn to control certain areas of the autonomic system, including heart beat, respiration, body temperature, pain, etc. the implications of this kind of training with regards to health and disease are staggering.

With over 30,000 graduates from coast to coast, there is no longer any doubt as to the great value of the astounding method of self-improvement.

Initial research was started by Mr. Jose Silva in 1944 with techniques being improved and refined to the point that a few hours of class room instruction is all that is required to train a person to be much more effective in the routine of daily living. LEARN SPECIFIC TECHNIQUES. Once you have mastered the techniques of Silva MIND Control you can totally relax anytime you desire; you can eliminate insomnia, anxiety, tension, have greater artistic ability; enhance your learning capacity; have more vitality and energy; by more successful in your business and personal life; eliminate bad habits and create good habits; control your weight, smoking, etc.

Larkspur Parks Panel To View Master Plan

The Larkspur Parks and Recreation Commission, meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday at city hall, will review a park master plan, which calls for a greenbelt of bicycling and hiking trails.

The plan, by David Arbegast and William Newton, also proposes that the city corporation yard be moved from Piper Park to an industrial area, and that lots in residential areas be developed as tot lots and play areas.

Other recommendations are that there be public boating facilities along Corte Madera Creek and that Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way be acquired as a greenbelt and used for trails.

The commission also will have a public hearing on an application by David Chamberlain to remove three eucalyptus trees at 11 Bayo Vista. The proposal has drawn a petition of protest from 13 persons in the neighborhood.

No Pay Boosts For Employees

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The city's policemen, firemen and Municipal Railway operators will not receive pay hikes this year, city officials have announced.

The officials said they reached the decision after receiving word from the U.S. Office of Emergency Preparedness on President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

City Attorney Thomas M. O'Connor said he has informed OEP that the city would comply with the anti-inflationary measure.

However, O'Connor said he would file suit in federal court to test the city's contention the pay hikes were set before the freeze on Aug. 15.

The pay hikes totaling $6.1 million were to have been given to 1,927 policemen, 1,685 firemen and 1,849 Muni operators.

Color Photography To Be In Exhibit

Color photography by Simon Cherpitel and raku and stoneware by Jim Fowler will be exhibited in San Marco Gallery of Dominican College, San Rafael, Sept. 14 through Oct. 8.

The exhibit is part of the college's fall calendar of activities which will include a lecture on women's liberation and politics by Dianne Feinstein, president of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors; presentation of an original ballet "The Amusement Park," by Paul Page; and a December concert by the Dominican College Orchestra.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Defensive Driving Involves Watching Out For The Others

For many years, we have stressed the need for defensive driving. To avoid accidents, the driver anticipates trouble. He is prepared to stop, speed up or turn in order to minimize the chances of being killed or of hurting someone else. Practice the technic until it becomes a habit. Most drivers are indifferent to the actions of others and it is no wonder that annually, our highway fatalities claim more than 56,000 lives.

IN DEFENSIVE driving, the individual sees the hazard, knows what he must do and acts promptly. A good example occurs when the driver traveling within the speed limit along a residential street sees a child at the curb. He immediately anticipates that the youngster may dash into or across the street and slows down so that, if necessary, he could stop. Children are heedless and every driver should recognize the trait.

Most accidents are preventable by one or both of the drivers involved. A good defensive driver assumes that everyone else is a nut and is constantly on the alert as to the actions of the car ahead or the tailgater. There is always a chance that the other fellow will not stop at the intersection or he could be sideswiped while passing. Never trust the "nut."

LOOK BEYOND to foresee a situation that may cause trouble for the driver in front of you. Watch his brake lights and stay a safe distance behind him. By the same token, use turn signals well in advance to avoid rear-end collisions. You can 'shake' a tailgater by slowing down. Head-on collisions usually are fatal to all concerned. Drive into a ditch if necessary even tho the other guy is at fault. When approaching a truck followed by a long line of cars, slow down. Someone may try to pass.

There are many more ways to avoid trouble on the highways. Just hope and pray that we can change more and more aggressive drivers into defensive drivers.

HOOF AND MOUTH

C. S. writes: What is hoof and mouth disease?

REPLY

A highly contagious viral infection seen in cattle and domestic animals. The few human cases reported stemmed from eating contaminated meat or dairy products or from exposure to hides, entrails or excretions of sick animals. Painful blisters and ulcers develop in the mouth and on the palms and soles. Spontaneous healing occurs in three weeks.

INJURY FEARED

Mrs. T. writes: Should anything be done about a 7-year-old boy who won't ride a bike, climb a tree, or do any of the stunts of kids his age? His excuse is that he's afraid of getting hurt.

REPLY

Let him alone unless there is a possibility that he has a physical disability and is using this excuse to distract you from the real cause. If so, a thoro examination is in order.

FEARS ULCER

M. J. writes: I think I have stomach ulcer. There is a hard lump there and the right side of the abdomen is tender to the touch. Are these symptoms unusual?

REPLY

Yes, they are and more so if you feel a lump. X-rays will give you the answer within 30 minutes.

EXERCISE

P. T. writes: For two months I've exercised, but haven't lost a pound. Is there any use keeping it up?

REPLY

The exercise or the weight? All the exercise in the world is for naught if you eat too much.

Only the I-J's circulation & readership can deliver you your full market

The I-J gives you the one and only thing which makes your advertising fully productive -readership.

This is the all-important difference (to you) between the I-J and direct mail flyers or weekly publications.

As the home newspaper in almost ⅔ of all Marin homes the I-J gives you that vital buying connection between the market and your store. Making your advertising not an "expense" but an investment in sound retail growth.

Why settle for less than your full market?

Relocating Prison Trials Due Study

A proposal that trials involving San Quentin inmates be held away from the Marin Civic Center will be discussed tomorrow by the board of supervisors.

The supervisors have asked the county's judges, Dist. Atty. Bruce Bales and Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos to meet with them at 4:30 p.m. to discuss possible ways of keeping the Administration Building and Hall of Justice from becoming what one county official called an "armed fortress."

Security, already tight because of the Angela Davis-Ruchell Magee proceedings and the courtroom bombing last year, would face further beefing up once court matters involving the Aug. 21 San Quentin break-out attempt got under way.

Last week, Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste suggested three alternate proposals to holding trials of San Quentin inmates in the Hall of Justice: Build a separate structure at the Civic Center to try San Quentin cases, use another building such as the old courthouse annex in downtown San Rafael or hold trials and hearings inside San Quentin Prison itself.

The supervisors, whose regular weekly session will begin at 9 a.m., face other major issues tomorrow:

HOUSING — Kentfield residents will protest a 102-unit housing development for the elderly which is planned at 217 Laurel Grove Avenue. A Dominican priory is now located at the site.

PRESERVE — A public hearing is set to discuss whether the county's agricultural preserve area (now totalling about 170,000 acres) should be cut back to 80,000 acres (the acreage that is already under agricultural preserve contract).

ZONE — A proposed interim zone to control development in all agricultural and open areas of West Marin will get a public hearing.

Poll Shows Californians Against Reagan Pay Veto

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The California public disagrees by a more than 2 to 1 margin with Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of $117 million in state employee pay increases, an opinion poll says.

The results of the poll by the Field Research Corp. of San Francisco were released by the California State Employees Association, which commissioned the survey.

The poll asked 1,008 persons Aug. 2-8 whether they agreed with the legislature that the employes should receive a cost-of-living increase this year or with Reagan that they shouldn't.

Of those surveyed, 58.6 per cent agreed with the lawmakers while 27.7 agreed with the governor. Almost 16 per cent couldn't make up their minds.

The Legislature provided a 5 per cent pay raise for civil servants and a 10 per cent increase for faculty members of the state colleges and University of California. The governor vetoed the funds from the $6.7 billion budget he signed in July.

Reagan cited the state of the economy and said it "requires that we face up to hard fiscal realities."

The association, largest state employe organization, has been attempting to mount a campaign in the legislature to overturn the governor's veto and indicated the poll results will add new fuel.

"We are certain the Legislature will agree with CSEA and with the public that it is unfair for state employes to bear a heavier burden than others in balancing the budget," said CSEA President Edward A. Ward.

But only 33.9 per cent of those polled said they favored an override of the governor's veto. Twenty per cent said the lawmakers should go along with the governor.

Another 17 per cent favored approval of a tax reform bill which would include state worker pay increases.

The poll also showed that 51.7 per cent of those sampled favored collective bargaining for state workers and that 23.2 per cent were opposed to it.

State workers were excluded from 1969 legislation which gave local government employes collective bargaining rights. Ward said the poll "encourages us to go directly to the public with an initiative campaign to establish an appropriate collective bargaining system."

British Drive To Revive Hanging Picks Up Speed

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI)—A campaign for restoration of hanging, abolished in 1965, is picking up momentum in Britain.

It was sparked by a recent upsurge in violent crime, climaxed by the gunning down of a senior police officer during an armed gang robbery of a Blackpool jewelry store in mid-August.

Mrs. Jill Knight, a Conservative Party member of Parliament, has announced she will ask the House of Commons to review the need for capital punishment when it returns Oct. 18 from its summer recess.

Duncan Sandys, a former Conservative Party cabinet minister and son-in-law of the late Sir Winston Churchill, says abolition of hanging for murder was a "mistake."

Mrs. Maureen Richardson, widow of murdered Blackpool police superintendent Gerald Richardson, has announced she is giving up her job as a schoolteacher to campaign full time for restoration of the death penalty.

Officials say there is little or no likelihood the present Conservative Party government will support the campaign.

But political sources say there will be strong grass-roots demands for another debate on hanging at the Conservative Party's annual rank-and-file convention at Brighton in mid-October.

In 1969 the Conservative Party conference voted by a majority of 159 in favor of restoration of the death penalty.

Hanging of murderers was ended only after a long and bitter parliamentary struggle.

When Sydney Silverman, a Labor Party member of Parliament, first introduced an anti-hanging bill in 1956 it was approved by the House of Commons by a narrow majority but thrown out by the upper house, the House of Lords.

The bill finally was passed by both houses nine years later, abolishing capital punishment for an initial five-year trial period.

It was made permanent in December, 1969, despite efforts by Sandys and other Conservatives to block it and despite a public petition with more than one million signatures presented to Parliament in 1966 in favor of a return to hanging.

As recently as May, 1970, Sir Richard Glyn, a Conservative backbencher, sought to introduce a humane capital punishment bill, calling for execution by nitrogen instead of hanging.

'Nice And Smooth' 500-Mile Victory For Leonard

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI)—Joe Leonard, who helped Andy Granatelli pioneer the turbine car, has won Ontario's annual war of attrition —otherwise known as the California 500.

On a Sunday when the temperature hit 95, the 37-year-old veteran from San Jose, Calif., watched the favorites melt in the pavement and then walked away with the finale of auto racing's new triple crown.

"All I did was keep rolling nice and smooth," said Leonard, the No. 2 driver in Parnelli Jones' stable behind Indianapolis champion Al Unser.

"I didn't feel I had it won until they dropped the flag. I've come too close before."

The former motorcycle ace, recalled he was leading the 1968 Indianapolis 500 comfortably on the 191st lap in a Granatelli turbine when his machine suddenly stopped.

USAC restricted the turbines out of competition the following year.

Leonard's first major victory was worth $132,039 and he finished a lap and 10 seconds in front of Art Pollard.

Pollard also was runner-up in the inaugural California 500 to Jim McElreath last year.

Clad in a bright yellow racing suit and a cowboy hat after his third USAC championship trail career triumph, Leonard chatted with Pollard, the 44-year-old grandfather from Medford, Ore.

"You know," San Jose's No. 1 driver told a cluster of sportswriters, "Art and I were turbine teammates at one time.

"We took a few years to get back in the swing of things. I guess we were just used to all that kerosine."

The victory was worth 1,000 points toward the USAC national title and left Leonard with 2,550, 350 more than Al Unser, two time Indianapolis winner.

The crown carries a $200,000 jackpot.

With the temperature of Ontario's 2.5-mile oval surface reaching 135, Leonard averaged 152.354 miles per hour in his colt-Ford with four pit stops. McElreath, who finished eighth in an Eagle-Offenhauser, averaged 160.106 last year.

Runner-up by 1.61 seconds at the Pocono 500 and 19th at Indy this year, the winner took the lead for good with 40 laps to go after the temperature took care of the leaders—Al Unser and A.J. Foyt.

Ahead in the race by 16 seconds, the younger Unser Brother had transmission problems in his new Colt-Offy. Foyt, five-time USAC champion, was knocked out by faulty rear end.

Pollard, driving Clint Brawner's Scorpion-Ford, said it's all a matter of finishing here.

"The attrition rate is a little high," he said, smiling. "The secret to winning this race is running 500 miles. Maybe I can work my way up to first next year."

Gary Bettnhausen, whose father Tony was killed at Indy in 1961, came in third in a Gerhardt-Offy while Texan Lloyd Ruby, pole sitter for the first California 500, in a Laycock-Ford was fourth and Steve Krisiloff finished fifth in a King-Offy.

Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., the No. 1 qualifier at a record 185.004, made a mistake that cost him victory.

He missed car owner Roger Penske's call to come into the pits for gas and wound up running out of fuel on the 52nd lap while leading. He didn't get back into the race until 12 laps later.

Donohue's precision McLaren-Offy picked up two of the 12 laps before leaving on the 134th lap with an ailing turbocharger.

Al Unser's older brother, Bobby, the second qualifier, slammed into the wall at turn

Raider Subs Too Much For 49ers

OAKLAND (UPI) —Injuries are bringing out the best in the Oakland Raiders.

Guys like Don Highsmith, Marv Hubbard and Pete Banaszak got a lot of playing time Saturday night in Oakland's 34-28 exhibition victory over transbay rival San Francisco because regulars Hewritt Dixon, Charlie Smith and rookie sensation Clarence Davis were hobbling.

Highsmith, Hubbard and Banaszak combined with quarterbacks Kenny Stabler and Daryle Lamonica to pull the Raiders from behind twice to their fourth victory in six meetings with the 49ers.

Amazingly, Oakland pulled it out with offensive tackles Bob Brown and Ron Mix also benched with injuries and rookies Harold Rice, Horace Jones, Phil Villapiano and Jack Tatum playing a lot on defense.

"The game was good experience for us because we have had so much adversity (injuries)", said Raiders coach John Madden. "We did the best we could with what we had and came out of the game without any injuries.

"The 49ers are a very solid team. They were doing some stunting and they fooled us but they didn't beat us."

San Francisco coach Dick Nolan said the crowd of 53,686 made so much noise his players were unable to pick up the audible calls.

"We had one or two players making the changes but the others couldn't hear them," said Nolan. "This happened both on offense and defense but that's part of the game. It was as loud for them as it was for us."

Hubbard was the game's top rusher with 72 yards in 16 carries followed by Banaszak with 40 yards and Highsmith with 39. Highsmith also brought Oakland from behind and into the lead twice with touchdown bursts of one yard in the second quarter and 14 yards in the fourth period.

Stabler hit on 10 of 14 passes for 162 yards to keep alive several Oakland drives. Lamonica, who was booed during the third quarter, completed 4 of 9 for 59 yards, including a 37-yard touchdown aerial to Ray Chester.

Quarterback John Brodie of San Francisco piled up 253 aerial yards with 16 for 39. He hit Ted Kwalick and Gene Washington on TD passes of 16 and 30 yards.

Both the Raiders, now 4-1-0, and 49ers (3-1-1) wind up their pre-season schedule with road games this week. San Francisco plays the Rams in Los Angeles Thursday night while the Raiders meet the Baltimore Colts Saturday night at Jacksonville, Fla.

PRO GRID ROUNDUP

Bradshaw Sparkles; Jurgensen Injured

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It was a weekend in which one star rose and another fell.

The rising star was Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw, who threw four touchdown passes Saturday night to mark his finest day as a pro and lead the Steelers to a 35-21 victory over the New York Jets.

The fallen star was Washington's Sonny Jurgensen, who will be operated on today after suffering a fractured left shoulder in the Redskins' 27-10 loss Saturday to Miami.

Bradshaw, the first player drafted two years ago and somewhat of a bust in his rookie season, looked awesome as he took apart an injury-riddled Jets' defense. He hit three TD passes in the second quarter, connecting for 32 and 46 yards with Ron Shanklin and four to Jon Staggers and added his final TD pass in the third quarter on a 30-yard screen pass and run to John Fuqua.

Bob Davis had three TD passes of 70, 71 and 24 yards in a losing effort.

Jurgensen was hurt in much the same way the Jets' Joe Namath suffered his crushing knee injury —making a tackle. Miami's Dick Anderson intercepted a Jurgensen pass and Jurgensen suffered a small bone chip in his shoulder bringing down Anderson.

He will be operated on today in Oklahoma City by sports specialist Dr. Don O'Donaghue. No estimate was made on how long the veteran quarterback will be out of action. Bill Kilmer, acquired from New Orleans during the off-season, will handle the team in Jurgensen's absence!

Atlanta beat New England 45-35 in the only Sunday game while in other Saturday action, Kansas City tied St. Louis 17-17, Oakland edged San Francisco 34-28, Cleveland topped New York 30-7 in the second half of the Jets-Steelers doubleheader, Buffalo stunned Detroit 31-17, Cincinnati downed Green Bay 27-24, Houston swamped Chicago 37-17, Philadelphia walloped New Orleans 34-0 and Denver beat Minnesota 14-7.

Reserve quarterback George Mira threw two third quarter TD passes to spark the Dolphins' victory over Washington. Hubert Ginn also scored on a 86-yard run from scrimmage for the Dolphins.

Jim "Cannonball" Butler ran for two TDs in the first three minutes and Atlanta withstood a 28-point second half rally by New England to down the Patriots. Butler sparked the Falcons to a 38-7 halftime lead.

Jan Stenerud's 28-yard field goal as the final gun sounded brought Kansas City its tie with the Cardinals, who had taken the lead on Jim Bakken's 47-yard field goal with only 19 seconds left. Len Dawson's 46-yard pass to Otis Taylor to the St. Louis 21 set up the tying score.

Cleveland's defense set up two TDs and a field goal as the Browns cruised past the Giants in a battle of previously winless teams. Bo Scott, Leroy Kelly and Bo Cornell scored on runs and Bill Nelsen, making his first start of the pre-season, threw a 23-yard TD pass to Paul Staroba to lift the Browns to a 27-7 halftime lead.

Dennis Shaw passed for two scores and ran for another and O. J. Simpson cut loose a 68-yard run to set up the tie-breaking TD as the Bills upended Detroit. One of Shaw's scoring passes was an 87-yard bomb to Marlin Briscoe.

Rookie Ken Anderson's 14-yard TD pass to Bruce Coslet and rookie Fred Willis' three-yard TD plunge helped Cincinnati beat Green Bay and remain unbeaten in pre-season play while Ken Burrough scored one touchdown and set up another in Houston's romp past Chicago.

The Eagles returned three fumbles for touchdowns and went on to crush New Orleans in a game played in a tropical storm. Mel Tom, Steve Zabel and Don Hultz returned fumbles for scores.

Pete Duranko's fumble recovery in the end zone provided the decisive score in Denver's upset of Minnesota.

BIG SERIES ON TV

Giant-Dodger Showdown

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Giants lost a doubleheader Sunday but gained ground in the all important magic number race.

So today, as they start a three-game series with the chasing Los Angeles Dodgers, their National League West title-clinching magic number stands at 15.

While fooling around with the figures makes things sound rosey, they really aren't all that much because once again the injury bugaboo has hit the Giants—as it did in June when they almost blew their big lead.

Willie McCovey, San Francisco's big first baseman who went on the shelf in June with a banged up knee, injured himself again Sunday as the Giants were dropping a 1-0 and 5-3 doubleheader to Houston.

McCovey suffered a mean tear in the palm of his left hand while fielding a hard smash in the first inning of the first game and the wound required eight stiches to close.

So, McCovey will be out of action for at least a week and Willie Mays will have to take over at first—as he did in June when Big Mac sat by and watched the Giants' lead slip from 10 games to only 3 1-2.

McCovey's loss ordinarily wouldn't be that big a thing if Dave Kingman, the rookie sensation, also wasn't out of action. Kingman was operated on for the removal of his appendix last Wednesday and is out until the last week of the season.

"You can't lose two big guys like that and not be hurting," said Giants skipper Charlie Fox. "I'm not saying their loss will cost us the lead but it sure is going to be tough playing without them the next week or 10 days."

John Cumberland, the bulldog lefthander who pitched a four-hitter his last time out, will start the Dodger series tonight, going against Don Sutton. In the second game Tuesday night, it will be Ron Bryant, another lefty, pitching against Claude Osteen. And in the windup game Wednesday, it will be Juan Marichal against Bill Singer. All three games will be televised by KTVU Channel 2; today's at 5 o'clock, the next two at 8 p.m.

Fox had planned to rest Mays in Sunday's second game and also later this coming week, but with McCovey out that means Mays will play every day.

"I can do it," said the 40-year-old superstar. "I'll just have to try and make it."

Fox said that Hal Lanier, who has played a little at first, will be Willie's backup man, and from there he will play it by ear.

In Sunday's first game loss to the Astros, the Giants managed only five hits—all singles—off Jack Billingham, who struck out 11 batters.

In the nightcap, James Rodney Richard, a 6-8, 225-pound, fireballing righthander just up from Oklahoma City of the American Association, struck out 15 Giants and coasted home to his first big league victory in his first start.

The 15 strikeouts enabled Richard to tie Karl Spooner of the Brooklyn Dodgers for the big league record for a pitcher in his first game. Spooner set his mark—also against the Giants—in 1954.

The 26 strikeouts by Billingham and Richard also tied a record — set on Sept. 9, 1970 by the Mets over the Phillies.

Fox wasn't too disturbed by the fact the Giants struck out that many times and that they scored only two earned runs during the double defeat.

"Give credit to the other pitchers," said Fox. "No one likes to get that many strikeouts but that's part of the game. Don't forget, we had 20 hits and scored 16 runs just the other day (last Friday against Houston)."

Fox said he plans no lineup changes for the Dodger series.

"Outside of Mays going to first, we won't do anything drastic," said Fox.

Gaylord Perry gave up only six hits and the one run scored off him was unearned in taking the first-game loss Sunday. Jim Willoughby, like Richard making his big league debut, was the nightcap loser.

A's Keep 15½-Game Lead

OAKLAND (UPI)—Oakland's Athletics labored this holiday afternoon against the California Angels at the Coliseum after a quick flight from the Midwest.

Righthander Chuck Dobson of the A's chased his 16th victory of the campaign. The lanky fastballer has lost three. He was opposed by Andy Messersmith (14-13).

Both the Athletics and Angels flew to the Bay Area Sunday night after dropping games only a few miles apart in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Rod Carew lashed four hits and drove in two runs to pace the Twins to a 7-3 win over John Odom, now 10-10, and the Athletics. Meanwhile, the Angels dropped a 6-4 decision to Milwaukee despite a three-run, inside-the-park homer by Ken McMullen that gave California a 3-0 lead before the Brewers came to bat.

Despite the loss, the A's held onto their 15 1-2-game lead over Kansas City in the American League West because the Royals were blanked by Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox.

Minnesota hopped on Odom for two runs in each of the first three innings.

Oakland narrowed the gap to 4-2 by scoring twice in the third on run-producing singles by George Hendrick and Reggie Jackson. Successive errors by Dwain Anderson and Dick Green helped the twins to a pair of unearned runs in the bottom of the third.

The Athletics scored their final run in the fourth when Angel Mangual reached base on an error, moved to third on a double by Anderson and scored on a wild pitch by Bert Blyleven.

Blyleven spaced 11 hits in going all the way for the Twins to register his 12th victory against 15 losses.

San Marin Defeats Marin Catholic '11' In Scrimmage

The coaches wore smiles after Saturday's San Marin-Marin Catholic high school football scrimmage at Kentfield.

Marin Catholic mentor Bruno Banducci, however, had his joy tempered by the loss of alternate fullback Mark Ferrua. The 5-foot-11, 190 pound performer suffered a right shoulder separation and will miss five games. "What really hurts," Banducci began, "is that he was holding down a first club spot at defensive end and was one of our biggest boys."

Though disappointed with this development, and the 18-12 score favoring the visitors, Banducci was happy with the team's overall showing, marked by improved blocking and a Pat Parnow 55-yard scoring jaunt. The starting fullback broke a few tackles and hot footed past the secondary into the end zone.

His counterpart on San Marin, Fred Doar, contributed a 30-yard touchdown burst to capitalize on a Marin Catholic mistake. The hosts lined up with only 10 men on the field, sans a defensive end. Although not spotting the deficiency, quarterback Hoza Wright called for a sweep around the vacant left wing and the play went all the way.

San Marin's longest drive, a 70 yard effort, featured a 23-yard Wright to Terry Com aerial on a third and 20 circumstance. Com, a sophomore surprise, caught the ball from his weary-armed quarterback on a cross pattern. Wright, coach Bob Martin's main signal calling hope, is rounding his arm in shape in what is proving to be a painful process.

While Wright was tuning his throwing talents for the season ahead, so was Marin Catholic's Steve Sherry. The veteran passer did not produce to Banducci's expectations but showed enough flashes of brilliance to make his coach comment, "He'll be doing better later. Steve and the rest of the offense were a bit confused, because I've installed a new system." This innovative approach features a passing emphasis with a mixture of runs triggered by quarterback spins and pivots.

Sherry mustered mastery of enough Banducci bits of strategy to connect with transplanted junior varsity quarterback Russ Knudsen, now a flankerback. The latter will be called on to take pitchouts and run the pass option.

Rookie Sparks Pirates

By NEIL HERSHBERG
UPI Sports Writer

Rennie Stennett always had a desire to play with the Pittsburgh Pirates and now that the 20-year old Panamanian has been given the opportunity he's not about to mess it up.

Willie Stargell belted his 43rd homer of the year, Milt May added a two-run homer and the red-hot Stennett blasted his first major league homer Sunday to lead the rejuvenated Pirates to an 8-2 victory over the Montreal Expos.

It was the 10th victory in the last 13 starts for Pittsburgh, even though the Pirates haven't had a complete game during the stretch. Ramon Hernandez saved Sunday's victory for Bruce Kison with 2 1-3 innings of relief.

Stennett, despite defensive mistakes and inexperienced baserunning, has kept himself in the Pittsburgh lineup with his bat. The rookie infielder singled and doubled before his homer, extending his hitting streak to 14 games and boosting his batting average to .402.

Stennett, who led the International League in hitting last season with a .326 average, was leading the IL again this year until he was called up by the Pirates in mid-season as a replacement for Dave Cash. Although Stennett was originally recalled as a two-week roster replacement for Cash, who was to leave for two-week military reserve duty, he impressed the Pittsburgh coaching staff enough with his batting potential that he's been with the club ever since.

"I've been a baseball fan a long time," said Stennett who signed with the Pirate organization in 1969. "I watched the 1960 World Series on television behind the Canal Zone. That's when I started pulling for the Pirates."

Pittsburgh batting coach Bill Virdon, a respected hitter in his playing days, credits the rapid development of Stennett on his ability to "adapt from one pitch to the next."

"In Saturday's game he looked bad on a couple of pitches from Mike Marshall. Next thing you know he shifted his feet and hit a screwball for a single."

Gene Mauch, who saw his Expos drop two of three to the division-leading Pirates, was amazed at the ability shown by Stennett.

"The way he looked against us I believe he could hit a double from the batter's circle," the Montreal skipper said.

In other NL action, Houston swept a doubleheader from San Francisco, 1-0, and 5-3, Philadelphia downed New York 7-3, Cincinnati topped Los Angeles 7-5, Atlanta downed San Diego 5-2, and St. Louis outslugged Chicago 12-5.

In the American League, Washington whipped Baltimore 5-3, Boston defeated Cleveland 8-1, Milwaukee tripped California 6-4, Minnesota downed Oakland 7-3, New York edged Detroit 6-5, and Chicago blanked Kansas City 8-0.

The Cardinals rocked 21-game winner Ferguson Jenkins for seven runs in less than five innings and coasted to an easy win over the Cubs in a game delayed three times by rain. Joe Torre, the National League's top RBI man, had two RBIs in the game to boost his season's total to 118.

Lee May drove in three runs with a single and a sacrifice fly in the first two innings to help the Reds down Los Angeles. The Dodgers were able to battle back from deficits of 5-0 and 7-3 thanks to a three-run homer by Maury Wills and Richie Allen's two-run homer.

Snead, Dave Hill Lead In Hartford Open Tourney

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI)—Sponsors of the Greater Hartford Open golf tournament have made a point that nobody has ever successfully defended his championship in the 20-year history of the event.

But the Snead family is working on a bid to become double winners 16 years apart.

Famed Sam Snead won the tournament, then called the Insurance City Open, back in 1955, when the total prize money amounted to some $25,000.

Now, Sam's nephew, 29-year-old Jesse Carlyle Snead, is gunning for the first prize of $22,000 and a new Cadillac.

But just as Sam had competition in his day, so does nephew Jesse. The roughest competition in this four-day, 72-hole test is coming from Dave hill, the more talkative member of the golfing Hills.

Entering today's final round at hot and humid Wethersfield Country Club, the young Snead and the louder Hill were tied at 201, 12 under par in a tournament that has seen the majority of entrants shoot subpar golf the majority of the time.

The pair have plenty of competition since seven other pro tourists are only one stroke back, another is two strokes astern and eight more are just three strokes down.

The hottest final round competition is expected to come from second round leader, unknown Jack Ewing, who is tied for second along with Lou Graham, Dave Stockton, George Archer, Deane Beman, John Miller and Fred Marti.

Graying veteran Gay Brewer is alone at 203 while the 204 grouping included such threats as Al Geiberger, Dick Lotz, Homero Blancas, Tom Shaw, R.H. Sikes and Bobby Nichols.

Ashe Worried About Australia Newcomer In U.S. Open Tennis

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) —Tom Okker, fourth-seeded, feels that the real comer in tennis is 20-year old John Alexander of Australia, and Arthur Ashe agrees he is a little worried, about Alexander too.

Ashe, who has cake-walked through his first three matches without loss of a set in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships, meets Alexander in the next round and Arthur recalls John's straight set win over him, in the semi-finals of a tournament in Teheran in May.

Okker, who meets Toshiro Sakai of Japan today, said, "I have not seen enough of the new young Americans, but I honestly feel that Alexander has the mark of the great Aussie players of a few years ago —like Laver, Rosewall and Emerson."

Marty Riessen of Evanston Ill., the fifth seed who meets 30-year old Jan Leschly of Denmark today, is also impressed with the younger players, notably Bryan Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who took Marty to five-tense sets before bowing in the first round, and Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., who finally went down to Frank Froehling of Fort Lauderdale Sunday, 7-6, 5-7, 6-3, 7-6.

Two seeded players, number six Cliff Richey of San Angelo Tex. and number eight Ilie Nastase of Rumania, lost on Sunday as Ashe moved easily past Mark Cox of England. Ashe, the winner of the first Open here in 1968, said, "the biggest factor is that I'm serving well. I've been optimistic about my chances since the first day."

A casualty, to the dismay of the crowd of 13,284, was Pancho Gonzalez who lost an argument and a match. Gonzalez was beaten by Manual Orantes of Spain 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-1 and lost a debate to a linesman on a foot fault interpretation when tourney referee Seixas backed the lineman.

USC Picked In Pac-8 Grid Race

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Bobby Moore, University of Oregon tailback, was named the outstanding offensive back in the Pacific-8 by vote of 43 football skywriters after a tour of the conference.

The skywriters picked the University of Southern California to win the conference championship with Stanford a close second.

John Vella, USC tackle, was named the outstanding offensive lineman. John Winesberry of Stanford was voted the outstanding first year varsity prospect at running back.

Cal Jones of Washington was tabbed as the outstanding defensive back while Sherman White of California was chosen the choice as defensive lineman with Cal Peterson of UCLA the top defensive sophomore.

University of Southern California received 16 first place votes in the balloting for the top team in the conference and with 10 points for first, graduating down, the Trojans received 276 points.

Stanford received 240 points followed by Washington 208, Oregon State 199, Oregon 197, UCLA 122, California 118 and Washington State 64.

Oregon State was named as the dark horse choice to score an upset conference championship victory.

TIME AND TIDE

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depts are always additive to the chart depts unless preceded by a (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Lightface type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

one on the 118th lap while running third in his Eagle-Offy.

The other man in the front row, Peter Revson of Redondo Beach, Calif., finished seventh in his McLaren-Offy behind Denver's Jim Malloy, who was in an Eagle-Ford.

Donohue, winner at Pocono in July, took all the blame for running out of gas.

"It was all my mistake," the engineering graduate of Brown university said. "Roger gave me the in sign and I just flat missed it. I didn't realize we were cutting it that close."

Bobby Unser still was wondering what happened after Leonard crossed the finish line.

"Something broke on the car approaching turn one," he declared. "Other than that. I don't know what happened. The car just suddenly turned sideways on me."

A crowd of 168,420 turned out to watch the Ontario Motor Speedway begin its second year.

Danes Dominate Knarr Regatta Opening Race

Denmark captured four of the first five places yesterday in the first heat of the 1971 International Knarr Regatta off Berkeley yesterday.

Skipper Niels Grauballe nipped host San Francisco Yacht Club pilot Knud Wibroe, a transplated Copenhagen native living in Sausalito, by a slim 20 seconds in a 10-18 knot west wind which caused a fairly heavy chop.

After the Sausalito skipper crossed, the Dane teams of Terry Anderlini, Axsel Madsen-Mygdal and Jacob Johansen followed. Art Rude and Dick Griffith, both of Belvedere, followed. Another Belvedere resident, Bob Fisher, took ninth, followed by Ted McKown of Sausalito in 10th place.

The second heat involving the 20 teams took place today.

MacKay Reaches Tourney Finals

Barry MacKay of Ross yesterday swept easily into the finals of the 13th annual Los Gatos Swim and Racquet Club tennis tournament by drubbing San Leandro's Ken Mordoff 6-1, 6-2.

The 6-foot-4 former Davis Cupper faced Los Altos teaching pro HenryKamakana in the finals today. MacKay's championship opponent, a transplanted Hawaiian, moved into the last round by downing Dean Penero of Stockton, 6-4, 6-3.

The winner of the final match will receive $200, the loser $100.

Cycle Daredevil Injured In Jump

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Fourteen-year-old motorcycle daredevil Gary Wells was slightly injured Sunday night while jumping 155 feet, 10 inches over 15 automobiles on his motorcycle at Beeline Dragway.

Wells was taken to Scottsdale Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released. His father said the boy suffered an asphalt burn on the hand.

The motorcycle apparently came off the "up" ramp too fast, cleared all the automobiles, then overshot the "down" ramp by 20 feet. The cycle skidded and Wells fell off.

Wells remained sprawled on the pavement for five minutes, then walked to an awaiting ambulance.

Canadian Wins U.S. Golf Title

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Canadian Gary Cowan captured his second U.S. Amateur golf championship Saturday with a three-stroke victory over Wake Forest University star Eddie Pearce.

Holding a slim one-stroke lead going into the final hole of the 72-hole event, Cowan repeated his 1966 U.S. title by scoring an eagle on the hole.

Salt Lake Wins Flag

TACOMA, WASH. (UPI) — Salt Lake City Angels won their first Pacific Coast League championship since 1959 yesterday with a 6-4 victory over the Tacoma Cubs. The victory gave Salt Lake a 3-1 margin in the best-of-five championship series.

Sometimes It Is Wise To Look Around Before Taking The Ace

Not long ago we spent a whole week on the principle of keeping the dangerous opponent out of the lead. Since you're a very attentive type, you absorbed the lesson and will never flub a hand of that sort again. Just to prove this, take a look at another hand of that kind.

LOW DIAMOND

West opens the deuce of diamonds. East puts up the king, and you take the ace of diamonds and look around to see what the problem is.

Too late. You've already missed it. And you've made my first paragraph look very foolish.

After taking the first diamond trick you draw trumps and try the club finesse, losing to the king. East returns a diamond to West's queen. Now West leads a heart, and East takes two heart tricks.

Down one.

JUST TOO EARLY

Of course, I caught you before you'd had your coffee or you wouldn't have dreamed of making that mistake at the first trick. The right play is to let East hold the first trick with the king of diamonds. That virtually guarantees the contract.

SHUT OUT

East can return a diamond at the second trick, if he likes, but you win with the ace of diamonds and draw trumps. You then take the club finesse, losing to the king. In this position, however, West is shut out. He cannot get in to lead through dummy's king of hearts.

If East leads hearts, dummy's king will win a trick. If East leads anything else you will discard two hearts on dummy's clubs. Either way you will limit the heart loss to one trick; and you will thus make your contract.

Bound Over On Marijuana

Albert S. Hopper, 40, of Tiburon, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on charges of possessing and cultivating marijuana and a misdemeanor count of possessing marijuana paraphernalia.

He is to be arraigned in superior court Wednesday.

Hopper, who is also known as Steve Harper, was arrested July 1 at his residence when Marin County Drug Abuse agents, acting on a tip, found 14 suspected pot plants growing in his garden.

ALMANAC

Today is Monday, Sept. 6, the 249th day of 1971.

This is Labor Day.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Virgo.

American social worker Jane Adams was born Sept. 6, 1860.

On this day in history:

In 1620, 149 pilgrims set sail from England for the New World.

In 1901 President McKinley was shot and critically wounded in Buffalo, N.Y. He died eight days later.

In 1909 word was received that Adm. Robert Perry had discovered the North Pole five months earlier, April 6, 1909.

In 1966 South African Prime Minister Henrich Verwoerd was assassinated.

A thought for today: French philosopher Blaise Pascal said, "We know the truth, not only by the person, but by the heart."

MASTER KEY CHECK

An employee fits tiny brass pins into a tumbler plug for a master keyed padlock at Emhart Corp.'s hardware plant in Berlin, Conn., where production of security devices is being speeded to meet increasing demands of buildings and homeowners. The pins can be as small as 3/1000th of an inch in length and anywhere from four to seven go into a padlock to provide thousands of keying combinations.

Lockheed Rehires 4,400 Employees

BURBANK (BW) — Lockheed-California Co. has rehired 4,400 employees, nearly half of those laid off from the L-1011 Tristar program last February when Rolls-Royce went into receivership and disrupted production on the wide-bodied trijet.

One month after Congress approved a federally guaranteed loan to enable Lockheed to keep the Tristar in production, employment on the L-1011 program totals 12,380 at Lockheed plants in Southern California, Georgia, Oklahoma and North Dakota, said Charles S. Wagner, president of Lockheed-California Co.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Some Firms Helped By Economic Pinch

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. What industries and companies could be hurt or helped by the recent Nixon statement? — P.C.

A. Let me start with the negative, that is companies and areas which will be hurt. In this category are issues such as Japan Fund, which invest in foreign securities. Foreign manufacturers doing a large amount of business in U.S. will certainly feel the pinch. These include Sony, Telecor, Volvo, Volkswagenwerk and others. International passenger and freight air transports including Flying Tiger and Pan American will probably suffer. Cutting our monetary tie with gold may cause near-term weakness for gold issues but for longer term may be beneficial.

Industries which should benefit include: autos, auto parts, computer and peripheral equipment, consumer products, capital goods, electrical equipment, machine tool, paper, retail and tire. A few companies standing to gain are: Chrysler, Diebold, Foxboro, IBM and Microdot.

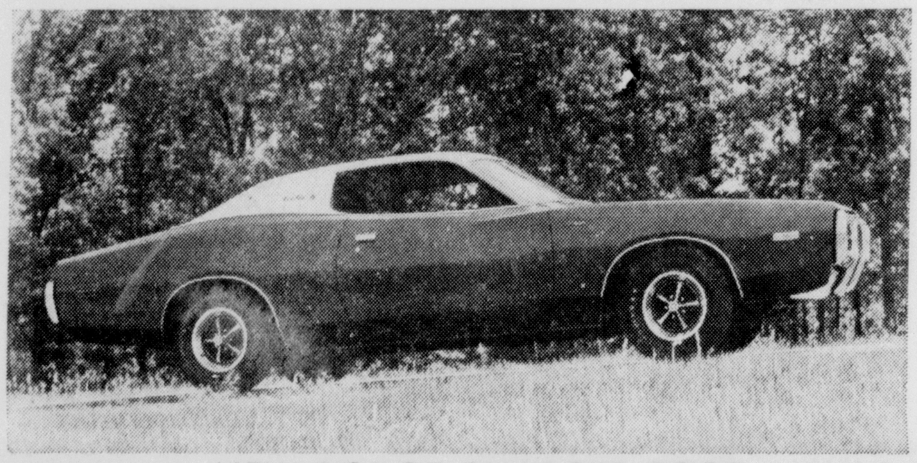
Q. I purchased International Leisure (OTC) at 30 about three years ago. Within 90 days it had more than doubled, but because of the capital gains tax I did not sell. During the last stock market slump, it dropped to below 9 at which time I bought shares to average down. Was this wise; should I continue to hold? — D.L.

A. Recession and retrenchment was the order of the day for the resort/gambling industry in 1970. And, International Leisure, which owns and operates the Flamingo Hotel and the Las Vegas Hilton Hotels resort casinos, felt the pinch like everyone else.

Occupancy rates and profit margins were adversely affected by the air controllers' labor problems and a strike of culinary employees.

Thus, while revenues in 1970 rose 38 per cent year-to-year, net income slipped 34 per cent to 66 cents a share. This year, however, operations have improved, as evidenced by International Leisure's first half results. On a 2.7 per cent gain in revenues, share earnings climbed 44% to 43 cents.

Roughly 85.6 per cent-owned by Hilton Hotels, International Leisure represents an attractive speculation and should be held for further recovery gains.



NEW DODGE CHARGER ROOF

The Charger will remain on a 115-inch hardtop wheelbase for 1972, while its companion, the Dodge Coronet, will be on the 118-inch sedan and station wagon wheelbase. Both will get new front and rear design changes and a new 400-cubic inch engine has been added to these intermediate cars, along with improved handling and brakes. Cars will be sold in Marin at Nave Dodge, Novato and Marin Dodge, San Rafael.

CHEVROLET'S ECONOMY VEGA

Vega's wheelbase is 97 inches. A leading feature is its aluminum overhead cam four-cylinder engine. Disc brake rotors have been redesigned this year, giving quieter braking. During the 1972 model year turbo Hydramatic three-speed automatic transmission will be available. Vegas will sold at De Long Chevrolet, San Rafael; Campbell-Bishop Chevrolet, Corte Madera; Ted Schuman Chevrolet, Novato; and Cheda Chevrolet, Point Reyes Station.

NEW GRAND PRIX GRILLE

Built on a 188-inch wheelbase the Grand Prix has power steering, power front disc brakes, turbo Hydramatic transmission, a 400-cubic inch, four-barrel V-8 engine and dual exhausts as standard equipment. It will be available in Marin Sept. 23 at Marin Automobile Co. in San Rafael.

The Sullivan Reading And Math Programs Can Make This School Year Your Child's Best!

● Is your child capable of doing better in school?

Perhaps poor reading or math skills are keeping him from realizing his full potential. Sullivan Reading Centers offer programs in both Reading and Math. Both programs feature individualized instruction and are designed to supplement a child's regular school work. Groups are limited to five students, each child progresses at his own rate of learning.

● How the Reading Program works:

At the Sullivan Reading Center your child will learn to read or improve his present reading level through linguistic progression. He will find that the organized, sequential, involving aspects of the Sullivan Reading Program offer him an opportunity for success that he may not have previously enjoyed. He'll sense for the first time the accomplishment of reading.

● How the Math Program works:

Our Math Program is self-motivating, self-instructional, self-scoring. Once a student is placed in the program, problems gradually increase in complexity, leading him step-by-step to a thorough grasp of concepts and procedures. Retention is improved since the student remembers more accurately things he has learned for himself. Ask your child's teacher about our proven Sullivan materials. Call your local center director and schedule an appointment for a free reading or math evaluation test.
